Reduced rate for warehouse

Village turns down Sears fee request

Elk Grove Village officials Tuesday night denied a request by Sears Roebuck and Co. for a reduction in the estimated $104,000 building permit fee for its giant warehouse at Busse Road and Devon Avenue.

The 1-million-square-foot facility, which will include a retail outlet for "highly seasonal" fashion merchandise, is expected to be completed early in 1976.

Village Mgr. Charles Willis said Sears representatives asked the board to consider lowering the building permit fee because of the sizable revenue the warehouse will bring to the community. Willis estimated $97,000 will be gained from the warehouse in property taxes and $34,000 will be obtained annually from sales tax revenue.

THE VILLAGE manager and Building Comr. Thomas Reitenbacher recommended that the village board turn down Sears' request in keeping with village policy of reducing or waiving building permit fees only for nonprofit organizations or concerns such as churches and hospitals.

Several profit-making companies have requested lower building permit fees in the past, Willis said, but have been turned down by the building department.

Sears is the first to take its appeal to the village board.

THERE WAS LITTLE discussion on the Sears request with the majority of the board apparently determined to stick to the fee policy. "I think we'd be starting a precedent here we could never stop," Trustee Theodore Stadler warned.

Trustee Michael Tosto entered the only dissenting vote, saying he believed the board should consider reducing Sears' building permit fees because of the size of the warehouse.

The Sears plant will be the largest single facility in the Centex Industrial Park. Sears officials anticipate about 900 persons will be initially employed there and company representatives have indicated additions may be made to the building that would eventually double its size.

Township turns to GOP to help find new auditor

The Elk Grove Township Board is working through the township's Republican organization to find a successor for auditor Walter Bartley, who resigned earlier this month.

Bartley, 56, of 1206 Wilke Rd., Arlington Heights, submitted his resignation at the April 7 township board meeting, saying he is moving to Wisconsin. Bartley, along with the rest of the present board, was elected on a Republican ticket in 1973.

Township Supervisor Richard Hall said Tuesday letters have been sent to area Republican precinct captains, asking for candidates to succeed

Bartley. Persons suggested for the position will be interviewed in the next few weeks and the new auditor probably will be named at the June 2 township board meeting, he said.

"We're doing it this way because we were all elected on the Republican ticket," Hall said. "We're naturally looking for people interested in this kind of work and hope to get the one who's most qualified for the job."

The township supervisor said anyone interested in the seat on the board of auditors may contact him at the township hall, 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

Prosecution contends in Swimley trial:

'Hit-man search undid murder plot'

by STIRLING MORITA

An assistant state's attorney said Tuesday a telephone call to a man with an Italian name in the mistaken belief he had crime syndicate connections led to the downfall of a Schaumburg woman's plot to kill her husband.

Charles Sklarsky, an assistant state's attorney, said in his opening remark of the Marlene Swimley murder-solicitation trial that a police investigation led to Mrs. Swimley's arrest after calls to a former Schaumburg man, known as "Godfather" to friends.

Thomas Mangione, Rochester, N.Y., who was called "Godfather" because of his Italian heritage by a few people when he lived in Schaumburg, testified before Judge Marvin E. Aspen that he received a message to return a call to Kevin Senne and that a person identifying himself as Senne told him he wanted a "hit man."

Sklarsky said the telephone call resulted from consultation among three teen-aged friends — two of whom were allegedly solicited by Mrs. Swimley to find a hit man for her husband, Duane Sr.

THE TWO YOUTHS called a former junior-high school friend in California, and he recommended they call Mangione, thought to have "Mafia" connections because of his nickname. Sklarsky told the two-man, 10-woman jury.

Rock DeSpain, formerly of Schamp-

burg, was the only other prosecution witness to testify Tuesday. He told the court that Mangione thought the call was a joke. But when DeSpain heard the name Senne, a friend of his stepson, he urged Mangione to pursue the matter to discover who was the intended victim.

After a second telephone call to the Chicago area, DeSpain mistakenly believed he was the target of a murder plot. "I believe anything is possible these days," he said.

DeSpain said he and Mangione went to Schaumburg police, who started an investigation.

SCHAUMBURG POLICE sought help from the state's attorney's office, and Mrs. Swimley was arrested at the Woodfield Shopping Center Jan. 24, 1974, after she allegedly handed over $100 as a down payment to "Jimmy Sunshine," an investigator posing as a hit man.

Louis Carbonaro, Mrs. Swimley's lawyer, told the jury in his opening statement, "They (the prosecution) would want you to believe that this 32-year-old woman went to a bunch of 14-year-olds to find a Mafia hit man. Is that believable?"

"It's all believable if you watch 'The Godfather' — that is."

Carbonaro implied there were some irregularities following Mrs. Swimley's arrest. He said a tape recording of the alleged money transfer showed that she was pressured into naming an amount and that she was giggling throughout the recording.

CARBONARO SAID an investigator reported that Mrs. Swimley had written her husband's address in Germany on a photograph, but that a handwriting expert's opinion would prove that it is not her handwriting on the paper.

He said Mrs. Swimley's home at 322 Meacham Rd. had been locked up and she was unable to get in for a day and that when she returned, it had been ransacked. "These small towns run their own police departments," he said.

Prosecution witnesses are expected to testify through Thursday. The trial resumes at 9:30 a.m. today.

$8,000 in diamonds stolen from store

A tray of diamond rings valued at $8,000 was stolen Monday night from the Venture Inc. department store, 1500 S. Elmhurst Rd., Mount Prospect.

Police said the 19 or 20 rings on the tray were last seen at 5 p.m. when they were locked in a display case. Their loss was reported at 10:45 p.m.

The case was found unlocked when the theft was discovered, police said. They added that it is unknown whether the rings were stolen by a shoplifter or by a store employee and both possibilities are being investigated.

THE CROSSINGS development in Buffalo Grove is going up on the former 80-acre Bernard Raupp farm. Aribert F. Wild, attorney for the sale of the farm, is charged in a suit with swindling the later Bernard Raupp out of $160,000 when he purchased the property for $640,000 under the cover of a blind trust and resold it for $800,000.

Raupps charge lawyer bilked dad of thousands

by JOANN VAN WYE

A prominent Palatine attorney has been accused of swindling the late Bernard A. Raupp, a member of Buffalo Grove's pioneer family, out of at least $160,000 in the sale of Raupp's 80-acre farm in Buffalo Grove.

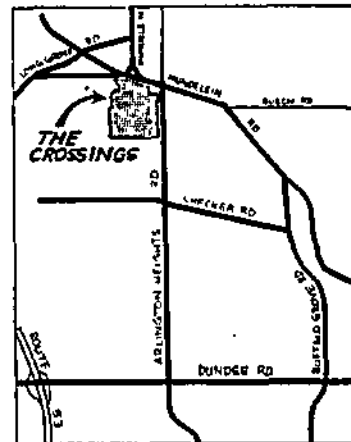

The attorney, Aribert F. Wild, represented Raupp in the sale of the property to a secret land trust of which Wild was the sole beneficiary. Wild then resold the property at a $160,000 profit, according to a suit filed in Lake County Circuit Court by Raupp's two sons.

The suit was filed last month by Leroy M. Raupp, 955 Checker Dr., Buffalo Grove, and Ralph C. Raupp, 1913 Seminole Ln., Mount Prospect, executors of the elder Raupp's estate.

It asks for damages and repayments from Wild totaling $1,060,000. That amount includes the $160,000 Wild made on the farm sale, $500,000 in damages and an additional $400,000 that Raupp lost because the land was sold for less than its market value, the suit says.

WILD, 75, COULD not be reached for comment. His secretary said Wild has been advised by his attorney not to discuss the suit.

The property in question, west of Arlington Heights Road and south of N. Rte. 83, is now part of The Crossings development owned by the Richards Group.

Raupp, who is described as "unschooled and unlettered in the English language" in the suit, signed a real estate contract Dec. 30, 1970 selling his 80-acre farm for $640,000 to a secret trust at Chicago Title and Trust Co. The contract called for a $40,000 downpayment and five annual payments of $120,000.

Wild, Raupp's attorney in the deal, is accused of concealing from Raupp that he was the sole beneficiary of the trust which purchased the property.

No money was paid to Raupp for the sale of his property through 1971, according to the suit. An inventory of Raupp's estate at the time of his death Aug. 9, 1973 showed $467,419 still unpaid on the property.

ON MARCH 13, 1972, Wild is accused of selling the 80-acre Raupp farm and an additional 53 acres he owned adjacent to the property to developer James Otis Jr. of Northbrook. The property was sold at $100,000 an acre. The suit charges Wild "failed to divulge and concealed" that he had sold the farm for $800,000.

Wild's "deceptions and concealments . . . were intentional and wilful and purposefully calculated and planned to reap financial profit . . . at the expense of his client," the suit says.

Fair market value of the land at the time of the 1972 sale was $1.2 million, according to the suit.

Otis petitioned the Village of Buffalo Grove for annexation and multi-family zoning of the parcel, which was granted in August 1971. The property was then sold and is being developed by the Richards Group.

Wild, whose law office is at 119 E. Palatine Rd., Palatine, has been given until May 21 to file an answer to the suit.

Raupp's will called for equally dividing his estate among his six children, Leroy Raupp, Ralph Raupp, Robert J. Raupp, 7817 Rte. 14, Harvard; Donald B. Raupp, 418 Diane Dr., Palatine; Mary Ann Eder, 1046 Broadmoor, Deerfield; and Betty Lou Raupp, 1175 Parker Ln., Buffalo Grove. They would receive equal portions of any settlement.

GRAHAM STEWART was struck on the shoulder by this thin metal plate when it fell from a Boeing 707 jet.

Man hit by falling object from jet

The inside story

A part from a Boeing 707 jet fell in Rolling Meadows last weekend, striking Graham Stewart on his shoulder as he was dumping garbage outside his home.

Stewart, 65, of 3305 Pheasant Dr., was not injured by the part, a small, flat piece of metal with instructions printed on it for maintenance of the jet landing gear.

Stewart turned the metal part, which was attached to a long, metal strap, over to Rolling Meadows police. "I wasn't going to do anything, but I thought Rolling Meadows might keep a record of that stuff," he said.

The Air Carrier Inspection Office of the Federal Aviation Administration is tracing the jet from which the piece fell Saturday afternoon. Officials have also shown the part to the Boeing Airplane Co.'s local office.

STEWART SAID the piece struck him lightly on the shoulder, and may have hit the edge of his roof first. He was bending over, putting some trash in a garbage can when it hit, and he didn't know what it was at first. He saw the piece lying on the driveway and threw it onto the porch before deciding to notify police.

"This is nothing," he said. "I suppose it could have injured someone if it struck them in the face."

An FAA spokesman said the part bears the name of the Boeing Co. and has instructions for servicing the landing gear. It is not an essential, operating part of the plane. It probably fell from a plane approaching O'Hare Airport for a landing, the spokesman said.

The Northwest suburbs have been the target of other falling objects in recent years. A large chunk of a door from a jet narrowly missed a surveyor and his stepdaughter in July 1974, when they were doing some work for the Arlington Heights Park District. That piece, measuring about one-by-1½ feet, landed near Belmont Avenue and Council Trail.

Other suburban residents have been plagued with flying sewage, but the FAA has declined to blame those incidents on jet aircraft, saying there is no way for the sewage to fall from the planes.

Consumer price rise holds at .3%

Consumer prices rose .3 per cent in March, the lowest increase since July 1973 when price-wage freezes were in effect, the U.S. Labor Dept. reported Tuesday.

The figure indicates inflation is easing, but President Ford said he doubts the trend can be maintained.

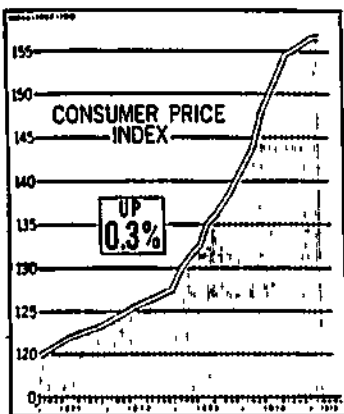

"We think, because of various technical reasons and the fluctuations in price indices, that this figure is a little bit lower than the underlying inflation rate," he said.

A reduction in food prices was a major ingredient in helping slow prices. The food-price index showed a drop of .5 per cent, its first decline since July.

The figure does not reflect widespread price reductions initiated last week in Chicago because the figures are for March.

THE NATIONAL figures noted beef, eggs and sugar prices are down. Another factor is lower mortgage rates.

During the past three months prices have risen at an annual rate of 6.6 per cent, the smallest three-month increase since May through July of 1973.

The Consumer Price Index for March stood at 157.8, which means goods and services which cost $100 in 1967 cost $157.80 in March.

Prices which led to the slight increase involved gasoline, up .1 per cent from February; new car prices, which increased generally, and additional charges for medical care. Prices for household services also continued to increase.

In a separate report the Labor Dept. said the average weekly earnings of workers were down .4 per cent from February after adjustments for price increases. The decline was based on a shorter work week and prices that increased faster than wages.

Palatine Township murder case

Home sale may hold key to slaying

Neighborhood upset by killing

by JOE SWICKARD

Ela Road near Baldwin Road in Palatine Township looks like the reason people move to the far suburbs.

Large houses are set on sizable lots, the rolling hills are landscaped and even the stands of woods look cared for. The only things out of place were the two Illinois State Police squad cars travelling south on Ela Road.

If one did not know, the biggest problem would seem to be some minor flooding of the area by last Friday's heavy rain. But inside the 12-room stone and cedar house on the private drive, police were combing for clues to the murder of Alfred Dinverno, shot in the head while tied to a chair in his den at 404 Inverdale Dr.

INSIDE THE house Illinois State Police Det. John Nebergall, a veteran of the Sharon Percy and De Mau Mau murder investigations, is trying to figure out who shot Dinverno.

Across the road William Taylor talked about the neighborhood and his slain neighbor.

"We didn't see him at all over the weekend. We had just noticed we hadn't seen him. He had a motorcycle he used to ride around," Taylor said.

Dinverno was "well liked" by the neighbors, Taylor said, but also a man "who liked his privacy."

"It is a remote area out here, but then, the houses are bought by people who want to be out of the mainstream. From here, you can't see or hear a thing that would go on over there," Taylor said, pointing to the Dinverno house about 150 yards away.

THE DINVERNO house is well placed for a person seeking privacy. Inverdale Drive is a one-lane gravel drive to the house.

Originally planned as a cul-de-sac with three or four houses, the builders stopped after the Dinverno house. It stands alone halfway down a small hill with a three-car garage in back, shielded even further.

Some neighbors reported seeing strange cars in the area before the murder. Taylor, too, has seen "strange cars," but he wasn't overly concerned.

"People got shook up — they can panic a little. This is a nice place to live, the houses are nice. Strange cars are always driving through with people looking for a house to buy. But something like this is upsetting. He didn't die in a nice way," Taylor said.

HE SAID THE neighborhood is generally quiet. There has been some vandalism and a few burglaries, but it looked like the work of kids in the other cases, he said.

"It's just a shame it happened. But it's happened before in remote areas like in Barrington Hills," Taylor said of the so-called De Mau Mau murders.

Police are trying to locate persons who attended a house sale given by Alfred Dinverno a week before he was shot to death in the den of his secluded Palatine Township home Saturday or Sunday.

Dinverno, 57, was discovered bound hand and foot by police Monday who were summoned to his home, 404 Inverdale Dr., by a daughter, Diane Walsh, Itasca. Mrs. Walsh did not enter the house when she saw her father's white Corvette parked outside an open garage door. Police were called from a neighbor's house.

Illinois State Police Det. John Nebergall said Dinverno recently sold the sprawling 12-room house and was selling some of the furnishings. Nebergall said persons who attended the sale may be able to provide leads in the murder-robbbery.

POLICE HAVE asked that anyone who attended the sale call the Illinois State Police, AV 3-2400.

Police believe Dinverno was the victim of a home-invasion gang who surprised him as he opened his garage door.

Dinverno was last seen alive Thursday night after returning from dinner with his daughter and son-in-law in Itasca.

An autopsy Tuesday revealed Dinverno was shot three times in the

Clerk investigating vote irregularities

City Clerk Eleanor Rohrbach of Des Plaines Tuesday said she will review county voting records to determine why the names of about 40 voters were removed from registration books. Mrs. Rohrbach said there were "significant irregularities" in Precinct 49 in the 6th Ward during last week's aldermanic election. At least 13 voters were barred from casting ballots and election judges incorrectly allowed another 34 persons to vote even though their names did not appear on records. "We just want to find out how it happened and see to it that this does not happen again," said Patricia Galla, one of the registered voters not permitted to cast a ballot. "I feel my rights have been violated," she said.

$8,000 in rings stolen

A tray of diamond rings valued at $8,000 was stolen from the Venture Inc. department store, 1500 S. Elmhurst Rd., Mount Prospect. Police said the 19 or 20 rings on the tray were last seen at 5 p.m. Monday when they were locked in a display case. Police said the theft could have been committed by a shoplifter or an employee.

Roy Jenkins leaving prison

Roy Jenkins, the last of six former Hoffman Estates officials jailed for involvement in a 1968 zoning scandal, will be released today from federal prison. Jenkins, 46, is scheduled to be released from the Community Treatment Center in Los Angeles, a transfer facility for prisoners awaiting parole. Jenkins, who served as village president from 1963 to 1969, was sent to the facility from the federal prison in Los Angeles, Calif., after a parole board in January consented to his release. The former village president will have served 16 months of a two-year sentence after he pleaded guilty in 1973 to accepting bribes from Kaufman and Broad Homes Inc. for the 1963 zoning of the firm's Barrington Square project.

Indian powwow still 'alive'

The Des Plaines Bicentennial Commission hasn't given up its efforts to bring an Indian powwow to the city this summer. Rebuffed by High School Dist. 207 to hold a three-day powwow at Maine West High School, the commission is now aiming for a one-day powwow. The Mascoutin Society of Chicagoand decided last week to conduct its three-day powwow in Camp Dan Beard near Wheeling instead of in Des Plaines because of restrictions imposed by Dist. 207.

Shortage of aircraft hampering massive airlift from S. Vietnam

SAIGON (UPI) — Americans and Vietnamese fled South Vietnam by the hundreds Tuesday in the heaviest day of evacuation flights. But U.S. officials said a shortage of aircraft was hampering the around-the-clock airlift.

The airlift was moving out nearly 2,000 persons a day, and President Ford said in Washington the "bare minimum" of 1,500 Americans would be left in the country by Tuesday night.

But by nightfall, the staging area — a gymnasium and bowling alley at Saigon's Tan Son Nhut air base — was jammed with close to 1,000 Americans and Vietnamese. "We've got far more flights manifested than we have aircraft," said one U.S. official.

"These are people who have completed all necessary documentation and are just awaiting transport."

One source working with the evacuation program said there was a backlog of about 50 full flights. However, officials would not confirm this.

Officials involved in the program estimated it would take until the end of the week or perhaps longer to clear all the evacuees unless more aircraft were made available.

More than 2,500 refugees landed at Clark Air Base in the Philippines by dusk Tuesday, and another 500 were expected on later flights, officials there said. More than 1,000 early evacuees already had left for the United States, and the Air Force estimated another 5,200 were housed at Clark.

Other Americans were leaving Saigon aboard regular commercial flights.

In Washington, the Senate Judiciary Committee approved the immediate entry into the United States of up to 131,000 Vietnam and Cambodian refugees.

Those to be granted entry would include up to 50,000 "high-risk" Vietnamese refugees and their families whose lives would be imperiled by a Communist takeover.

The committee, meeting in closed session, unanimously approved a formal request from Attorney General Edward H. Levi to permit the administration to use its "parole authority," a procedure through which refugees can be admitted quickly without red tape and delay.

Levi said it was "essential to begin at once to assist the departure from Vietnam of appropriate individuals if such an effort were to be orderly and successful."

Once they are admitted into the country, he said, "Every effort will be made to obtain international assistance for all Vietnamese and Cambodian refugees and to arrange their resettlement in third countries."

Levi has authority to invoke parole on his own, but chose to submit the request to the committee as a courtesy to obtain congressional support.

The State Department said the administration was discussing possible placement of refugees with "foreign governments and international organizations," including two or three Latin American governments.

Anderson described as "poppycock" a statement by county supervisor James Hayes in Los Angeles that the United States might evacuate 600,000 to 1 million Southeast Asian refugees to California.

Beyond that, Anderson was unable to provide any definite information on "high risk" South Vietnamese.

U.S. AIR FORCE personnel erect additional tents at Clark Air Base in Manila for thousands of Americans and South Vietnamese from Saigon. Tuesday's evacuation nearly doubled Monday's 1,600 persons.

BATTLE-READY U.S. Marines prepare to leave on unannounced destination. It is believed these Marines will back-up the U.S. evacuation in Saigon.

Joliet inmates return to cells

JOLIET, Ill. (UPI) — More than 200 convicts seized a cell block and 12 hostages at Joliet Correctional Center Tuesday. A convict was found dead, his throat slashed, and seven persons were injured before the rebellion ended more than five hours later.

Tear gas drove most of the convicts back to their cells early in the uprising. Hours later the last 70 also returned, releasing the last nine hostages, in return for a promise three inmates would not be transferred to another prison, according to Allyn Sielaff, director of the Illinois Department of Correction.

"All prisoners have been returned to their cells and the situation is now under control," Sielaff said. "Normal disciplinary procedure will be followed."

The dead convict was identified as Herbert Catlett of Chicago, presumably slain by another convict.

Tear gas was used to put down the first stages of the rebellion which broke out at about 1:45 p.m. CDT in the west cell block of the 115-year-old prison — Illinois' oldest.

Then state police armed in full battle gear surged inside the four-story limestone walls which hold the "Old Prison's" 719 inmates, among them mass killer Richard Speck.

Sielaff said the tear gas drove most of the rebels back to their cells, but 70 of them defied the police and guards, holding up with their nine remaining hostages in a gallery of the west cell block.

Hours of negotiations, conducted by Warden Fred Finkbeiner, followed. The convicts' main demand appeared to be that three inmates, identified only as "Blair, Good and Lumpkins," not be transferred as scheduled to Menard State Prison.

They also demanded assurances that none of those who took part in the uprising be subjected to bodily harm. Finkbeiner agreed and the rebellion sputtered out.

The "Old Prison" was built in 1860 and, until the bigger Stateville Penitentiary was built five miles away in 1919, was Illinois' largest prison. Its most notorious current tenant is Richard Speck, serving a life sentence for the slaughter of eight nurses in their Chicago home in 1966.

Bloodless coup in Honduras ousts Lopez

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (UPI) — In an attempt to regain the "good name of Honduras," the armed forces Tuesday ousted Gen. Oswaldo Lopez Arellano as chief of state following his refusal to talk about a $1.25 million banana bribe allegedly paid by the U.S. United Brands company.

Army Col. Juan Alberto Melgar Castro was installed as Lopez' successor in the bloodless coup, according to a proclamation read over the nation's radio stations.

The proclamation said the coup was aimed at "restoring the good name of Honduras" in the wake of charges by United Brands it paid a $1.25 million bribe to Honduran government officials and agreed to pay another for the same amount to get banana export taxes reduced.

The military regime, which has controlled this Central American nation since a 1972 military coup led by Lopez, said it fully supported a special eight-man Honduran investigation of the bribery charges.

The commission was formed April 10, the day after United Brands admitted the bribes and the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission charged the firm — formerly known as United Fruit Co. — with concealing bribe payments to foreign officials.

Main road in Laos now in Communists' hands

VIENTIANE (UPI) — The Laotian defense minister said Tuesday heavy artillery fire drove government troops from an important junction on Highway 13 linking the twin capitals of Vientiane and Luang Prabang. He said the main north-south road is now in Communist hands.

Laos is the third Indochinese country, with Cambodia and South Vietnam to experience sudden Communist attacks this year.

Sisouk Na Champassak, a loyalist member of the coalition government headed by Prime Minister Prince Souvanna Phouma, said Laotian forces abandoned the junction at Sala Phou Koun, about 90 miles north of the administrative capital of Vientiane on Monday afternoon. He said they fell back about four miles to the south.

Sisouk said a mixed force of North Vietnamese and Communist Pathet Lao troops brought the junction under fire from 85mm field artillery and 82mm mortars, forcing the loyalists to flee.

Loss of the junction leaves the Communists in control of a section of Highway 13 and cuts off the land route to the royal capital of Luang Prabang to the loyalists. Some observers here saw little chance of loyalist troops regaining their former control of the junction.

The location is of more importance as a terrain feature than as an actual meeting of two roads. Highway 7, which joins 13, is little more than a dirt track through mountainous country to the east of Sala Phou Koun, leading toward the Communist-controlled Plain of Jars region.

The cease-fire line is supposed to be located about 10 miles east of the junction, but the two sides have argued over exact placement of the demarcation marker. Both sides have taken down temporary markers placed by the other, occasionally trading shots over the issue.

Fighting which broke out at the start of last week appeared to be timed to coincide with the Laotian New Year celebration.

Both sides have accused the other of breaking the two-year-old ceasefire. Western diplomatic sources here said they believed the loyalist's accusations carried the most weight, but that the Communists appeared to have been more aggressive in forcing a confrontation with an aim towards seizing the junction.

110 years after the Civil War

South still pays Confederate widows

ATLANTA (UPI) — Eighty-nine widows of Confederate Army soldiers still are receiving pensions 110 years after the end of the Civil War, with Alabama paying the most — $335 a month — more than the average Social Security or public welfare payment.

The last Confederate veteran died more than a decade ago, and none of the still surviving widows was ever married to a veteran during his fighting years.

But a UPI survey of state government agencies in the South showed that many veterans married younger women long after the war and these surviving widows still receive state pensions.

Ten widows receive the top-ranking Alabama pension.

Louisiana has only one widow, Mrs. Jerry R. Traylor, 98, and she nearly lost her pension.

When Louisiana put a new constitution into effect last Jan. 1, it had forgotten about Mrs. Traylor. The new constitution did not include a section providing pensions for Civil War widows. To correct the situation, the state legislature in special session passed a new law on an emergency basis to continue Mrs. Traylor's pension.

Georgia and Florida have the most surviving widows — 13 in each state. The widows in Georgia get monthly amounts of $110 each from the state. The oldest is 99 and the youngest 67.

The youngest widow in Florida is 61. Each widow in the state gets $190 a month. In the 1950s the pension law was amended to stipulate that to be eligible for a state pension, a woman had to have been married to a veteran by June 1, 1917. The law did not apply, however, to the woman who now is 61. Texas has four Civil War widows and each gets $150 a month. Arkansas has only one.

In Mississippi, 11 widows get a pension of $27.50 each month. State officials point out the women also collect Social Security.

South Carolina makes annual payments of $200 each to two widows who are less than 90 and $600 each to four widows who are over 90.

There are 12 widows in North Carolina, each getting $75 a month. In Virginia there also are 12 widows, each getting $50 a month. Virginia also pays pensions of $30 a month to daughters of Confederate veterans. Tennessee has six widows of Civil War veterans, each getting $150 a month.

Meskill confirmed as judge by Senate

• Former Connecticut Gov. Thomas J. Meskill was confirmed by the Senate Tuesday as a judge on the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. The senate voted 54-36 on the controversial nomination made by former President Richard M. Nixon just before he resigned from office last August.

• Secretary General Kurt Waldheim will address the Council on Foreign Relations in Chicago Wednesday night, the United Nations announced Tuesday.

• Dick Moores of Fairview, N. C., who draws the comic strip "Gasoline Alley," has been named outstanding cartoonist of the year by the National Cartoonists Society. Moores and 11 other cartoonists were awarded "Reuben" — the illustrators' Oscars, named after Rube Goldberg — at the society's 29th annual dinner.

• Former federal energy administrator John C. Sawhill has been named president of New York University, the nation's largest private school. Sawhill, 38, will succeed James M. Hester, who resigned after 13 years to become the first rector of the new United Nations University in Japan. Sawhill, a Princeton graduate who holds a doctorate in economics from NYU, resigned from the Federal Energy Office, which he headed for most of 1974, after a dispute with President Ford on gas tax policies.

• Quintuplets were born at General Hospital in Cincinnati Tuesday and doctors said the mother and the five babies were "doing quite well." The three girls and two boys — born four weeks premature — were the first children of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Levy of Cincinnati. "They are doing quite well for their size," said Dr. James

M. Sutherland.

• U. S. Ambassador to Israel Kenneth B. Keating is recuperating in a hospital intensive care unit from the effects of a mild heart attack, it was disclosed Tuesday. The 74-year-old diplomat, a former Republican senator from New York, was admitted to Columbia-Presbyterian Hospital in New York last Thursday after suffering chest pains.

San Francisco doctors to halt rounds

The San Francisco Medical Society said Tuesday that many doctors in San Francisco would stop making their rounds next week in a dispute over malpractice insurance and that it was setting up a plan to handle emergency medical cases. Dr. John A. Driscoll, president of the society, refused to call the threatened action a strike by the doctors. But he said "a significant proportion" of local physicians would be unable to continue practicing and they had the full backing of the society.

In Fort Lauderdale, Fla., a one-week work slowdown by anesthesiologists to protest malpractice insurance rates idled operating rooms in most hospitals. However, emergency operations were not affected.

Florida Senate will get ERA

The Florida Senate Rules Committee voted 9-7 Tuesday to send the Equal Rights Amendment to the full Senate, which is expected to kill it later this week. The Florida Senate rejected ERA 21-19 last year. The House approved it last month but a tentative count of the 40 senators showed 21 against it, 15 for it and four undecided.

Farm support bill to White House

The House Tuesday passed and sent to the White House an emergency farm support bill — but the vote fell well short of the level needed to override a promised presidential veto. The bill was approved by a 248 to 166 vote.

The one-year bill, which backers said was needed to avert a price collapse for farmers if they produce big crops, would increase 1975 supports for wheat, feed grains, cotton, soybeans and milk.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz fought the bill on the grounds it would increase the federal deficit and promote surplus production.

Allon: Kissinger talks melted the ice

Israeli Foreign Minister Yigal Allon said Tuesday his meeting with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger melted the chill in regulations between Israel and the United States since the collapse of Kissinger's Middle East peace mission. "The ice has melted," Allon said on his return to Israel from talks with Kissinger Monday in Washington. "We have moved from a distant relation toward a return to the old closeness."

Argentina prison break plot crushed

Police crushed a prison break plot Tuesday by Argentina's most sophisticated guerrilla group, killing five alleged terrorists in the industrial city of Cordoba, police sources said. The sources said police also wounded three persons and made nearly 60 arrests in breaking up a demonstration of at least 3,000 metal workers striking for the 32nd day in the Argentine steel center of Villa Constitución, 140 miles northwest of Buenos Aires.

Cordoba provincial police killed four men and a woman in a 90-minute gun battle, closing in on a small wooden house concealing an unfinished tunnel to the Cordoba penitentiary, the sources said. They said the guerrillas incited the clash by hurling two grenades at police.

head at close range. The time of death was placed between Saturday night and Sunday afternoon.

NEBERGALL SAID Dinverno was tied to a chair in the den, just off the garage entrance, by the robbers.

"They probably tied him up and asked questions as they went through the house. When they left they just blew him away. There were no signs of any torture; they just shot him in the head," Nebergall said Tuesday.

He said a safe in the den was locked. He said it is unknown whether the robbers gained entry to the safe which Dinverno used to keep personal papers.

Truck 'Rodeo' set at Arlington Park Hilton

Top drivers from Illinois trucking firms will compete for state championships in truck handling Friday and Saturday at the Arlington Park Hilton Hotel.

Drivers will compete in seven classes, ranging from straight-truck to tankers. The Rodeo course will be set up on the parking lot, and drivers will be required to make several precision maneuvers. They also will take a written test Thursday night.

Preliminary driving competition begins at 8 a.m. Friday, and finals will begin at 9 a.m. Saturday. The events are open to the public, but no seating will be provided. A parade of champions will precede the finals.

A motor equipment show will be open on the east parking lot of the hotel. The competition will end with a banquet Saturday night at the hotel. Guest speaker is Michael J. Howlett, secretary of state.

Officials expect 100 drivers to compete for the titles, and winners will go on to national competition Aug. 21-23 in Indianapolis.

New park official raps historical society project

by JILL BETTNER
Park Comm. elect Joan Brennan wants the Elk Grove Park District to drop the idea of establishing a historical society.

A committee of the park board, chaired by Comr. Shari Shapiro, has proposed creating the historical society as an arm of the park district, governed by a citizens' board of directors.

Mrs. Shapiro recently suggested that one method of financing the historical society would be for the park district to levy a museum tax. The tax would add about $1.50 to the annual tax bill for a house with an equalized assessed value of $10,000.

MRS. BRENNAN used the museum tax proposal in her campaign for the park board and defeated Mrs. Shapiro in the April 15 election.

Mrs. Brennan said when she takes her seat as a new park commissioner May 1, she will recommend that the park board scrap plans for the historical society.

"I think the best thing to do is to hear out the situation and get the climate of the board and the people of the village, but personally, I don't see it (the historical society) at this time," she said.

Mrs. Brennan said she thinks the park district and the Elk Grove Village Public Library should work together to compile local history instead of setting up a separate historical society.

"Why not look into what has been done by the library? Before I would go into any further discussions about a historical society, I would talk to them," Mrs. Brennan said.

LIBRARY BOARD Pres. Robert Fleming said administrative librarian Mary Clark started a local history film about two years ago, but "it didn't get off the ground." He said although no funds have been specifically set aside for resuming work on the film or putting together some other kind of village history, the library has not discarded the idea.

Fleming said he would be happy to discuss the proposal that the library and the park district cooperate on a local historical project.

"We work very well with the park district," Fleming said. "We'd always be glad to sit down and explore the possibilities."

Ex-Hoffman Estates president leaving prison

Roy L. Jenkins, the last of six former Hoffman Estates officials jailed for involvement in a 1963 zoning scandal, will be released today from federal prison.

Jenkins, 46, is scheduled to be released from the Community Treatment Center in Los Angeles, a transfer facility for prisoners awaiting parole. Jenkins, who served as village president from 1963 to 1969, was sent to the facility from the federal prison in Lompoc, Calif., after a parole board consented to his release in January.

The former village president will have served 16 months of a two-year sentence after he pleaded guilty in 1973 to accepting bribes from Kaufman and Broad Homes Inc. for the 1963 zoning of the firm's Barrington Square project.

JENKINS WAS a principal in the bribery scheme in which money was channeled from K&B attorney Bernard Peskin to Jenkins and five other officials. He received the longest sentence of the six.

Peskin, who was found guilty for his role in the scandal, has yet to be sentenced, pending the outcome of ap-

Other former officials already paroled include Edward Pinger, who served as the village's first president from 1959 to 1965; Herbert C. Gibson, James L. Sloan, Gerald L. Meyer and Howard J. Noble, all of whom were trustees.

The 1973 federal indictment also named K&B, which pleaded no contest to the charge and paid a $30,000 fine.

Jenkins, who moved to California after his term as village president, is expected to return to his West Coast residence upon his release.

Annex key to Biesterfield extension

The Elk Grove Village Board Tuesday night granted annexation and rezoning of a 20-acre apartment-commercial development in exchange for right-of-way that will make it possible to extend Biesterfield Road to Meacham Road.

Developer Gerald Debruyne will give the village the right-of-way and put in a street along the southern boundary of the tract, which is east of Meacham Road, west of Glenn Trail and north of Biesterfield Road as it would be extended.

The annexation and rezoning given to Debruyne eliminates the only block that has stood in the way of linking Biesterfield and Meacham roads.

VILLAGE OFFICIALS have been interested in acquiring the right-of-way mainly to provide more direct access to the Centex Homes Corp. development west of Ill. Rte. 24. Extending Biesterfield Road will make it easier for emergency vehicles to serve the area, they said. Nerge Road currently is the only main route to that portion of the village.

Village Mgr. Charles Willis said he expects work on Biesterfield Road to start within 90 days and expects the project to be completed during the summer.

Debruyne's project is to include an automotive-related business that will front on Meacham Road. The rest of the property will be developed with a maximum of 80 apartment units. The Debruyne site previously was zoned residential in Schaumburg Township.

OLD AND NEW light fixtures are part of the "Illinois Business Hall of Fame" exhibit on display at the Elk Grove Village Public Library through April 30. Library staff member Cheryl Nordlund looks over the exhibit provided by Western Illinois University that honors Max McGraw, one of the founders of McGraw-Edison Co., Rockford.

High school board members reelect Creek as president

Robert Creek was reelected president of the High School Dist. 211 Board of Education by a 6-to-0 vote of the board Tuesday night.

Creek, 1601 Appleby Rd., Inverness, has served as president since his election to the board in 1970. Creek is vice president-administration for Union Oil Co., Palatine Township.

Board Member Edward Perry explained his vote for Creek, saying although several board members are qualified for the presidency, "None of them have the resources and expertise in the many fields that you have."

Board member Anna Countryman, who was elected to a second term April 12, will continue to serve as the board's representative at Ed-Red, a legislative lobbying body for area school boards.

Board member Jean Fister will continued to serve as the board's representative on the Northwest Educational Cooperative governing board. Board member Robert Seger will continue as the representative to Ed-Red, a legislative lobbying body for area school boards.

Robert Creek

Little distress in Northwest suburbs: banker

Consumer paying bills despite slump

by STEVE NOVICK

People are paying their bills in spite of current economic trends, a variety of credit managers and bankers report.

Providing credit to the consumer is an expensive proposition, they add, but the extension of credit to customers still has its advantages for business.

"The consumer is very much responsible," said a spokesman for Sears Roebuck & Co. Charge accounts in default during 1974 were .58 per cent. An account in default is defined by Sears as one where less than one month's payment has been made in six months.

"WE'RE TALKING about 21 million accounts" in the country the spokesman added. Those in default total about 8,300.

"We have more (accounts in default) now than a year ago, but they're not up alarmingly," he said. "There's improvement in the last few weeks which could indicate it (the increase in defaults) is bottoming out. But there's not enough information to make a definite determination."

Sears said the number of accounts in default has always been minimal and cites figures. The 1973 figure of .53 per cent was termed "very favorable." Other figures are .63 per cent for 1970; .66 per cent for 1971; and .53 per cent for 1972.

Al Hogan, national credit card manager for Shell Oil Co.

in Tulsa, said, "Amazingly, it (delinquency) is holding relatively steady. Our delinquency is no higher than it was (a year ago) and lower than projected."

Shell defines delinquency as any account that is even slightly past due. "Currently 70 to 75 per cent are paying on time," Hogan said.

"THE REASON is that a lot of people who have been laid off were covered by unemployment insurance provided through their union," he added. "The consumer is an intelligent animal, saw some of this coming and kept payments coming."

Hogan said the rate of delinquency will vary across the country proportionate to the local rate of unemployment "which would make me think a little less optimistically about Detroit."

"We see very little distress in the Northwest suburbs," Gerald Fitzgerald, board chairman of the Suburban Bank group, said about default on installment loans. "It's up fractionally and we're very alert to it, looking for trends."

John Heddens, executive vice president of the First National Bank of Des Plaines, said, "We have noticed a slight increase in delinquencies at the personal loan level; car loans, etc. We give them a call and generally it's a temporary situation."

ELK GROVE BANK Pres. James Lancaster said delinquency is not any higher on loans because when one is past due bank officers are making a greater effort to collect the money.

Most bankers agree that if a payment can't be made, alternative arrangements can be made. It is wise to contact the bank and explain why you can't pay.

Many people interviewed said the consumer often does not realize the cost of providing credit when they use their charge card and see an 18 per cent interest rate or take out an installment loan and see a rate of between 11 and 13 per cent.

"The cost of giving credit depends on how charges are made. In terms of tying up capital, giving credit is never profitable," said Hogan about retailing. "Whatever you charge, the cost of handling is holding relatively steady. We never think of a basis where a credit charge has offset costs."

SEARS DOCUMENTS its positions after saying, "Anything less than 18 per cent is a losing battle. We feel we can live with 18 per cent."

Sears emphasizes that a $100 purchase paid off over a one-year period cost $9.02 in service charges based on a 1.5 per cent per month interest rate. The cost of providing a charge account is then spelled out showing the company's costs to borrow money, make credit investigations, collection expense and losses, data processing, personnel costs and rent for office space where a credit department operates.

Sears cited one study in which the cost of providing revolving credit was $1.29 cents for every dollar of finance charge revenue paid in by the customer.

A local banker showed a chart where the average cost of administering an installment loan was $50.20 and the cost to the bank was $2.92 per payment made by a customer.

ON THAT BASIS the bank breaks even on a 24-month loan made for $1,261 at an 11 per cent effective rate and begins to make money only if the loan is larger.

The banker asked why large retailers are fighting so hard to maintain their charge accounts as opposed to letting customers use their banks or bank cards for credit.

"We maintain charge accounts as a matter of convenience as much as anything else," Sears' spokesman answered. "If a person has a Sears charge he associated himself with us and it brings him in. We wouldn't get him any other way. If he had a bank card as an alternative he could shop at any other place."

Charge accounts are "a good sales promotion too," he added. "They give us a captive audience to which we can send millions of ads which get a free ride."

Dow off 1.72 to 814.14

Market edges slightly down ward

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices moved slightly lower Tuesday on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which climbed more than eight points in the first hour, closed behind 1.72 to 814.14. The blue chip indicator gained 7.43 Monday.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index lost 0.14 to 87.09. The average price of a New York Stock Exchange common share fell six cents. Declines outnumbered advances, 761 to 600, among the 1,842 issues traded after trailing winning issues by a wide margin most of the day.

Volume totaled 26,120,000 shares, compared with 23,960,000 turned over Monday.

The blue chips and glamors, leaders in the early advance, weakened, while most of the oils turned mixed.

American Telephone & Telegraph warrants paced the actives, up 1/8 to 1/2 on 627,000 traded. Polaroid was second, down 2 1/2 to 476,500 shares. The company said it does not expect its SX-70 camera to show a profit this year.

Commonwealth Oil Refining Co. followed, off 5/8 to 11 on 276,400 shares. Tesoro Petroleum, which eased 1/2, last week offered to buy 38 per cent of Commonwealth's common.

Motors and chemicals were fractionally higher, while the rails, airlines and aircrafts moved less than a point in either direction.

Bucking the general market trend, the gold issues rose, although the price of bullion dropped on foreign markets. ASA Ltd., picked up 3-5/8, Dome Mines 2-1/8, Homestake Mining 1-7/8, and Campbell Red Lake 7/8.

Prices closed slightly lower on the American Stock Exchange in moderate trading. Volume amounted to 2,714,000 shares, against 2,751,000 shares Monday. The average price of an Amex common share rose one cent.

Searle Biochemics plant to close soon

Searle Biochemics of Arlington Heights will close about May 31, Ted Craig, director of marketing, said Tuesday.

"Lack of business" was the reason given for closing the company, which produces enzymes used in food processing.

Craig said there are 30 employees at the firm and only those who cannot be placed in other divisions of the parent company, G. D. Searle & Co., will be laid off.

Many will not be let go, he said, adding they'll be employed by other divisions involving pharmaceuticals, diagnostics and sweeteners.

Amersham Searle Corp., which shares the building with the biochemics operation, is unaffected by the closing, Craig added.

Walker signs tax-relief bill for the elderly

Gov. Daniel Walker Tuesday signed into law a $34 million tax-relief bill which will provide cash grants of $50 to $100 to low-income elderly and disabled taxpayers.

Walker said the Dept. of Revenue will begin issuing checks "as soon as possible." He said persons who already have applied for tax relief under the homestead exemption providing property-tax relief for the elderly automatically will get the new tax relief.

Under the plan, persons 65 or older or disabled who earn less than $10,000 a year may apply to the Dept. of Revenue for cash grants based on the size of their income. The bill creating the program was nearly identical to one vetoed by Walker in January.

Chicago policeman guilty

A federal court jury Tuesday found suspended Chicago policeman Charles Younger guilty of possession of stolen property.

Younger, 31, was convicted along with Willie Lee Jones, 29, of Chicago, of possession of 33 television sets which were stolen from a trailer truck in March 1974. Younger also is awaiting trial on murder and armed-robbery charges in unrelated cases.

Bargaining bill in Senate

A collective bargaining bill for public employees has gone to the Illinois Senate for approval.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Thomas Hanahan, D-McHenry, passed the State House Monday, 116 to 29. The bill prohibits strikes by police, firemen, prison guards and security workers but allows any other group of public employees to strike once mediation procedures have been exhausted.

The bill also creates a state Labor Relations Board to oversee union formation and labor disputes. Similar bills have died in the Illinois Senate in the past.

Also before the Senate is a proposal to increase workmen's compensation benefits. The bill cleared the Senate Labor and Commerce Committee, 7-to-3.

City to hire more police

Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley said Tuesday the city will abide by a federal court order to hire 200 new black and Latino policemen, but repeated a challenge to federal agencies to reveal the racial makeup of their local staffs.

The mayor also said a ruling by U.S. District Court Judge Prentice H. Marshall was "unfortunate." Marshall ruled Monday that $76 million in federal revenue-sharing funds for Chicago would continue to be withheld because of alleged discrimination in the city police department.

Marshall also ordered that the city must hire by June 2, 100 blacks or Latinos, 67 whites and 33 women. Daley said the city would abide by the order, but added, "How many blacks are in Marshall's courtroom? In the federal drug division? In the FBI? If it's good enough for the city it should be good enough for the federal government."

Jobless-aid bill killed

The Illinois House Tuesday defeated a bill to double unemployment benefits and to drop the current one-week waiting period.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. E. J. Giorgi, D-Rockford, fell eight votes short on an 81-to-65 roll call. Similar measures still are alive in the General Assembly.

Quasar closing plant

The Quasar Electronics Corp. announced Tuesday it will close its Pontiac plant at the end of May, putting some 200 persons out of work.

However, the company said it will expand operations at its Franklin Park plant and is calling laid-off employees there back to work.

The company said some of the Pontiac employees will be offered jobs at the Franklin Park plant.

Illinois briefs

Lake project 'too costly'

The proposed Lake Springer project near Decatur would cost more than it's worth, U.S. Sen. Charles Percy said Tuesday.

Percy said he has received a report from the U.S. General Accounting Office, the Congress's watchdog agency, questioning the value of the project which has been proposed by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. Because of the questions he said he will recommend that the project not be funded by the federal government this year.

Body found in garbage

Chicago police Tuesday found the body of a 73-year-old woman who had

GOV. DANIEL WALKER met with senior citizens in Chicago Tuesday to explain the $34 million tax relief bill he signed into law earlier in the day.

been dead for weeks in a garbage-filled bungalow where her 30-year-old daughter was still living.

Police said the body of Josephine Novak was lying face down on the floor of a bedroom. Investigators said Mrs. Novak's daughter, Sharon, was in such a "poor mental condition" that she could not tell them how her mother died.

Sgt. Rocco Rinaldi said the house "was piled from wall to wall and floor to ceiling with garbage. It would take 30 years to accumulate all this garbage."

Rock Island cuts 200

Ex-Gov. Reagan to speak at Crane testimonial

Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan will be the guest speaker at a testimonial dinner for U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, May 7.

The $50-a-plate dinner will be held at the Chicago Marriott Motor Hotel, 8335 W. Higgins Rd., Chicago. Proceeds from the dinner will be used to help pay expenses of Crane's three congressional offices, according to the congressman's staff.

Reagan has been named by Crane as his leading choice for the Republican nomination for the presidency in 1976.

James Kemper Jr., president of the Kemper Insurance Group, Long Grove, is chairman for the dinner. Kemper said Reagan's acceptance of the invitation to speak at the dinner "is a tribute to Phil Crane's stature in Republican Party circles."

McCarthy at Oakton

Former Democratic senator Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota, an independent candidate for president in 1976, will speak at Oakton Community College in Morton Grove tonight.

McCarthy's address will deal with the impact on the U.S. history of Alexis de Tocqueville, French political scientist who wrote extensive analyses of revolutionary America. Following his talk, he will answer questions.

McCarthy's appearance is being sponsored by a group called the 12th Congressional District McCarthy & 76, of which Mrs. Kenneth Worthington of Elk Grove Village is secretary.

Jenner to address LWV

Albert Jenner Jr., of Chicago, who served as minority counsel to the House Judiciary Committee during the Watergate investigation, and Gov. Daniel Walker will be guests at the state convention of the Illinois League of Women Voters this weekend at the O'Hare Inn, Rosemont.

Walker and Jenner will both appear at the league's annual banquet at 7:30 p.m. Saturday at the inn. Jenner, who will be the featured speaker, will speak on the topic, "Impeachment of President — The Restoration of Our Free and Open Society."

The convention opens at 9 a.m. Friday and will close at 12:30 p.m. Sunday.

Dems to elect officers

Palatine Township Democrats will elect officers and a board of directors at their April meeting Monday evening.

The meeting will be held at 8 p.m. at the Palatine Township Hall, 37 N. Plum Grove Rd., Palatine.

Change in tax ratio hit

The Illinois State Chamber of Commerce is seeking to organize opposition to two resolutions in the state House of Representatives which call for referendums on changing the constitutional ratio between corporate and individual income taxes.

The 1970 state constitution established a mandatory 8 to 5 ratio between the taxes on corporations and those on individuals. Currently corporations are taxed at 4 per cent and individuals at 2 1/2 per cent.

Representatives Clyde L. Choate, D-Ana, and Guy Stubblefield, D-Rockford, are sponsors of separate House resolutions seeking to amend the constitution to eliminate that ratio.

Lester W. Brann Jr., president of the 19,000-member chamber, said,

"It's time the average citizen finally recognizes that the economic impact of an increased business tax is really on the buying public."

Variation of an old method

'Heimlich Hug' can be lifesaver

by KAREN BLECHA

It takes only four to six minutes for a person choking on a piece of food to turn from blue to dead — unless you and the Heimlich Hug can save him.

The Heimlich Hug, introduced last year by Dr. Henry J. Heimlich of Ohio, is a technique anyone with two strong arms and quick thinking can use to save a choking person's life. The concept is simple: get behind the victim, squeeze and push the food blocking the windpipe out of the person's mouth.

"This is a variation of a very old theme," said Bonnie Quinn, mobile intensive care nurse at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights. "People have been doing resuscitating for 200 years — they used to lay choking people over horses, roll them over barrels and tie them upside down and shake them."

Today the hug is the "thing," and according to reports from across the country, it is working to save lives. Some examples:

- A doctor read about the maneuver and used it the next night to save a fellow guest at a Rotary dinner from choking on a piece of steak.

- A man camping with his family in the wilderness used the Hug when his three-year-old daughter choked on a piece of chicken and turned blue. After four or five tries, the chicken was dislodged.

- A man choking on a piece of lettuce ran into his backyard so his young son and daughter wouldn't see him die. His wife ran after him, grabbed him around the abdomen and squeezed hard, releasing the lettuce.

You do the Heimlich Hug this way: Stand behind the victim and wrap your arms around his waist. Grasp your fist with your other hand and place the fist against the victim's abdomen, slightly above the navel and below the rib cage. Press your fist into the victim's abdomen with a quick upward thrust. Repeat if necessary.

If the victim has collapsed on the floor, turn him on his back. Facing the victim, kneel astride his hips. With one hand on top of the other, place them on the abdomen and press into it with a quick upward thrust.

Mrs. Quinn said the quick move compresses the diaphragm, sending air back up the trachea and forcing the lodged piece of food out of the victim's mouth.

MRS. QUINN STRESSED the Hug must be done within the first four to six minutes. After that, a patient dies or suffers irreversible brain damage. Sometimes, she said, people assume a person is having a heart attack instead of choking.

"Sometimes it is difficult to tell the difference," she said. "The person choking will usually be talking, eating and not paying attention to what he is doing. Then he will turn blue, be unable to speak, grab his throat and pass out within a minute or two."

"If you see a person and can't tell if it is a heart attack or choking, try the Heimlich maneuver. Even if it doesn't work all the time at least you've tried something. You've got nothing to lose," she said.

The only drawback to the Heimlich Hug, she said, is a person who has his hands too high on the victim could crack the sternum.

BECAUSE THE NORTHWEST suburbs has paramedics, Mrs. Quinn advises if someone is choking, give the Hug and have someone else call the fire department. If you and the victim are alone, use the Hug before the telephone.

She advised the person choking alone to throw himself over the back of a chair or bed headboard, hitting the abdomen as he falls.

Literature describing the technique is available at Northwest Community. Dr. Stanley Zydlo, head of emergency services at the hospital, said he has offered to demonstrate the technique for restaurant employees.

Herald opinion

Let's reopen local theater

There's no reason why outstanding theaters — such as the now-dark Arlington Park Theater — should not survive and flourish in the suburbs.

After all, Arlington Park Theater, during its four years of productions, has drawn from a potential audience of perhaps 200,000 persons within a 12-mile radius, as well as the large Chicago theater audience.

But — as was demonstrated ten days ago when the theater turned off its footlights, at least temporarily and perhaps permanently — a potential mass audience is no guarantee that quality professional theater will survive in the Northwest suburbs.

As the theater's producer, David Lonn, pointed out, Hilton Corp. has terminated the lease because of the theater's inability to produce enough revenue to meet commitments. We wonder if Hilton, by forcing a high-price ticket policy, isn't contributing somewhat to killing off its own quality theater.

Perhaps the most substantial reason for the theater's failure, however, is that its message of quality somehow never influenced those of us who live within easy driving distance.

The likes of Art Carney, Jack Warden, Roy Dotrice and Michael Redgrave have played at the Arlington Park, as have "Death of a Salesman," "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" and "Dance on a Country Grave." Yet now, Arlington Park is dark.

An obvious point for the next management is that the public needs to be educated that quality theater in today's market is probably going to be somewhat expensive.

The public must understand that its rejection of the high-level and high-cost drama may bring in other interests which will produce frothy comedies, complete with over-the-hill stars, for public consumption. Under these conditions, serious drama will be the loser.

We encourage the speedy renegotiation of a rental agreement to guarantee the public of top-flight theater in the Northwest suburbs. The theater plans to reopen briefly this summer to honor the contract commitments to famed actress Claudette Colbert, but its existence after that is uncertain. For the sake of good theater in the Chicago area, we hope the Arlington Park Theater reopens quickly on a permanent basis.

'We're cutting U.S. aid to U.S.'

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON — I hear reports, as yet unconfirmed, of a move in Congress to cut off American military aid to the United States.

One senator, believed to be privy to the plan, refused to tell me whether such a step was imminent. He did, however, express serious doubts about the effectiveness of the military aid program in this country.

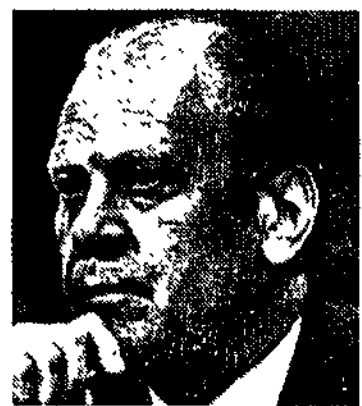

"Since World War II, Congress has approved billions of dollars in military aid to the United States, and what has it accomplished? A stalemate in Korea and a withdrawal from Vietnam," he said.

"How much longer should we go on pouring money into a program that never produces conclusive results?"

I said, "President Ford and Pentagon officials claim that U.S. aid is vital to America's defense. Without it, we would be unable to deter aggression."

The senator, who refused to identify himself and whom I was unable to recognize, disputed that assumption.

GERALD FORD

"I say that continuation of military aid to the United States should be predicated on the willingness of the American people to defend themselves," he said.

"How many private citizens do you find buying ballistic missiles, practicing close-order drill and otherwise preparing themselves to repeal aggression?"

"The fact is, I fear, that the people have become so dependent on U.S. military aid it has weakened their resolve to provide their own defenses."

I pointed out that the aid program works two ways.

"Don't forget that supplying military aid to the United States gives our armed forces access to vital American military bases," I said.

"If Congress were to cut off the program, they would have to operate from bases in Europe, Asia and South America."

The senator, whoever he was, was not overly concerned by that prospect. "Strategically," he said, "the importance of the United States in America's overall defensive capability is a moot point."

"In modern warfare, with its long-range missiles, we probably could defend the country better overseas than we could here at home."

I said, "But what of the political impact? Wouldn't cutting off military aid to the United States undermine the confidence of America's allies, thus weakening NATO and other western alliances?"

"To the contrary," the senator replied. "It would give us more funds with which to fulfill our military commitments abroad."

There is, however, one other danger that he apparently overlooked. If Congress cut off military aid to the United States, America might turn to the Soviet Union for assistance.

'It wasn't worst-run election'

After reading Wednesday's and Thursday's papers, I decided to write you about Tuesday's election in Rolling Meadows. I served as an election judge and feel that I am in a position to comment on some of the statements made in your news stories.

First, the matter of Mayor Meyer talking about the conduct of the election — calling it "the worst-run election" in the city in the last eight years. I strongly object to that statement. Four other judges and myself served at Carl Sandburg Junior High, Ward 3, Precinct 1. Far from being "the worst-run election," I would like to comment on the honesty of this election. All of the judges went to school on Saturday learning how to run the polls. We were there continuously from 5:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. We spent most of the time reading a booklet supplied by the state concerning the conduct of elections and I will question anyone accusing us of conducting "the worst-run election" in the city.

The confusion I think the Mayor might be referring to was that not all of the voters in each precinct had their voting cards in the right binder in the right precinct. Let me explain what this meant. In the winter when the city was redistricted, it was the clerk's job, and I assume the deputy clerk helped her, to get the cards for each voter in each precinct in the right binder. I can truly sympathize with these women. In doing church work at one time I had the job of putting all of the homes in Rolling Meadows in certain areas and, if you will excuse the pun, it's really a job for the "birds." I can truly understand how it would be very easy for these women to get these cards in the wrong binders. If they were using the maps that the city put out in the official newsletter telling the voters where to go to vote, I can even sympathize more. I live on Jay Lane, and if you go to that map, our street was not even there, so how could they expect the clerks to find it. Now assuming that they did make legitimate mistakes and the voter showed up to vote, he was allowed to vote by affidavit. It took a little extra time, but he was not turned away or did not lose his right to vote.

The problem arose when the voter came to the wrong precinct to vote. Please do not blame the clerk or the deputy clerk for this. The job to get the voter to the right precinct to cast his vote lies with the men who are running for public office and the city to provide this information to the voters. It seems to me that men running for public office should be anxious enough for the person's vote to go to each home and tell them that they were redistricted and just where they should cast their vote. May I add here that on two occasions Mr. Rock and Mr. Zeller personally came to my door and told me where I was to vote so I feel that they did the right thing by me. However, there were several voters who came to Sandburg and told us they had not seen any of the men who were running for office and had not received any literature telling them where to vote. Also there were several people who had called City Hall on election day and were told by the people manning the phones that they were to come to Sandburg to vote and they definitely were not in that precinct. These were the people who lost their votes — those who came to the wrong precinct to vote. We could not let them vote in our precinct. They had to go to the right precinct. If they got tired of going from one place to another some official running for office lost that vote.

If any blame is to be placed, let us put it where it belongs — on the men running for elected office, on the people in charge of proofreading the city newsletter, and on the people manning the phones at City Hall on election day.

Now about a recount. When the polls closed at 6 p.m., there were five judges, and Mayor Meyer and Mr. Miseska each had a poll watcher there to watch us count the votes. I challenge anyone to claim we did a bad job. After reading that book for 13 hours we knew it backward and forward and it was a perfect job. The money spent for a recount would be wasted money. I can assure you that if anyone wants to see an honest election they should come and watch Rolling Meadows in action. I can assure you that I speak for all the precincts since I knew many of the judges at the school and they all are upstanding citizens of our community.

Fence post

letters to the editor

Reader rips Herald high school coverage

I must agree with a recent Fence Post letter by Mrs. J. C. Abel, Arlington Heights. Mrs. Abel pointed out that your local news of Wheeling High School does not always recognize that its students live in other communities.

Whereas my family lives in Buffalo Grove, our children attend Dist. 214, Wheeling High School, and Dist. 21, London Junior High School and Tarkington Grade School. Since all of these schools are in the corporate limits of Wheeling, the news thereon, is usually restricted to the Wheeling edition of The Herald. Residents of Buffalo Grove and/or Arlington Heights and/or Mount Prospect cannot enjoy learning of their children's school projects through the local news media.

Conversely, since the schools are in municipalities different from residence, the children are not always kept up to date on particular civic events in their "hometown." (I had pointed out these facts to the boards of education a few years ago when they were considering redistricting school attendance boundary lines.)

I therefore believe it is most imperative that The Herald recognize this conflict of school attendance boundary lines and municipality boundary lines and make every effort to incorporate "front page" news of mutual interest and concern for all of its readers.

The almanac

Today is Wednesday, April 23, the 113th day of 1975 with 252 to follow. The moon is approaching its full phase.

The morning stars are Mars and Jupiter.

The evening stars are Mercury, Venus and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Taurus.

English dramatist and poet William Shakespeare was born April 23, 1564.

On this day in history:

- In 1890, the U.S. government asked for 125,000 volunteers to fight against Spain in Cuba.

- In 1917, almost every performer stepped forward at a mass rally in New York City when asked to volunteer to entertain the troops overseas in World War I.

- In 1941, thousands attending an "America First" rally in New York City heard Charles Lindbergh say, "It is obvious that England is losing the war." The noted aviator opposed American entry into World War II.

- In 1965, more than 200 U.S. planes struck North Vietnam in one of the heaviest raids of the war.

A thought for the day: Roman poet Horace said, "The brief span of life forbids us to cherish long hope."

Retirement of Justice Douglas could be forced by poor health

by TOM TIEDE

WASHINGTON — For anyone who has followed the remarkably vigorous career of Justice William O. Douglas, the sight of him on the bench today holds little joy. Hospitalized by a stroke for 1 weeks and left without the full use of an arm and leg, the 76-year-old jurist must be wheeled to his work and, when there, sits pale and fragile. His mental capacities apparently remain redoubtable, but the strength is gone and with it perhaps his invulnerability to time and events.

No one at the Supreme Court says anything for public consumption, the body being the most historically confidential in America, but privately the talk is that Douglas may be forced or even asked to step down. With all respect, some say the court is too important to function with anything less than total resources; besides, a question arises here of a good man's life.

The thought of a retiring Douglas pleases only his critics, of course. Others hold the old man most dear. Once the first choice of Franklin Roosevelt for vice president (Harry Truman was second), Douglas refused in order to better pursue his ideas on constitutional "keeping the government off the backs of the people." To this end he has served on the high court longer than any justice in history — 36 years — and has recorded his dissent of government interference in fully one-quarter of all the opinions ever produced by the Court.

Even his critics will admit the man has been tenacious, skillful and tireless in calling the shots as he sees them. So convinced has he been of right vs. wrong, actually, that he does not even look at some of the shots he calls. As regards blue movies, for example, often shown during hearings of pornographic matters, Douglas has normally declined to attend because of his belief that all forms of expression, even obscene, are protected.

Such conviction is not easily lost in a democracy, say friends of the justice, particularly not at this time. Since Richard Nixon's appointment, the court has tilted 5-4 to the right and the worry is Gerald Ford, if given the chance, would make it 6-3. Already the court liberals are rumored to be avoiding crucial First Amendment cases for fear of losing philosophical ground. "If Douglas leaves," says a court veteran, "the Burger court might completely rewrite the Warren court record."

Ideologic concerns aside, though, the question of the justice's future will not abate until or unless the threats to his health do. For his part, Douglas says the thought of retirement has "never entered my mind," but it has the minds of others. Court sources remind that, though justices are appointed for life and cannot be fired, they can be eased out if the need to do so is overwhelming. Stephen Field, the jurist who held the court longevity record prior to Douglas, retired (at a weakened 81) only after his peers quietly requested it.

There is as yet no thought of, nor any immediately overwhelming reason for, the Burger court requesting Douglas' retirement. Though absent from the bench for almost three months, he contributed opinions from his hospital room — and now is again working full time. "Except for the paralysis," says a court aide, "he's almost like he was before. I mean industrious. If you ask me, I'd rather see the other eight retire before him."

Events, however, may eventually force the justice to step down. If it becomes a question of his life or his job, for example, one can't help thinking it would be better to lose the man's decisions than the man himself. His chair in court can be filled, possibly by a woman, which would please him, but his place among us should be preserved as long as possible.

Advertiser battles TV violence, wins!

by BARRY SIGALE
Leo Stanton Singer put his money — about $2 million — where his mouth is and the result may be better television for you and me.

Eleven days ago, the National Assn. of Broadcasters adopted new family-viewing standards that would ban "inappropriate" programming from being shown from 6 to 8 p.m. A large measure of credit in getting the ruling to its final stage must go to the president and founder of the Miracle White Co. of Chicago.

"It's a step in the right direction but I'm not satisfied," says the personable Singer of the NAB decision. "After 9 (eastern time) is progress. Not at all would be better."

Singer is infuriated about the amount of violence shown on television. Shows for children are doing wonders in building a learning foundation, he says, but adult fare is teaching destruction to the impressionable youth of the nation.

CONSIDER THE following. A 14-year-old boy is watching a bloody knife murder on television. His 12-year-old sister protests, too loudly, he thinks, so he stabs her to death with a bread knife. In "Born Innocent," a made-for-television special movie, a woman is sexually assaulted with a broomstick. The next day, in San Francisco, several teen-agers assaulted a woman in the same manner.

The instructional violence doesn't stop there, says Singer. In the movies, particularly tasteless scenes are reenacted on the streets. Kidnappers cut off the ear of a dead woman and send it to the captive's parents to make it look like they mean business. Criminals pulled the same stunt with John Paul Getty's grandson not too long after. And a woman suffers severe burns when her assailant tries to pour a poisonous dose of liquid Drano down her throat, ala Magnum Force.

"The newspapers print only the bizarre incidences," says Singer of the bloodshed that has spilled in the streets as a direct result, he feels, of what people see on their screens. "The media doesn't print the half of it. The amount of incidences going on is fierce. I know what's going on because people have written me. One hundred thousand of them."

That's where the $2 million comes in. One night, in 1973, Singer was turning the dial looking for a good program to watch. Within a matter of moments, he realized something very strange was happening. Simultaneously, in each frame, a man with a gun was committing some form of violence. Guns were blazing and bodies falling.

"I thought my picture had frozen," says Singer 60. "On rechecking, I realized my picture had not frozen."

ABANDONING his television set, Singer got comfortable with his evening newspaper, looking for some diversion from what he had just seen. He was shocked.

"There was a story about a Chicago woman who was burned to death in Boston. Her car was out of gas and she had gone for a can of gasoline. When she got back, some teen-agers forced her to douse herself with the gasoline, lit a match and burned her to death. This was three nights after "Fuzz" was shown on television." In that movie, a derelict was killed in exactly the same manner.

Singer got the picture. "Mind pollution, possibly more serious to the nation than water pollution," he decided, was turning man against his fellow man. Excessive bloodshed for the purpose of shock value is permeating the airwaves and should be stopped, he said.

So Singer made a monumental declaration, unusual for an advertiser who is out to reach the largest audiences possible, no matter, really, what the show is all about. He was pulling his $2 million in advertising off shows he felt were swimming in violence.

HE ORDERED his advertising agency, Needham Harper & Steers, to stop pushing his detergent products on Kojak, Police Story and Hawaii Five-O, thoroughly and disgustingly violent programs, he says, and find something more suitable for framing.

People who watch those shows, says Singer, emulate its content. "It's monkey see, monkey do. They show how to commit murder and crime and that kind of fun. I wanted to advertise on shows that are good, that will improve things."

Singer, now dubbed Mr. Clean, a playful title relating to his attitude and his product, received tremendous publicity for his actions and a massive reader response that almost to the letter expressed support for his counter-attack on the most powerful medium. A snowballing effect was the result.

"I was told by people in the television industry, from cameramen to announcers to heads of stations that they tried unsuccessfully to clean up television," says Singer. "Viewers told me they, too, tried unsuccessfully. I've been told by government officials that they've tried unsuccessfully. But no one has publicly stated what they think television should be. As an advertiser, people will listen to me."

SINGER TOOK his message across country, through dozens of television talk shows and newspaper interviews. He testified before a congressional committee in Washington. A couple of scrapbooks chronicle his tale. He became a focal point for disgruntled television watchers.

"The impact was always lost because people didn't know who to write to," says Singer modestly. "The FCC, the President, their congressman, their senator. Government doesn't have one place people can write." So, "my name became a by-word."

If a major campaign has been mounted, why haven't extremely violent shows been taken off the air? It's the people's fault, says Singer. They'll watch just about anything and do. So the advertisers, playing the important numbers game, ride with the winners.

It's a shame, contends Singer. "Television can be very good and has proven itself to be very good," he says. "There is an alternative. We can have action shows without violence. Television is the most powerful medium we have, we saw that in Watergate. We need to improve the taste."

STILL, SINGER believes he and his followers have had an impact. And he got mileage off his campaign. "Some people who like violence wrote and said, 'why don't you get lost?' It took guts to do what I did even though I opened myself up to a lot of criticism."

Singer may have accidentally got into a battle with television but his earlier charitable or fund-raising ventures were well thought out and effective. He's done things for children in Chicago and for war veterans, especially of the Vietnam war, of which he did not approve.

News of the imminent demise of South Vietnam bothers him. "It's a shame," he says. "I don't agree with fighting and I didn't agree with being there."

ULTIMATELY, HE turned to television programming for his most important salvos. Most shows are good, he found, but a lot were bad. "How many of your children at 18 months could count to 20 or recognize when printed in any order the entire alphabet? The criminal act is portrayed in such detail and in most cases carried out with such cleverness..."

Singer says even if the reenactment of crimes on the street happens to the other guy, "can we care so little about our fellow man's life that we casually slough off pain and death and human suffering? Can we be so callous to violence that we brush it aside and never give it a second thought?"

Some people claim it is the right of every viewer to decide what he should or shouldn't watch, just by flicking the dial. But, Singer pleads, "who's going to protect me from all those other children watching and learning from those (violent) programs?"

So television has limited its controversial hours until 8 o'clock and later and it was amidst a mailing-spree led by Singer. He sent FCC chairman Richard E. Wiley 100,000 letters he received from concerned viewers. Such a massive outpouring of opinion was, finally, impossible for the powers-that-be to ignore.

UNDER THAT huge stack of mail best friends anti-violence tele-viewers have had. is Leo Stanton Singer, one of the

Foe of mayhem on TV prefers low-key shows

Leo S. Singer hasn't got much time to watch television because he has to tend to his extremely successful detergent-producing firm. But, when the outspoken critic of television violence goes turn to the tube he more than likely switches on a game show, talk show or sporting event. His other favorites include:

- "Emergency." One of the great shows and realistic. Entertaining, it's got everything, emotions, the whole bit.
- "Marcus Welby, M.D."
- "The Carol Burnett Show."
- Johnny Carson and Merv Griffin. "People, successful people."

Savage throws perfect game in Mid-Suburban!

A Herald Staff Report

It couldn't have been a more perfect day for George Savage.

While his Prospect teammates supplied him with a bevy of runs Tuesday, the veteran lefty mowed down one Rolling Meadows batter after another, a total of 21 in all, for a 9-0 victory and the first perfect game in the history of the Mid-Suburban League.

Savage topped off his superlative mound effort with a perfect day at the plate — a two-for-two showing and a pair of RBIs — as the Knights notched their third triumph in five outings this spring.

"He stayed with his fast ball mostly, kept it low, and threw enough curves to keep 'em off balance," observed Prospect coach Larry Pohlman afterwards. Pohlman noted that his senior letterman tossed only 73 pitches all afternoon.

The Knights supplied him with more than enough runs in the first inning, scoring five times on only one hit. Three walks, a hit batsman and a couple of Mustang miscues had three Knights of coming across before Savage stepped to the plate and ripped a two-run single to cap the rally.

In the sixth, for good measure, a walk and singles by Dave Landes and Mike Lapowich made it 6-0. After another walk, Paul Baranowski doubled home two more runners and Mike Quade finished things up by scoring on a fielder's choice.

Savage was tapped for six flyouts and eight groundouts, throwing out four of the runners himself. He fanned seven including all-star Meadows catcher Steve Brettle twice... once to end the game.

TOWNSEND STOPS PALATINE

Dar Townsend checked veteran, hard-hitting Palatine on five hits, striking out eight while tying the knot on Arlington's fourth straight victory, 4-1.

Although Palatine ended his successive scoreless streak at eight innings, Townsend kept the Pirates guessing with a variety of speeds and breaking pitches and contributed offensively as well with a double and a run batted in.

The triumphant Cardinals scored what proved to be the two winning runs in the first inning when Jim Vogts reached on an error, Jerry DeSimone stroked a single and both Brett Frase and Townsend followed with back-to-back, run-scoring fielder's choices.

Palatine got one of the runs back in the second when Jim Lubinski walked, advanced to second on Jim Herbst's sacrifice bunt and tallied on Dan McSweeney's booming double to straightaway centerfield.

But Arlington solved Palatine hurler Rob Hughes for an insurance run in the fourth on John Vukovich's towering triple to rightcenter and Don Stebbins' sacrifice fly to left and closed out the scoring in the sixth on Townsend's double and Rick Purcell's run-scoring single.

COUGARS HANDLE FALCONS

The Conant Cougars rode the five hit pitching of Bill Anderson and a two-run double by Joe Calomino to a 3-2 MSL victory over Forest View.

Anderson, who opened the season with a win against Palatine, came back with a six strikeout effort as he was treated to a 3-0 lead by his teammates.

The trio of runs all came in the third inning as the Cougars bunched four hits together.

Dan Newsold and Corey Rathman got on base with singles, Rathman popping a hum over charging Falcon third baseman Dave Fulton. Calomino then ripped his double to right to drive in the first two and later scored when Marty Laquet dumped another double into left field.

Falcon starter Keith Mallan had an impressive start, fanning four in the first two innings, and after the rocky third inning allowed only two more hits.

Forest View, whose record slipped to 1-2, cut into the lead in the fourth to second on a sacrifice and scored when rightfielder Bill Simon tore a single down the left field line.

The Falcons' final run came two innings later when Turner, Mallan and Simon each singled with Turner getting the marker.

WHEELING WINS, 5-2

Rich Reese slammed a two-out, bases-loaded triple in the 10th inning to back up Keith Pecka's dandy pitching performance as Wheeling knocked off hosting Buffalo Grove 5-2 in overtime.

The long shot to right field came off Bison reliever Rich Brinsmade after Dave Smithern of the hosts and Pecka had battled to a standoff through the first nine frames. Mike Ledna's two-out single to left in the seventh following a Wheeling miscue and a sacrifice had sent Steve Chobanian home to deadlock the game at the end of regulation time.

Pecka whiffed 11 and walked only four in going the route to card his and the team's second triumph. He spaced out five hits but one of them was a triple by Chobanian in the fourth after Ken Corchin had walked, putting the Bison on the board.

Wheeling had tallied earlier, in the third on Dave Peterson's single after Steve Rymer had walked and advanced on error. The Wildcats went up 2-0 in the fifth on Al Newman's single and a two-base blast by Peterson.

Smithern struck out 13 while absorbing the defeat.

FRYE KEYS HERSEY WIN

Junior second baseman Bob Frye was the batting and fielding hero as Hersey beat Fremd, 3-2, for their second win in five tries. Fremd dropped their third straight.

Frye's line single with two out in the bottom of the fourth drove home Paul Cortes and Roger Murbach to break a 1-1 tie. Cortes and Murbach had drawn walks from Fremd right-hander Mitch Gullett and they moved up on an errant pickoff attempt and a stolen base.

Frye had opened the first inning reaching safely on an infield error and eventually scored on a sacrifice fly by Don Bianchi. Fremd matched that run in the third against Hersey starter Todd Walker with an infield single by Peters, a sacrifice bunt, and a solid hit to left by Mike Mertes.

Walker, a sophomore righty, was sailing along on a yield of just two hits until the sixth when a two-out error and a long RBI double off the fence in left by Scott Orbin cut the Hersey lead to 3-2.

In the seventh, Hersey left-hander Bob Huber relieved Walker after Steve Peters opened the inning with a single. All hands were safe while Pat Gavigan put down a sacrifice bunt and Huber elected to go to second.

But the junior southpaw settled down, getting a force at third and another sacrifice attempt and retiring Jeff Schroeder on a fly to right. With two out and the tying run at second, Matt Fox ripped a grounder in the hole toward right field but Frye moved quickly to his left, scooped up the ball, and fired to first for the final out.

HAWKS TOP GRENADIERS

Hoffman Estates used a six-run first inning to hand visiting Elk Grove a 7-1 defeat.

Starting pitcher Jim Moore went the distance for the victory. The Hawk hurler allowed just five hits, struck out four and walked three in helping lead his team to their second victory win in three tries against Mid-Suburban competition.

The Hawks of Coach Gary Kraft went to the plate a dozen times in the first inning to knock out Grove sophomore starter Tom Curran. Coming through with the RBIs in the big inning were Wayne Jackson with two and one each by Joe Parille, Ray Gawron and Moore. Several Grove errors contributed to the rally.

Hoffman made it 7-0 in the third as Moore, who was 2-for-3, singled. Steve Currier, pinch running, scored on a Randy Brown single and an error.

The Greandiers, 1-3 on the season, avoided a shutout in the fourth. A two-base throwing error set up the run. Then Kevin Stockwell, who pitched well in relief of Curran, singled in Jim Maier.

Brown, Gawron and Jackson had two hits each for Hoffman with the Grove's Glenn Stromberg also having two.

Warriors lose

Maine West scored the game's first run but couldn't make it hold up Tuesday afternoon as the Warriors lost, 3-1, to Niles North in Central Suburban baseball.

West starter Al Mueller went the route and took the loss. He struck out five batters and walked one. Niles North hit Mueller for two second-inning runs plus another for insurance in the fifth.

Norm Hillner scored Maine's run in the first without benefit of a hit. Hillner walked, stole second and moved to third when the pickoff throw went wild.

An attempt to get Hillner at third was also thrown wild and he scored for Maine's short-lived 1-0 lead.

Bonucchi registers I-hitter; St. Viator wins over St. Patrick

Rejoice. The St. Viator Lions are back.

Beaten on Monday by Holy Cross, the Lions roared back into the East Suburban Catholic Conference race Tuesday afternoon with a 1-0 decision over St. Patrick.

Pitcher Mark Bonucchi was unquestionably in command, gaining his first victory behind a one-hitter and 11 strikeouts. He walked no batters.

The only safety off Bonucchi never left the infield. It was stroked off the bat of St. Pat's Mike Schull.

Viator shortstop Bill Robin chased the ball to his right and made the pickup but couldn't get Schull at first.

Bonucchi did, however, as he picked Schull off base. No other St. Pat runner reached base as the Lions played errorless defense.

It was Viator's fifth win in six conference outings. The Lions are 6-2 overall.

Paul Kastner's first inning bunt plus advancement to second on a wild throw keyed the game's only run. Pat Rooney singled Kastner home with the first of his two hits.

The Lions managed just five hits. Kevin McAleer and Mike Hermanson also reached with hits.

Bonucchi gained his first decision in three outings. One relief appearance plus seven innings for no decision against Fenton were his previous pitching work.

The HERALD

It's all over for Black Hawks

Rene Robert took a Gil Perreault pass and slammed it past goalie Tony Esposito for the winning goal as the Buffalo Sabres beat Chicago 3-1 Tuesday night, eliminating the Black Hawks from the Stanley Cup quarterfinals in five games.

The strong Sabre defense held the Black Hawks to only 13 shots on goal during the entire game. Sabre goalie Gerry Desjardins made brilliant shots several times in the game to protect the Sabre victory.

Robert's game-winner came at 1:16 of the third period when he tucked it neatly into the right corner of the net on the Perreault pass from the right side. Jim Lorentz added a late third period insurance goal for the Sabres.

Buffalo tied the game 1-1 at 18:48 of the second stanza. Pit Martin had put the Hawks up 1-0 with 1:09 left in the first period but Craig Ramsay scored his first goal of the playoffs to tie it with a neat double fake just in front of Esposito.

The Sabres won the series four games to one. The only Chicago victory came after the Sabres had taken a 2-0 series lead.

White Sox snap loss string

Left-hander Jim Kaat, with a save from Terry Forster, ran his winning streak to nine games Tuesday in a 7-3 victory for Chicago over Kansas City that ended a Royals' five-game winning streak and a White Sox five-game losing string.

Kaat, who won his last seven decisions in 1974 and his first start this year, worked 6 2/3 innings, giving up eight hits and all three Royals runs in the seventh before Forster took over with two men on base and went the rest of the way to get the save.

The Sox climbed on Royals starter Bruce Dal Canton for five runs before he was lifted in favor of Marty Pattin with only one out in the second inning. In the first inning, Jorge Orta doubled and advanced on a passed ball, Pat Kelly walked and stole second, and both scored on Ken Henderson's single.

In the second inning, Deron Johnson singled, went to third on Bucky Dent's double and scored on a passed ball while Dent took third. Brian Downing walked and Orta singled to score Dent and put Downing on third. Kelly singled to score Downing with the final run of the inning.

Downing homered off Pattin after an error put Dent on base in the third for the final Chicago runs.

Luzinski helps sink Cubs

Greg Luzinski, who grew up in nearby Prospect Heights, drove in three runs with three singles and Dave Cash also had three hits and scored three runs Tuesday to lift the Philadelphia Phillies to a 7-5 win over the Chicago Cubs.

The Phils snapped a 3-3 tie and went ahead to stay in the fifth inning as Cash and Larry Bowa singled and Cash scored as Willie Montanez was grounding into a double play.

In the sixth, a walk to Mike Schmidt, an infield out and a single by Mike Anderson made it 5-3, and four straight singles in the seventh by Cash, Bowa, Montanez and Luzinski scored the Phils' last two runs and made it 7-3.

Philadelphia scored in the first off Loser Bill Bonham on a triple by Montanez and a single by Luzinski. A triple by Rick Monday and three consecutive walks gave the Cubs the tying run in the second.

A single by Cash, an infield out and another single by Luzinski gave the Phils a 2-1 lead in the third. It became 3-1 in the fourth on a walk by Bob Boone, a single by Anderson and a run-scoring wild pitch.

The Cubs got two runs to tie the score in their half of the fourth on singles by Manny Trillo and Steve Swisher, a sacrifice by Bonham and a bunt single by Don Kessinger.

And in other sports news...

Phil Johnson, who led the Kansas City-Omaha Kings into the National Basketball Association playoffs in his first full season as a head coach, was named Tuesday as the NBA Coach of the Year for 1975... Golden State's Al Attles was runnerup... Johnson will receive his trophy tonight in Kansas City when the Kings meet the Chicago Bulls in the sixth game of their series... The manager of heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali Tuesday termed "a little ridiculous" an offer of $3 million made by Madison Square Garden to Ali to defend his title against Joe Frazier... "It's a little ridiculous, don't you think," said Herbert Muhammad, "for them to offer us $3 million when Ali, who wasn't even champion then, got $2.5 million from the Garden when he fought Frazier the first time. And he wasn't even champion when he got $5 million to fight George Foreman".

Drake and Mennes were strong factors in Harper's mile relay win, too, as the Hawks finished third in their own eight-team invitational track meet Saturday in Palatine. Drake was also second in the 880, but DuPage won the meet.

New look . . . ...and new hopes for Shadow team

UOP Shadows haven't always been the fastest Ilcorico stick in town. Just two summers ago, their entrants in Can-Am Challenge Cup and European Grand Prix racing rested precariously near the edge of self-destruction. Literally.

Shadow Racers, all sleek and black, just like a Ilcorico stick, were no problem at the starting line. But they hardly ever reached the checkered flag.

"We must have set a record with nine major crashes," remembered Shadow team owner Don Nichols who, like Shadow driver Jackie Oliver is an Englishman who's taken quarters in Elk Grove Village (A UOP crash last year killed Peter Revson.)

"Unfortunately, that's extremely expensive not only in money, but time loss, too," said Nichols. "When you're building new cars all the time, there's no opportunity to work on development of new techniques."

One of which is called, "Cashing at the Pay Window."

Never fear, though. The Ilcorico sticks of Nichols, Oliver and American driver George Follmer checked loudest last summer in the since discontinued Can-Am series.

UOP won an easy championship over Team McLaren racers. Oliver coaxed his 735 horsepower screaming two-seater to the winner's circle at Mosport (Canada), Watkins Glen, Mid-Ohio and Road Atlanta. Follmer was second ranked behind Oliver in driver point standings.

There's a whole new UOP look this summer. For one, the Des Plaines based Universal Oil Products will reportedly be absorbed by Signal Companies of California who've been into previous ventures like oil, Mack trucks and oaks. Their reported profits last year were $1.6 billion, hardly a weak snaffle.

Back on the track . . . UOP's Ilcorico sticks are racing again with Oliver set to drive an all-new five-liter Shadow one-seater in the Formula 5000 circuit which begins on Sunday, May 4, at Pocono Raceway in Pennsylvania.

It's Oliver's fifth year with the Shadow team.

"We had new people, new designers with development here and building in England," Oliver said of the 1973 debacle. "Whenever you build a new organization, you have teething. Seventy-three was teething troubles."

To avoid confusion, here's how you can tell these various circuits apart. Can-Am racing has two-seater cars with unlimited horsepower. Grand Prix cars are single seaters carrying an eight-liter engine size restriction. Formula 5000 is basically a smaller Grand Prix car.

The less publicized Grand Prix circuit, which has already concluded races in Argentina, Brazil and South Africa, carries UOP entries driven by Welshman Tom Pryce and J. P. Jarrier.

Thus far, they've shown all the tendencies of UOP's 1973 Can-Am cars. They've been duds.

Pryce was pole position for the Jan. 12 Grand Prix race in Argentina, then didn't start when his transmission gears sheared off. (You got it . . . they used the wrong metal!)

Two weeks later in Brazil, Pryce won the pole again, smashed the track single lap record, led for 32-of-40 laps and then coasted into anonymity with a broken fuel meter.

Their program was a bit more successful on March 1st in South Africa when Pryce and Jarrier raced to nine-13 placings. They get a fourth try this Sunday in Spain.

Mike Klein
Staff SportsWriter

But the man to watch is clearly 34-year-old Oliver who's been a winner at Sebring, Le Mans and Daytona, to name a smattering of triumphs.

Oliver, team owner Nichols and UOP joined forces in 1971. Oliver for the ride of it. Nichols in search of someone to sponsor his two-year old expenses. And UOP for public relations plus a chance to prove race cars will run on lead-free fuel. (They were right.)

This newest UOP Shadow, dubbed DN-6, completed nearly two weeks and 1,000 miles testing earlier this month at Riverside in California.

The car averaged 127 miles per hour and topped out at 193 on the 2.7 mile roadway. It surpassed the existing lap record.

"We're already competitive with (Mario) Andretti who's been fastest on the circuit," said Oliver who's been risking his neck in road racing for 10 years.

"And we're faster than Brian Redman who won the championship last year," Oliver said. "It looks like we've got a good chance at taking it all."

After the Formula 5000 season starts in Pocono, other stops will include Mosport, Watkins Glen, Elkhart Lake, Mid-Ohio and Road Atlanta. The four California tracks will be Ontario, Riverside, Laguna Beach and Long Beach.

UOP may run a second car later this season. No driver has been announced. Those plans could change due to the reported acquisition by Signal Companies.

Oliver has never raced the prestigious 500 at Indianapolis Motor Speedway. "I've been offered cars there and always refused," the personable Englishman said.

"It's a particularly dangerous place. You've got your neck all stuck out and the rewards are far less."

He's not the least bit shy about blaming Sports Car Club of America officials for last year's demise of the Can-Am series.

"Most significant reason for that was bad management by the SCCA," Oliver charged. "It took a couple years to give it a death rattle. The recession just brought it down."

"Formula 5000 is what we've got to think now," Oliver said, obviously enthused about his machine. "The Can-Am is dead. Five thousand is a good circuit that should surpass the Can-Am handsomely."

Oliver would very much enjoy replacing Redman in the winner's circle. Maybe he will, if Signal Companies doesn't change UOP into Universal Oil Products.

Area clubs to send powerful entries to gymnastics nationals

The National Girls Gymnastics championships, held in two divisions, will be well represented by area clubs. When the Junior Division (12-14 years old) championship is decided in Fairfax, Va. on May 8-10 the American Academy of Des Plaines and Gymnastics Unlimited of Schaumburg will have a total of five girls entered.

The Senior Division (15-and-over) meet will be held in Eugene, Ore. May 22-24 and eight area girls will be competing. Gymnastics Unlimited has qualified three girls in each division and thus has a chance at winning the team title in both, something no other club in the six state Region Five could accomplish.

Needing at least three girls in each division to qualify for the team title, the American Academy had only two in the Junior Division but placed five in the Senior Division.

In the Region Five qualifying meet over the weekend GU qualified three girls into the Senior Division finals. They are Sue Schneider (third in all-around with 69.45), Sandy Mendenhall (fourth in all-around with 69.40) and Nola Palmer (67.40).

Representing the American Academy in the Senior Division will be Donna Silber (69.00), Mary Charpentier (68.35), Sue Cassidy (67.85), Mary Califf (67.60) and Gail Fleischman (67.50).

Competing for GU in the Junior Division will be Sue Carlson (67.80), Margarite McPherson (67.05) and Sandy Good (66.40). Sandy, 11 years old, is the youngest gymnast ever to qualify for the finals from Region Five. She is eligible since she will be 12 before the end of 1975.

Anne McGeachy (68.10) and Christa Canary (70.85) qualified for the Junior Division finals from the American Academy. Canary's score won the Region Five all-around championship.

Gymnastics Unlimited in Schaumburg will be holding the Little Ten Championship for boys Saturday, April 19. This is a Junior Olympic qualifying meet for boys 10 and over and is a must for boys hoping to make it into the Junior Olympics.

Registration is still open for the meet that will begin with warmups at 10 a.m. and competition at 12 noon with the fee being $2 per event or $3 for all-around. Boys may enter by calling the GU office in Addison.

Wheeling tops Hersey, Buffalo Grove trackmen

by ART MUGALIAN
Track and Field Editor

It was a lot like a family reunion Monday at Wheeling High School when the host Wildcats took on visiting track teams from Hersey and Buffalo Grove.

And Wheeling coach Jim Nagel was mighty happy about his Wildcats' victory over the two talent-laden "spin-off" schools. Since Hersey and Buffalo Grove broke away from Wheeling, they have each enjoyed a fair measure of athletic success.

But Monday, Wheeling racked up 78 points to nip Hersey, last year's Mid-Suburban League indoor champion, which totaled 69. Buffalo Grove scored 23 points.

Wheeling captured nine firsts, including the final seven running events. The Wildcats also got a double win from weightman Randy Rubner, who won the shot put (47-7) and the discus (129-9).

Jim Lemke of Wheeling took a first in the 330-yard low hurdles, ran second in the 120-highs to Hersey's John Wozniak, and led off the Wildcats' winning mile relay team. Lemke's winning time in the Iowa was :40.8.

Another important runner for Nagel's squad was senior Augie Ziccarelli, who won the 880 in 2:01.2 and ran first in the mile in 4:30.1. Both times were his best of the season.

"I think Augie could have broken two minutes," said Nagel, who figures Ziccarelli, along with Lemke and maybe Rubner, are his best bets to qualify for the state meet in May. "He wasn't pushed at all and he ran a :57.9 first quarter — he needs that kind of split if he's going to break two."

Nagel was even more encouraged by Ziccarelli's clocking in the mile. The dark-haired Wildcat runner was again well in front of his closest opponent. Hersey's Hal Stembbridge, who was 11 seconds behind.

"He had a nice last lap, he had good power and good form," Nagel noted.

Other Wheeling victories came from Mark Dunsmore in the 440 (:54.2), Mike Fabian in the 220 (:23.9), and the 880-yard relay team. The Wildcats also got good performances from low hurdler Brian Buenzow (:41.3), triple jumper Darryl Stillson (39-4½), and Larry DiGirola in the two-mile.

Hersey won the 440-relay in :45.9 and the Huskies also managed three wins in the field events and a victory from John Shorb in the two-mile (10:14). Dave Koelper won the long jump (18-7) and he took second behind teammate Jim DiLenge in the triple jump. DiLenge, still recovering from a broken arm, reached 41½. Hersey's Bob Newren won the high jump at 5-6. Wozniak's winning time in the highs was :15.6.

Buffalo Grove took a pair of firsts, including a win in the 100-yard dash by sophomore speedster Ben Orcutt (:10.6) and a pole vault victory for Greg Roberts (11-0). Orcutt was also second in the 220 (:24.6).

The Bison got second spots from Larry Smolinski in the discus (127-4) and Chris Gaddis in the pole vault.

Two other Demon performers were double winners — Melody Miller and Maria Brown. Miller won the 440-yard dash (1:06) and the two-mile run (14:29); Brown took the 50 (7.1) and 100 (12.7) yard dashes.

'Doubling up' at River Trails

What is believed to be the first "Doubles Camp" in area tennis history will be conducted this summer at River Trails Tennis Center, Mount Prospect, by the man oldtimers still claim is the greatest doubles player who ever lived.

The man is George Lott, whose carload of doubles titles includes five at Forest Hills, three at Wimbledon and one at Paris. He came out of a four-year retirement last year to pair with Clare Riessen and win the Chicago District 60-and-over doubles. They won again Monday (Apr. 7), beating Earl Gossweiler of Clarendon Hills and Bill Wendt of Chicago, 6-1, 6-4, in the final at River Trails.

But the players he wowed with top-apin crosscourts and deft net play in "The Great Gatsby" days were not named Gossweiler, Wendt or Riessen. They were named Tilden, Perry and Cochet.

Lott played Davis Cup 17 times over the period 1926-31 and compiled an 18-4 record, including a perfect 11-0 in doubles. He was only 18 when he first crashed the nation's top 10 — at No. 9 in 1921 when Bill Tilden was king. When he turned pro in 1932, he had made it nine times, with his best ranking a No. 2 to Ellsworth Vines in 1931.

You can make a solid case that Lott is the greatest player in Chicago history.

Mary Riessen is currently No. 3 nationally and with Tom Okker he was part of what was perhaps the world's top doubles team. But with all due respect for the changing times, he hasn't achieved Lott's recognized dominance.

Grant Golden was several times a national doubles champion and twice in the first 10. Seymour Greenberg was twice a national clay courts champion and five times in the first 10. Billy Martin, who moved to California, has set a record for national junior championships. But none of these has reached Lott's pinnacle.

Frank Parker of Evanston, who made the first 10 a record 17 times from 1933-49, took two Forest Hills singles crowns and plays frequently at River Trails, has to be disqualified from consideration since he lived in Wisconsin or New Jersey during his glory years.

"Doubles is a different game entirely," Lott points out. "So many good singles players could play good doubles, too, if they just knew where to stand, how to poach, when to lob, how to angle their volleys in order to open up the center and the importance of getting the first serve in.

"Doubles gets the short shrift in interest and prize money," he laments with a wink. "Maybe we ought to put a stop to this."

Coach at DePaul University, instructor at Skokie Playfield, Winnetka, and an accomplished writer on tennis subjects, Lott envisions a series of 10-hour crash courses at River Trails over a period of 14 weeks. Sessions will last two hours and be open to men, women and juniors alike, with each class including 12 players on three adjacent courts. Opening sessions will begin early June.

Lott is in doubles county, Arlington High School produced five state doubles finalist teams during the 1964-73 decade, and with the court crunch as it is, "doubling up" comes natural.

Ukrainians win at River Trails

It was an all-Ukrainian final at the second annual "International Night" doubles tournament at River Trails Tennis Center, Mount Prospect.

The winners were Roman Wirschuk, a Norridge dentist, and Bill Kopach, an accountant from Park Ridge whose sons, Mike and Don, are Maine South high school players. They won a preliminary Flight I competition from four "A" teams representing eight foreign lands and communities as far away as Lombard and the Edgewater section of Chicago. They took the final, 6-3, from Orest Chryniwsky of Arlington Heights and Dr. Peter Charuk of Park Ridge, winners of a four-team Flight II with an 11-7 record.

Chryniwsky and Dr. Charuk had eliminated Trevor Hichliffe of Mount Prospect and Gertrud Meining of Arlington Heights, first-place finishers in Flight III at 12-6.

Altogether, 13 teams representing the Ukraine, Poland, Germany, Austria, Yugoslavia, Denmark, England, Scotland, Lithuania, Latvia, Egypt, India, China, Ecuador, the Philippines, Australia and Canada participated in the round-robin event.

Of the 26 individual contestants, 21 were men and five — including Cleo Lopez of Chicago, No. 4 rank in the Chicago District Tennis Association and former member of the Philippines' Federation Cup team — were women. Last year's champions — Pat Freebody of Chicago and Jon Paezowski of Arlington Heights — were unable to compete this year.

As usual, participation was restricted to players born in a foreign country.

Area swimmers star in AAU action

Eight local swimmers excelled during the Central AAU Junior Olympics swimming competition conducted at Millikin University in Decatur.

Arlington Heights' Mark Markwell, Mount Prospect's Barbara Larsen, Buffalo Grove's Mike Harvey and Schaumburg's Larry Wooley all scored victories in the age group swimming.

Markwell, a St. Viator athlete, competed unattached and won 100 backstroke (1:00.0) and 200 back (2:12.2). His longer swim was a new state record, eclipsing the old record by 12 seconds.

Barbara Larsen swam for the Park Ridge Swim Club which won team championship honors with 431 points. She was first in 100 butterfly (1:05.1) for girls 11 and 12 years old, breaking the previous state record by two tenths.

Larsen also placed second in 200 individual medley (2:23.9) and fourth in 200 freestyle (2:10.5). Her work in 200 medley relay and 200 freestyle relay also contributed to winning efforts by Park Ridge.

Harvey of Buffalo Grove performed well in six events and won 100 butterfly (1:02.8) while breaking the old state record of 1:04.7 for boys 11 and 12 years old.

Harvey also finished second in 50 freestyle (25.9), third in 200 individual medley (2:25.0), fourth in 100 freestyle (57.9), fifth in 200 freestyle (2:07.0) and fifth in 100 breast (1:17.5). Harvey swims for the Camp Duncan YMCA team.

Schaumburg's Wooley, swimming for Park Ridge, won first place in 200 individual medley (2:22.9) for boys 11 and 12. He was second in 100 breast (1:14) and third in 200 free (2:05.3). Wooley also swam on Park Ridge's victorious 200 medley and 200 free relay teams.

Kathy Butterfield of Elk Grove Village, swimming for Park Ridge, finished second in 50 breast (38.0) for girls nine and 10 years old. She was fourth in 100 individual medley (1:15.7), sixth in 100 freestyle (1:07.6) and competed on 200 medley and 200 free relays which won for Park Ridge.

Kurt Altergott of Mount Prospect, swimming unattached in the boys 11-12 group, finished third in 100 back (1:09.8) and fifth in 100 freestyle (58.6).

Kathy Amato from Elk Grove, another who swam for Park Ridge, placed third in 100 backstroke (1:06.6), fifth in 200 back (2:29.0) and sixth in 100 butterfly (1:06.8) among girls 13 and 14 years old.

Wheeling's Ann Mackle, swimming unattached among 13-14 girls, placed fourth in 100 butterfly (1:05.9), sixth in 100 backstroke (1:08.3) and sixth in 50 freestyle (26.0).

South Park tryouts reset this weekend

Due to inclement weather, the Des Plaines South Park 4A baseball league cancelled last week's tryouts for 13, 14, and 15 year old boys. Tryouts have been rescheduled for Saturday, Apr. 26 and Sunday, Apr. 27. Tryouts for 14 and 15 year olds will be at 1 p.m. both days. The 13 year olds will try out at 2 p.m.

Because of IHSA regulations, any boy who is on any high school team is prohibited from engaging in an outside activity. In order that any boy who is currently engaged in a high school sport may play summer baseball, if he is not presently on a 4A team roster, South Park will hold a special player draft in conjunction with the regular player draft on April 27.

All that is necessary for a boy to do in order to be eligible is to turn in an application prior to this date. Applications are available at all schools. They may be turned in at 1650 Oakton St., at the Park District Office, or at the tryouts Saturday or Sunday from 1 to 3 P.M. at South Park.

In other moves, NBC will debut one new episode of the Sunday Mystery Movie: "McCoy" and cancel "Amy Prentiss." Remaining are "McMillan and Wife," "Columbo," and "McCloud." In addition, NBC will drop "Tuesday World Premiere Movies," and move its "Monday Night Movie" to Thursday.

The new schedule:

Biofeedback

With it patients are treating themselves

by ELEANOR RIVES

Mrs. M. W. of Des Plaines was terrified.

Not that her affliction was an uncommon one. She is one of 22 million persons in the United States with high blood pressure.

The problem was one of control. Medication to lower her pressure plunged it down too far; medication to raise it made it soar.

Four years ago she entered the biofeedback clinic at Incentives Institute, a not-for-profit physical and psychological rehabilitation center at 2424 Dempster, Des Plaines. Within six months, she learned to keep her blood pressure within a satisfactory range at will. She is still able to do so.

"This opened my eyes in terms of what could be done," said Jeanine Gavin, Ph. D., executive director of the Institute.

THOUGH INCENTIVES offers a full range of psychological outpatient services and maintains 12 beds for inpatient care, it is specializing more and more in biofeedback techniques. Two months ago, the Maine Township Board of Auditors budgeted $20,000 of Federal Revenue Sharing Funds to the Institute. Last year Incentives donated more than $40,000 in mental health services to Maine Township residents.

Biofeedback training is the process of using electronic instruments to pick up and amplify internal physiological functions — bodily processes once considered "involuntary," such as heart rate, skin temperature, blood pressure, muscle tension and brain waves. The information is fed back to the patient instantaneously by sight and sound signals, gradually teaching him by trial and error to gain control over these processes.

THE POTENTIAL of biofeedback in preventive and rehabilitative treatment is only beginning to be realized, according to Dr. Gavin. A patient can train himself to control heart arrhythmias, regulate both systolic and diastolic blood pressure, lessen or eliminate migraine and tension headaches.

Biofeedback may be applied to problems of insomnia, circulatory disorders, anxieties, phobias. It can help overcome adverse habits such as smoking, overeating, alcoholism and drug dependence. It is helpful in the treatment of asthma, allergies and epilepsy.

In the area of muscle rehabilitation, it has brought about almost miraculous results for stroke victims, paraplegics, accident survivors.

"IT'S NOT THE muscle — it's the nerve connection to the brain that no longer functions properly," said Karen Stephen, Ph. D., who joined the clinic staff in 1974 as director of biofeedback. "If the patient can 'see' and 'hear' the firing of a single nerve cell, there is a chance of restoring normal movement."

Dr. Gavin added, "With biofeedback, it's almost easier for a paralytic to learn to re-use his limb than to learn to live with disability."

Dr. Gavin cited the case of Mr. E. H., a post-stroke patient at Incentives, who had been paralyzed for three years. "We could tell within five minutes that he could be retrained, that there were still some undamaged nerve cells," said Dr. Gavin.

AT HIS 11TH session, some movement was detected by the biofeedback monitor. A physical therapist was called in to supplement the training. After three months, the man regained the use of his arm and hand.

"It's exciting when a paralyzed person discovers he can move. It's tremendously rewarding for us," said Dr. Gavin.

Research and development in biofeedback stemmed from the use of equipment to monitor the bodily processes of astronauts in the space program. In 1958, psychologist Joe Kamiya described experiments in which subjects learned to turn on and off their brain's alpha rhythm. In the late 1960s, Dr. Neal E. Miller, Rockefeller University professor, in a dramatic experiment, discovered he could train rats to control their heart rates, blood pressure, intestinal contractions and other non-voluntary bodily functions. Since then, research teams have come up with exciting applications of the new technique.

INCENTIVES is a pioneer biofeedback clinic, probably the only one in the Midwest now applying biofeedback to muscle re-education. Since Dr. Stephen joined the staff, she has been standardizing the treatment procedure, training biofeedback technicians and developing a biofeedback home practice guide and a supplementary evaluation program.

"Biofeedback differs from medical treatment," said Dr. Stephen. "A medical doctor does something to his patient. With biofeedback, the patient becomes the active participant, the psychologist remains passive. The patient treats himself. He follows up, he continues, he finishes. After learning it becomes an automatic action."

BIOFEEDBACK CAN also be used in conjunction with other treatments. A great advantage is that it eliminates the use of drugs, many of which have harmful side effects. Another advantage of the technique is that it is time-limited. "Once you learn how to get rid of a tension headache, you don't see us anymore," said Dr. Gavin.

Other applications of biofeedback are being pondered by Dr. Gavin, such possibilities as controlling incontinence and impotence, and increasing urine output in place of diuretics.

"We are using biofeedback scientifically," she said. "It is not a panacea, it is not really a cure — it is a control. It must be used for target symptoms. There are no guaranteed results, but we do guarantee to try."

"Biofeedback is the ultimate placebo," added Dr. Stephen. "The patient treats himself."

"BIOFEEDBACK is a psychological tool developed in the psychological research labs of the world," says Incentives director Dr. Jeanine Gavin. It is a control, not a cure, she notes.

SHE SPREADS THE WORD, hoping to help more persons benefit from biofeedback training. Dr. Karen Stephen, Incentives' director of biofeedback, also directs a continuous training program for technicians. She plans to go on with biofeedback research and to contribute her findings.

They do it with these machines

by ELEANOR RIVES

There are five different types of biofeedback machines in use at Incentives Institute.

The skin temperature monitor is about the size of a table radio. Especially useful to migraine headache sufferers, it teaches them to increase blood flow to the hands thus decreasing it to the head. A gauge registers any increase in temperature, and a sound rises in pitch as the hands warm.

Dr. Stephen, demonstrating the machine, raised the temperature of her hand from 71 degrees to 90 degrees in 10 minutes by "thinking warm."

Another possible use of the machine is to increase circulation to the feet of diabetics.

The electromyograph feedback monitor teaches deep muscle relaxation. Sensors are attached to the frontalis muscle of the forehead. Clenched teeth, wrinkled forehead, jaw, neck and shoulder tension all send the dial and sound up. The patient learns to lower them by progressive relaxation.

For paralysis victims, the machine may be used in reverse. In sessions over a three-month period, a claw-like hand may begin to relax, the patient begins to see his own movements, then progress becomes swift.

The galvanic skin response monitor measures resistance on finger surfaces — minute changes in the body's chemical-electrical system. Akin to a lie detector, the machine determines if a person is unconsciously lying to himself. It is useful in overcoming resistance to psychotherapy. It is helpful, too, in marriage counseling, getting to the core of what is really upsetting a person.

The blood pressure monitor picks up the patient's pressure from a cuff placed on his wrist over the pulse, and feeds it back to him instantaneously, beat by beat. Through trial and error, the patient learns to lower or raise his blood pressure at will.

The electroencephalogram picks up three different types of brain waves — alpha, theta and delta — through sensors attached to the head. The alpha waves are those given out in the resting state of the brain, a stage of passive awareness. The machine also indicates how deep into alpha a person is. Within a certain range he becomes quite suggestible. At this point he can suggest to himself, for example, that he will no longer smoke, or that he will eat less.

This machine is also used to teach insomnia to produce theta brain waves, the type of electrical impulses given off by the brain just prior to dropping off to sleep. But often deep muscle relaxation training is all that is necessary.

"One of our patients had not been able to get to sleep till at least 4 a.m. for the past two years," said Dr. Gavin. "We began with deep muscle relaxation training. Three nights during the third week, he found he could get to sleep. By the fourth week, he was able to fall asleep easily every night. We never did get to theta training."

Your rights if arrested

(Second of two related columns)

by Julie Martocci

An "arrest" takes place when a police officer, or under some circumstances a private citizen, takes a person into custody. Strictly speaking, one is not arrested for an ordinary traffic violation (called a "citation") since that person is not taken into custody, nor are his movements restrained.

Still, you have probably wondered what your legal rights are should you or a member of your family be arrested? If you are a law-abiding citizen, it's highly improbable. It doesn't happen often, but there are a number of instances on record where innocent persons were wrongly accused and arrested. For instance, a couple chatting on a street corner were identified as the pair who had passed a forged check. Ten merchants identified them. It was only after arrest, trial and a nine months sentence served that the real forger was discovered.

Innocent or guilty, the law provides legal steps to insure every citizen's rights.

Part I ended with the classical, oft repeated "You're entitled to one phone call," probably first heard on TV or in the movies involving a police scene. The statement is misleading.

Every arrested person is entitled to a reasonable amount of phone calls to his lawyer and a member of his family. This means you have a right to keep calling from the station house until you can locate a lawyer who will represent you, should you not be able to reach your own. If you cannot afford one, the court will appoint a lawyer for you (If the arrested person is removed to another place, this right is revived and starts all over again.)

Another point to remember is that this right of communication must be given the accused within a reasonable time after being taken into custody. Before the lawyer arrives, the suspect is "booked" and all relevant facts are recorded in the station house's charge book, often referred to as the police blotter. The accused is then photographed and finger-printed and must submit to a thorough check of clothes and person.

What happens to money or property taken from the accused while in custody?

He has a right to receive an itemized receipt for it.

Is there a legal length of time allowed for "being booked"?

Yes, within a "reasonable" time meaning not more than several hours or overnight.

What if the accused is held beyond a reasonable time?

If that should happen, the lawyer representing him has the right to go before a judge and get a writ of habeas corpus.

Habeas corpus is a familiar word, but what does it mean?

It's a court order directing the police to bring the accused before the court so the judge can decide whether or not the accused is being held legally.

I know the suspect isn't always held until the trial, but what happens after the charges are placed against him?

The suspect has a right to apply for and to post bail unless the charge is a serious one such as murder. Bail is money or other security that the suspect leaves with the court that insures his return for trial. If he doesn't appear, he forfeits the bond, but is still under arrest.

How does a person know how much he has to pay for bail?

If a warrant for arrest has been issued, the amount is stated in it, that is, providing the offense is one for which the law allows bail.

In some minor cases the police may set the amount. In Illinois the police have the authority to release the accused if the latter deposits 10 per cent of the amount of bail (It's reasonable not to expect a person to have a great deal of money on his person), or if a bail bondsman guarantees that the suspect will appear in court.

In still other instances, a suspect may be released on what is known as a person's "own recognizance" which is another way of saying the suspect promises to appear in court on the day specified for trial.

Thank you, B.A., for your inquiry. I hope this gives you some idea of the legal process of arrest and your rights should it ever happen. However brief this outline is, I believe you will feel a little more at ease by knowing its contents!

Speaking of . . .

Mary McLeod Bethune

by KAY MAIRISH

A recent letter of Ms. magazine reports that women's groups in Kalamazoo, Mich., are sponsoring a project to honor Mary McLeod Bethune by "making her the first black woman on a U.S. stamp, in 1975, on the 100th anniversary of her birth." The writer asked all readers interested in this project to write the Postmaster General, U.S. Postal Service, Washington, D.C. 20260.

Who was Mary McLeod Bethune? She was a pioneer in urging racial equality and a leader in education. To some she was Mrs. Bethune, wife and mother. To others she was Dr. Bethune, recipient of multiple honorary degrees. And to many more she was Mother Bethune, a woman of the people who worked for the people, all the people.

ALTHOUGH SHE is included in many reference works, the only biography on her in our local library was a 1951 book Catherine Owens Peare wrote for young people. Yet perhaps a biography for youth is the best source of all, since working for a better education and greater opportunities for young people was the dream closest to her heart.

As biographer Peare summarizes her subject's major accomplishment, Dr. Bethune "founded a school for Negro children on a public dump heap with a total capital of a dollar and fifty cents." Long before her death, on May 18, 1955, Dr. Bethune had accomplished much more and become one of the most influential women in the United States.

One of 17 children, Mary McLeod was born July 10, 1875, to former slaves struggling to make a living on their own land. As she worked on the cotton, she prayed for an opportunity to learn to read. She finally got her chance when the Mission Board of the Presbyterian Church sent a teacher down to South Carolina to start a school for black children. Later, thanks to a scholarship established by a Quaker dressmaker in Colorado, the young Mary McLeod was able to go on to Scotia Seminary in Concord, N.C., and to the Moody Bible Institute in Chicago.

It was one of her greatest disappointments that there was no opening for her to become a missionary in Africa. Instead, she became a kind of missionary as a teacher in this country. Her first "impossible dream" was to start her own school, though she had little in the way of assets beyond her boundless energy and faith.

THE DAYTONA Educational and Industrial Training School for Negro Girls opened in Florida Oct. 3, 1904, with only six pupils. When Mrs. Bethune decided the school should stop renting and build its own quarters, she earned the $3 down payment for the land by selling ice cream and sweet potato pies to construction workers.

Substantial contributions also came, encouraged by Mrs. Bethune's talks and by performances of the school's singing group at fund-raising programs. The first building was "prayed up, sung up and talked up" in two years, opening in 1907.

STUDENTS RAISED their own livestock; stuffed mattresses with moss; grew vegetables, selling the choicest produce to make money. Always operating on a shoestring, the school continued to grow, eventually becoming the highly respected Bethune-Cookman College.

Dr. Bethune, however, did not limit her efforts to the school. She also set up mission schools in the area's turpentine camps, built a hospital and set up community conferences to educate and inspire adults.

As she moved out into the mainstream of national affairs, she accepted President Roosevelt's invitation to

League of Women Voters state parley this weekend

The convention set for Friday through Sunday by the Illinois State League of Women Voters marks the first time the League has arranged a weekend schedule of events.

Heretofore held during the week, the change was made to allow more members who are working or who have young children to take part in the decisions which will affect the League for the next two years.

A highlight of the meetings, to be held at O'Hare Inn, Rosemont, is the appearance of Albert Jenner Jr., prominent attorney who was active in the Watergate trials, and Gov. Daniel Walker. Both will speak at the annual banquet Saturday evening in the Inn's Henrietta Ballroom.

JENNER'S ADDRESS is entitled "Impeachment of a President — The Restoration of Our Free and Open Society."

At Saturday's luncheon, Rep. Susan Catania, R-Chicago, will speak on the International Women's Year. The opening luncheon on Friday will feature Prof. Nancy Snyder, an economist at Southern Illinois University, whose subject will be land use issues in Illinois.

During the weekend, 450 delegates will debate and select a program of study and action for the Illinois League, hear reports on activities of the past two years, and elect officers and directors.

THERE WILL BE several delegates attending from the northwest suburban Leagues. From Palatine LWV, the representatives are Jean Tindall, president, Jean Peterson, incoming president; and Lynn Rowe. Four will be delegates from the Arlington Heights-Mount Prospect group: Irvana Wilks, incoming president, Kathy Duoba, Mary Samuels and Rosemary Krizan.

Hoffman Estates-Schaumburg LWV is sending Peggy Elgin, Betsy McBride, and Marilyn Hayden, and Des Plaines will be represented by Lorelei Weller, president Renate Priel and Carroll Salzman.

Speaking of . .

serve on the advisory committee of the National Youth Administration. In World War II she was appointed assistant director of the WAAC, later known as the WAC.

ALTHOUGH NO SINGLE newspaper column can begin to detail her many honors and achievements, she continued to travel, speak and write for educational and humanitarian causes. In her latter years, she helped establish the United Negro College Fund and remained active in the National Council of Negro Women, which she had founded in 1935.

It was the National Council which was primarily responsible for the Mary McLeod Bethune memorial. Financed solely by contributions, the memorial was dedicated in Washington, D.C., on what would have been her 94th birthday, July 10, 1974.

The statue is the first memorial to a woman and the first memorial to a black person on public land in the District of Columbia. It's been called "the statue that struggle built," a phrase that would surely have appealed to Dr. Bethune. She struggled all her life to see that every boy and girl received what she called "the chance that every human being deserves — the chance to prove his worth."

Guests love her soup

Dear Dorothy: No one ever refuses an invitation to a soup, salad and dessert supper at my house. I'm not really bragging, as anyone can do it. I practically clean out the refrigerator when making the soup. The last pot of it contained two stalks of fresh asparagus (which I can afford since we've saved so much buying chuck when it's on sale), two handfuls of barley (it does something to soup), a slice of stale bread broken into bits, half a can of leftover tomato paste and 20 or so other things, including lemon pepper, celery salt, onion salt, parsleyed garlic salt and so forth. One thing I never leave out is a can of beef-flavor vegetable soup. Is this cheating?

—Charlotte Stevens Holtman

No such thing as cheating when you go into this kind of "grand marmite" collection. I agree about barley for vegetable soup and, while I've never done the piece of bread bit, I use a handful of split peas. What makes me curious is why you didn't mention adding a piece of that bargain chuck. Now that probably would have 'em standing in line.

Dear Dorothy: You might like my solution for keeping the purse shoulder strap from slipping off the shoulder. I got some of that rubber strip that is used to stick on the bottom of the bathtubs, hoping to stick it on the inside of the shoulder strap. This didn't hold so I stitched it in place. What heavenly relief to have that purse firmly in place. You'll love it.

—Lorene Carter

Dear Dorothy: If you had drawers that stuck after the advent of hot, humid weather last year, don't forget to rub the top of the sides with a bar of soap. It does help.

—Joyce Barringer

Dear Dorothy: The simplest way to get rid of ants is to blow cigarette smoke on them. They leave.

U.S. steps up search for new uranium veins

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Geological Survey said Tuesday it is stepping up the search for new uranium deposits in the United States in an effort to meet the future needs of an expanding nuclear power generating industry.

Exploration for new uranium ore deposits will be carried out under nine grants totaling $240,000 in northern New Jersey, Eastern Pennsylvania, central Alabama, the Texas panhandle and south Texas, east-central Arizona, southeastern Utah and southern and eastern Wyoming.

The United States produced 12,600 tons of uranium last year, but if nuclear power plants expand as anticipated by the Energy Research and Development Administration, the nation will need 100,000 tons annually by the early 1990s.

EIDA SAID THE nation has 315,000 tons of known uranium reserves recoverable at a cost of $10 per ton.

"The anticipated increase in the use of nuclear energy for power generation during the rest of this century will create a demand for uranium far in excess of domestic reserves," said E. N. Harshman, deputy chief of the geological survey's branch of uranium and thorium resources.

"Most of the easily accessible deposits have been found. Future exploration will be at greater depths, and in less favorable areas and hence will cost more," he said.

There is similar concern about uranium supplies in other parts of the world. The International Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development said in a recent report, "it is essential that urgent steps be taken to increase the rate of exploration for uranium so that an adequate reserve may be maintained."

NEW MEXICO and Wyoming are now the leading uranium producing areas in the United States followed by Colorado, Texas, Utah and Washington.

The new grants awarded by the geological survey will support exploration in areas that have not been intensively examined in the past but which shows promise as potential uranium producers.

"If exploration is to result in discoveries large enough to meet anticipated domestic needs, it will require an intensive and sustained effort, based on sound geologic principles and the application of new and improved techniques of finding ore," Harshman said.

Win at bridge

Bad trump split? Don't give up

South looked over dummy for a fraction of a second. The hand was solid except for the trump suit and since the game was rubber bridge, South decided to forget about an over-trick and play as safely as possible for the small slam.

He won the heart in his own hand and played his ace of trumps. East showed out and the clinch contract had changed into one that was almost impossible.

"Why don't you give up?" chortled West. "You can't do anything about my trumps."

"Maybe so, maybe not," replied South. "If you hold exactly two hearts, three diamonds and four clubs I'll bring this one home."

Then South played three rounds of clubs, while taking care to ruff the third lead. Next came a diamond to dummy's ace and a ruff of the last club. So far so good. West had held four clubs.

South cashed his last two diamonds and once more West had to follow. He led his queen of hearts, overtook with dummy's ace, led another heart and ruffed with the queen of trumps.

West could overruff or underuff, but one of his trump tricks had vanished into thin air.

CHRISTOPHER HUNTER

Even though he's deaf

Harper counselor 'hears' problems of deaf students

by WANDALYN RICE

Christopher Hunter is a successful young man.

He is impeccably tailored, has a broad smile, firm handshake and a plaque hanging on his wall that names him one of the Jaycoes' "Outstanding Young Men of America."

There is just one thing that sets Chris Hunter apart from other successful young men. The 31-year-old Harper College counselor has been deaf since he was 5 years old.

Hunter has the slurred, guttural speech which is associated with deafness. But when he talks, using sign language and speech, he is eloquent on the problems the deaf face in a hearing world.

HEARING PEOPLE do not understand the problems of the deaf, he says. "We are trying to educate the public so they will understand us," he says. "The deaf are educationally handicapped."

Hunter has been at Harper for two months as a counselor to the students who attend the college through its hearing-impaired program. The school provides the students with notetakers and interpreters who use sign language to translate instructor's lectures. Hunter works with the students on the problems they encounter along the way — helping them to decide what courses to take or giving them advice on how to make friends.

Elizabeth McKay, head of the college's health service and coordinator of the hearing-impaired program, said by Lawrence L. Lamb, M.D.

Prostrate problem common

My husband is retired from the Navy, and on his last physical checkup he was told by the doctor that he had a slightly enlarged prostate, but it was nothing to worry about.

I do worry, because his urine flow is just a trickle, also he has no sex drive and hasn't had for a year-and-a-half.

He is 72, and we just celebrated our golden anniversary, so sex isn't important, but doesn't it have a bearing on the prostate? I would appreciate a comment from you.

Prostate gland problems seem to come to almost all men who live long enough. You are right to be concerned.

You can't always tell from examining the prostate on a routine physical examination just how much trouble it is causing. The examination only permits the doctor to feel the outer shell, only the back side of the gland at that. He can estimate its overall size and regularity of shape. He can feel how firm it is and if there are any nodules. Both firmness and nodules are related to the possibility of prostate cancer.

The prostate gland is like a cork with a hole in it. The urethra that drains the bladder is like a tube passing through that hole. If the prostate gland grows and closes down the hole in the center it compresses the urethra and urination becomes difficult.

When the prostate enlarges outwardly but the hole stays the same size it won't affect the urethral tube or the man's ability to urinate normally.

The point is the doctor can't tell anything about the size of the hole at all with his finger. The hole after all is in the center of the prostate. Rather he gets an idea of how much obstruction there is from the patient's story.

IT TAKES TWO to tango here. The doctor may need to ask about it and the patient will need to tell the doctor the facts. If your husband doesn't tell his doctor that he is having a very small stream and trouble with urination the doctor will not have the information he needs to judge the state of his prostate.

If the story suggests obstruction of the opening then tests can be made to see how much obstruction is present. If it is enough to cause the urine to be retained in the bladder or cause overstretching of the bladder, it may be necessary to operate and relieve the obstruction.

A small stream, difficulty in starting and difficulty in stopping without dribbling are all symptoms of prostate obstruction. When this condition is advanced, the bladder never empties adequately, and the distended bladder is a setup for infection. Also the distended bladder constantly gives the man the urge to urinate. So, he makes frequent trips to the bathroom and eliminates a small amount with difficulty each time. This may also interrupt his sleep.

The general changes your husband has along with his prostate probably have a lot to do with his loss of sex drive. This should be considered in his complete examination.

Center probes spread of flu, ways to immunize

HOUSTON (UPI) — A Texas research center hopes to determine how influenza spreads and ways people can build immunities to ward off the next world-wide flu epidemic expected in about three years.

Drs. Robert Couch and Julius A. Kasel said the center at Baylor College of Medicine was funded by the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases to use Houston as a model city to learn how influenza works.

Pandemics — geographically widespread epidemics — occur about every 10 to 14 years. The last one in this country occurred in the winter of 1968-69. In the last three flu pandemics about 88,000 people died in the United States.

The current influenza A strain is called Port Chalmers Flu after a town in New Zealand where it was first isolated. Couch said an epidemic of Port Chalmers Flu was expected this winter in Houston but it didn't appear there would be a widespread outbreak.

The center was founded last July to learn how flu enters a community, monitor its spread, determine duration and disappearance.

The Houston center will monitor flu spread throughout the year and watch for epidemic periods, usually in the winter when people stay inside more and the disease can more easily spread. If they can learn what occurrences signal the beginning of an epidemie it may be possible to head off the epidemic, Couch said.

"After all," he said "the prevention of death is the main thing, not just stopping flu."

The center is watching for outbreaks of the flu through city health clinics in mostly low socio-economic areas, selected family physicians and downtown hospitals. They also monitor absenteeism in schools, among city employees and in several department chain stores.

Harper counselor 'hears' problems of deaf students

the college set out to hire a deaf counselor. And Hunter has quickly proved that he has the ability to establish rapport with deaf students that would be much harder for hearing people.

Hunter is modest about his achievement. "The students and I understand each other," he says. "I understand their problems and they understand mine. They feel comfortable with me."

"Students feel a little cautious and inferior in the hearing world because they are incomplete, but when they get to know hearing people it's better. We help them break the ice," he says.

BEFORE COMING to Harper, Hunter taught and was dean of students at the Idaho State School for the Deaf. He has a master's degree from California State University and has worked in the hearing world for some time.

In Gooding, Idaho, he joined the Jaycees — alone, the only deaf person in a club full of hearing people. He admits that he was afraid at first, but says he joined "to know the hearing world better."

Although none of the members of the club knew sign language, they quickly found ways to communicate with their new member. "I shared with all of them," Hunter says. "Volunteers would take notes for me and whenever I wanted to say something I would hang on the table and they would turn to me and I would talk slowly. They accepted my ideas and they voted me chairman of the parade committee."

Hunter also won the Jaycees "Outstanding Young Men" award and he proudly points to the plaque on the wall of his Harper office. It was, he says, an award "in both the hearing and deaf community," a fact that brings him particular pride.

HUNTER HAS strong feelings about the debate on what kind of education deaf children should receive — the kind which stresses oral speech and lip reading or total communication, which includes sign language.

"Every citizen in America has equal rights," he says, his signs suddenly coming faster and his voice rising in pitch. "Total communication provides that opportunity. Children with normal vision see things and the first thing they will do is sign — they make up their own signs. It's hard to read lips. Most people get 25 per cent of what they lip read. Some who are very good understand 50 per cent, but it requires a talent."

The biggest concern that many of the students at Harper have, Hunter says, is what kind of jobs they will be able to get. "They want to know what jobs deaf have around the country," he says.

Mrs. McKay says that one of the advantages to the students of having Hunter to talk to is that "he is a good role model for them."

That is much the same way that

Hunter describes his job when he explains that he plans to visit local high schools to talk to deaf students about the Harper program. "I'm the PR man," he says.

FAA reforms policy to update air-safety rules

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Criticized by Congress for its slow reaction to air safety recommendations, the Federal Aviation Administration announced plans Tuesday for a major policy reform to speed the process of updating flight rules.

James E. Dow, the FAA's acting chief, said the agency has spent too much time issuing exemptions to air-safety rules when the rules themselves should have been changed.

Citing the time needed to process exemptions as a major factor delaying the revision of outmoded or inadequate regulations, Dow proposed new procedures making exemptions harder to obtain by requiring that they be requested six months in advance instead of the present two.

DOW SAID THIS longer advance time would lead to less disruption of the FAA's normal rule-making process.

He emphasized, however, that requests genuinely requiring priority handling — such as those related to the Southeast Asia evacuation flights — still would be considered on an expedited basis.

Dow said normal rule making also would be separated as much as possible from the processing of exemptions. In situations where there are many requests for exemptions to the same rule, he said, consideration will be given to changing the rule itself.

LAST YEAR, Dow said, the FAA Flight Standards Division processed 102 exemptions to existing rules and issued only 22 new or revised regulations.

"That says to me we're doing rule-making by exemption," he told a group of reporters. "We can no longer afford to give all exemption requests, regardless of subject matter, priority handling when that handling results in delaying the issuance of safety regulations."

In a wide-ranging discussion with reporters, the man who took over the FAA April 1 also said:

• Details of his limited immunity program for pilots and air traffic controllers have been worked out and will be published within a few days. Dow acknowledged there is opposition within the FAA to the program, designed to let pilots and controllers report rules violations or dangerous practices without fear of punishment unless criminal actions or gross misconduct are involved. But he predicted the immunity plan would win general support.

• The time has come for flight controllers to take responsibility for more than just keeping planes from colliding in flight, although that remains their main job. Dow said a controller who sees a pilot flying too low must now warn that pilot. Controllers, test-fying at inquiries into two recent crashes near Washington where aircraft flew too low while trying to land, have objected to such responsibility.

Liquor tax hearing set for Tuesday

The County Board has scheduled a hearing Tuesday on the proposed county liquor tax, which would add 20 cents to the price of a fifth of liquor and a penny to the cost of a quart of beer.

Representatives of Cook County liquor retailers, who have charged the tax would drive their customers to stores in adjoining counties, are expected to testify against the measure.

The tax, proposed by County Board Pres. George W. Dunne, also would add 12 cents a gallon to the price of wine with less than 14 per cent alcohol content and 30 cents a gallon to wine with more than 14 per cent alcohol.

The tax would raise an estimated $18 million, the amount of the county's projected budget deficit for 1975.

Tuesday's hearing will begin at 10 a.m. in Room 569 of the County Building, 118 N. Clark St., Chicago.

Electronic Lullaby

by Ed Landwehr

You hear about the new electronic gadget that induces babies to sleep?

It is a small transistorized device that emits a steady, comforting hum similar to a mother's cooing her infant to sleep. It works off the power of a small battery and operates many hours. It's claimed to be unusually successful although there's some aesthetic objection to it.

We don't stock this new gizmo at Landwehr's Home Appliances although we can service it. After all, we do service much more intricate television, radio and stereo equipment. Phone us at 256-0700. We'll do our work quietly and not awaken the baby.

We have some fine displays of nationally-advertised TV's and stereos on our floor at 1000 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights. Service with sales is our important business.

Bicentennial group urges 1-day powwow

The Des Plaines Bicentennial Commission will push for a one-day Indian powwow this summer at Maine West High School, a scaled-down version of original plans.

Plans were to provide a three-day festival by the Mascoutin Society of Chicago and involving 800 to 1,000 participants. The tapered version would attract only about 200 participants.

Mascoutin officials last week said they could not provide the three-day event because of restrictions imposed by High School Dist. 207 at Maine West. The contract was rejected because the district restricted the use of the football field and reduced the number of camping spaces from 800 to 300. The society instead selected Camp Dan Beard near Wheeling for the three-day event.

THE SCALED-DOWN powwow would include two performances featuring contest dancing, a teepee village and traders to sell Indian crafts.

David Wolf, chairman of the Bicentennial Commission, told commission members Tuesday night that he spoke with Des Plaines park officials to have the powwow at Rand Park, south of Milner Street between Rand Road and Busse Highway.

Park officials made no commitment but Wolf said there is a possibility of conducting the event at the park.

Commission members, however, opted for the one-day powwow because of the spectator seating arrangement at Maine West High School.

WOLF SAID school officials have not been informed of the Mascoutin Society's counter offer for a scaled-down powwow.

"Maybe they (school officials) will be a lot more comfortable with this one-day event which won't get the crowd," Wolf said.

Several commission members said the event should charge nominal admission to "control crowds."

"It may make money that could buy other things we could offer for free," said Sue D'Ignone, a commission member.

SUGGESTED fees for the powwow were 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children.

Wolf reminded the commission members that the Bicentennial should be a nonprofit event and should offer events anyone can attend.

Commission members urged Wolf to pursue with city officials the possibility of charging admission.

City to study why 40 were left off voter rolls

by STEVE BROWN

City Clerk Eleanor Rohrbach said Tuesday she will review county voting records to determine why the names of about 40 voters from a south side precinct were removed from registration books.

The move comes after the April 15 aldermanic election when at least 13 voters were barred from casting ballots in Precinct 49 in the 6th Ward. Election judges incorrectly allowed another 34 persons to vote even though their names did not appear on records.

The voters were turned away after election judges determined their names did not appear in registration books or on records in County Clerk Stanley T. Kusper's office.

A number of residents, who either were turned away from the polls or who were incorrectly allowed to vote by affidavit met Monday night at the home of newly elected Ald. Robert Kraves, 1700 Pratt Ave. Mrs. Kraves said she offered their home as a meeting place, but did not organize the discussion.

"We just want to find out how it happened and see to it that this does not happen again," said Patricia Galla, 2720 Scott St. "I feel my rights have been violated."

APPARENTLY the problem developed when the precinct was canvassed before the election and several residents who lived there were removed from the polling lists.

Mrs. Rohrbach said the canvasser might have used a telephone directory, which is against county regulations, and removed names of people who were not listed in the phone book but were listed in the voting records.

Mrs. Galla said she has an unlisted telephone number and said several other persons who were turned away also were not listed in the phone book.

A spokesman for Kusper said the clerk's office was looking into the matter.

"There were significant irregularities in that area," Mrs. Rohrbach said. In addition to the voters left off the registration lists, she said the election judges allowed another 34 persons to vote by affidavit even though their names did not appear on the county clerk's master list of registered voters.

MRS. GALLA said she received no notice that she and her husband's names had been removed from the registration lists.

Mrs. Galla said she contacted the clerk's office and was told she had moved from the Scott street address.

"I would like to know who has the authority to say that I have moved and to take my name off the list," Mrs. Galla said.

50-50 sidewalk program slated

City officials are accepting requests for residents who are interested in taking part in the 50/50 sidewalk repair program.

The city will let contracts for $40,000 in repair work for the summer. Residents may participate in the program by contacting the engineering department.

Under the terms of the program, residents and the city share the cost of the program equally.

Eight contractors submitted bids for

$500, batteries taken in burglary

An unknown number of tires and batteries and $500 in cash were taken in a burglary at the Standard service station at 1585 River Rd., Des Plaines.

Police said Tuesday the burglar entered the gas station by forcing a door open on the east side of the building. The burglar apparently knew where the money was hidden, police said, because nothing in the station was disturbed.

Police said the tires and batteries were taken from a storage room in the building.

In another burglary, $50 was taken from K & H Super Service Standard station, 1134 Prairie Ave. Police said the burglar entered the station by breaking a window on the south side of the building.

Police said the burglar ransacked the station before fleeing with the money.

the work last week. The bids for 5,000 feet of six-inch sidewalk ranged from $39,620 to $51,242. The engineering department had estimated the work would cost about $40,000.

Ellis Perl, assistant city engineer, said the city will spend about $20,000 on the program, which was the same amount allocated for the program last year.

Last year's program was hampered somewhat by the six-week long strike by cement-truck drivers.

THE CROSSINGS development in Buffalo Grove is going up on the former 80-acre Bernard Raupp farm. Aribert F. Wild, attorney for the sale of the farm, is charged in a suit with swindling the later Bernard Raupp out of $160,000 when he purchased the property for $640,000 under the cover of a blind trust and resold it for $800,000.

Raupps charge lawyer bilked dad of thousands

by JOANN VAN WYE

A prominent Palatine attorney has been accused of swindling the late Bernard A. Raupp, a member of Buffalo Grove's pioneer family, out of at least $160,000 in the sale of Raupp's 80-acre farm in Buffalo Grove.

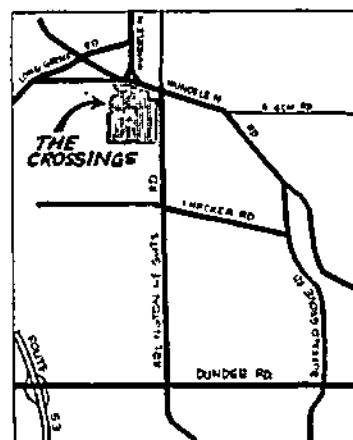

The attorney, Aribert F. Wild, represented Raupp in the sale of the property to a secret land trust of which Wild was the sole beneficiary. Wild then resold the property at a $160,000 profit, according to a suit filed in Lake County Circuit Court by Raupp's two sons.

The suit was filed last month by Leroy M. Raupp, 955 Checker Dr., Buffalo Grove, and Ralph C. Raupp, 1913 Seminole Ln., Mount Prospect, executors of the elder Raupp's estate.

It asks for damages and repayments from Wild totaling $1,060,000. That amount includes the $160,000 Wild made on the farm sale, $500,000 in damages and an additional $400,000 that Raupp lost because the land was sold for less than its market value, the suit says.

WILD, 75, COULD not be reached for comment. His secretary said Wild has been advised by his attorney not to discuss the suit.

The property in question, west of Arlington Heights Road and south of Ill. Rte. 83, is now part of The Crossings development owned by the Richards Group.

Raupp, who is described as "unschooled and unlettered in the English language" in the suit, signed a real estate contract Dec. 30, 1970 selling his 80-acre farm for $640,000 to a secret trust at Chicago Title and Trust Co. The contract called for a $40,000 downpayment and five annual payments of $120,000.

Wild, Raupp's attorney in the deal, is accused of concealing from Raupp that he was the sole beneficiary of the trust which purchased the property.

No money was paid to Raupp for the sale of his property through 1971, according to the suit. An inventory of Raupp's estate at the time of his death Aug. 9, 1973 showed $467,419 still unpaid on the property.

ON MARCH 13, 1972, Wild is accused of selling the 80-acre Raupp farm and an additional 53 acres he owned adjacent to the property to developer James Otis Jr. of Northbrook. The property was sold at $10,000 an acre. The suit charges Wild "failed to divulge and concealed" that he had sold the farm for $800,000.

Wild's "deceptions and concealments . . . were intentional and willful and purposefully calculated and planned to reap financial profit . . . at the expense of his client," the suit says.

Fair market value of the land at the time of the 1972 sale was $1.2 million, according to the suit.

Otis petitioned the Village of Buffalo Grove for annexation and multi-family zoning of the parcel, which was granted in August 1971. The property was then sold and is being developed by the Richards Group.

Wild, whose law office is at 119 E. Palatine Rd., Palatine, has been given until May 21 to file an answer to the suit.

Raupp's will called for equally dividing his estate among his six children, Leroy Raupp, Ralph Raupp, Robert J. Raupp, 7817 Rte. 14, Harvard; Donald B. Raupp, 418 Diane Dr., Palatine; Mary Ann Eder, 1046 Broadmoor, Deerfield; and Betty Lou Raupp, 1175 Parker Ln., Buffalo Grove. They would receive equal portions of any settlement.

GRAHAM STEWART was struck on the shoulder by this thin metal plate when it fell from a Boeing 707 jet.

Man hit by falling object from jet

The inside story

A part from a Boeing 707 jet fell in Rolling Meadows last weekend, striking Graham Stewart on his shoulder as he was dumping garbage outside his home.

Stewart, 65, of 3305 Pheasant Dr., was not injured by the part, a small, flat piece of metal with instructions printed on it for maintenance of the jet landing gear.

Stewart turned the metal part, which was attached to a long, metal strap, over to Rolling Meadows police. "I wasn't going to do anything, but I thought Rolling Meadows might keep a record of that stuff," he said.

The Air Carrier Inspection office of the Federal Aviation Administration is tracing the jet from which the piece fell Saturday afternoon. Officials have also shown the part to the Boeing Airplane Co.'s local office.

STEWART SAID the piece struck him lightly on the shoulder, and may have hit the edge of his roof first. He was bending over, putting some trash in a garbage can when it hit, and he didn't know what it was at first. He saw the piece lying on the driveway and threw it onto the porch before deciding to notify police.

"This is nothing," he said. "I suppose it could have injured someone if it struck them in the face."

An FAA spokesman said the part bears the name of the Boeing Co. and has instructions for servicing the landing gear. It is not an essential, operating part of the plane. It probably fell from a plane approaching O'Hare Airport for a landing, the spokesman said.

The Northwest suburbs have been the target of other falling objects in recent years. A large chunk of a door from a jet narrowly missed a surveyor and his stepdaughter in July 1974, when they were doing some work for the Arlington Heights Park District. That piece, measuring about one-by-1½ feet, landed near Belmont Avenue and Council Trail.

Other suburban residents have been plagued with flying sewage, but the FAA has declined to blame those incidents on jet aircraft, saying there is no way for the sewage to fall from the planes.

City Council wrapup

One crossing guard cut, may drop more

A school crossing guard has been eliminated from one intersection in Des Plaines and officials are considering the elimination of guards at three other corners.

Police Capt. Willard Blume said Tuesday the crossing guard at Thacker Street and Marshall Drive was eliminated recently after a traffic signal was installed. He has recommended guards be removed from Oakton Street and 5th Avenue, Graceland Avenue and Perry Street and Thacker Street and the Chicago and North Western Rwy. outerbelt line.

The recommendations are being considered by the city council's streets and traffic committee.

Blume said recent school boundary changes have greatly reduced or eliminated the number of younger students crossing at the intersections, thus making the guards unnecessary. He said the recommendations were made after discussion with officials from schools in the area.

Bid may be reconsidered

Mayor Herbert H. Behrel said Tuesday he may ask the city council to reconsider its decision to award a city vehicle maintenance contract to a firm that was not the low bidder.

The city council Monday night awarded the contract to Peterson Safety Service of Des Plaines, although Des Plaines Chrysler-Plymouth Inc. submitted a lower bid.

The firm was awarded the contract after submitting a bid of $10 an hour for labor on vehicles and 25 per cent above cost for parts. Des Plaines Chrysler-Plymouth asked for $9.90 an hour for labor and 15 per cent above cost for parts.

Ald. Kenneth Kehle, 2nd, recommended the city council accept the higher bid, saying Peterson Safety Service keeps Saturday and evening hours, while the other firm is open Monday through Friday and no evenings.

The alderman said the extended hours would be more convenient for getting service on city vehicles that are needed for emergencies.

Behrel said he has received a complaint from William Haeger Jr. of Des Plaines Chrysler-Plymouth and may delay awarding of the contract.

"I think he has a point because he was the low bidder and there was nothing in the bid specification about being open on Saturday," Behrel said.

Haeger said Tuesday he will not comment on the matter until he discusses it further with city officials.

Rescuer receives awards

Skokie Firefighter Donald Meyer was given three awards Monday night for rescuing six of his neighbors from their burning Des Plaines home last month.

Meyer was presented with plaques for heroism from Behrel, Police Chief Arthur Hintz and Fire Chief Donald Corey.

Meyer, 57, Dover Dr., rescued members of the Kurt Schaffert family, 39 Lancaster Ln., from their home March 12.

TRAFFIC WILL BE disrupted for about two months while construction crews work at the intersection of Golf and River roads in Des Plaines. The project involves repaving of the Golf Road bridge at the Des Plaines River.

Left turns at the intersection will be prohibited until work is done.

Golf Rd. bridge resurfacing to end in 8 weeks

Resurfacing of the Golf Road bridge at the Des Plaines River is scheduled for completion in about eight weeks, a state official said Monday.

Howard Westphal, an engineer for the Illinois Dept. of Transportation, said resurfacing of the westbound lanes of the bridge will be finished in about three weeks.

The resurfacing of the bridge is part of a $400,000 state improvement project affecting several roads in the Des Plaines area.

Work started Monday on the Rand Road bridge at the Des Plaines River.

Westphal said resurfacing of the Rand Road bridge is scheduled for completion in about a month. He said two lanes will remain open during the construction period.

Because of the work, East River Road has been closed between Golf and Rand. The project is scheduled for completion June 1.

Prosecution contends in Swimley trial:

'Hit-man call undid murder plot'

by STIRLING MORITA

An assistant state's attorney said Tuesday a telephone call to a man with an Italian name in the mistaken belief he had crime syndicate connections led to the downfall of a Schaumburg woman's plot to kill her husband.

Charles Sklarsky, an assistant state's attorney, said in his opening remark of the Marlene Swimley murder-solicitation trial that a police investigation led to Mrs. Swimley's arrest after calls to a former Schaumburg man, known as "Godfather" to friends.

Thomas Mangione, Rochester, N.Y., who was called "Godfather" because of his Italian heritage by a few people when he lived in Schaumburg, testified before Judge Marvin E. Aspen that he received a message to return a call to Kevin Senne and that a person identifying himself as Senne told him he wanted a "hit man."

Sklarsky said the telephone call resulted from consultation among three teen-aged friends — two of whom were allegedly solicited by Mrs. Swimley to find a hit man for her husband, Duane Sr.

THE TWO YOUTHS called a former junior-high school friend in California, and he recommended they call Mangione, thought to have "Mafia" connections because of his nickname, Sklarsky told the two-man, 10-woman jury.

Rock DeSpain, formerly of Schaum-burg, was the only other prosecution witness to testify Tuesday. He told the court that Mangione thought the call was a joke, but when DeSpain heard the name Senne, a friend of his stepson, he urged Mangione to pursue the matter to discover who was the intended victim.

After a second telephone call to the Chicago area, DeSpain mistakenly believed he was the target of a murder plot. "I believe anything is possible these days," he said.

DeSpain said he and Mangione went to Schaumburg police, who started an investigation.

SCHAUMBURG POLICE sought help from the state's attorney's office, and Mrs. Swimley was arrested at the Woodfield Shopping Center Jan. 24, 1974, after she allegedly handed over $100 as a down payment to "Jimmy Sunshine," an investigator posing as a hit man.

Louis Carbonaro, Mrs. Swimley's lawyer, told the jury in his opening statement, "They (the prosecution) would want you to believe that this 32-year-old woman went to a bunch of 14-year-olds to find a Mafia hit man. Is that believable?"

"It's all believable if you watch 'The Godfather' — that is."

Carbonaro implied there were some irregularities following Mrs. Swimley's arrest. He said a tape recording of the alleged money transfer showed that she was pressured into naming an amount and that she was giggling throughout the recording.

CARBONARO said an investigator reported that Mrs. Swimley had written her husband's address in Germany on a photograph, but that a handwriting expert's opinion would prove that it is not her handwriting on the paper.

He said Mrs. Swimley's home at 322 Meacham Rd. had been locked up and she was unable to get in for a day and that when she returned, it had been ransacked. "These small towns run their own police departments," he said.

Prosecution witnesses are expected to testify through Thursday. The trial resumes at 9:30 a.m. today.

Oakton board reelects Hartstein

Raymond Hartstein was reelected chairman of the Oakton Community College Board of Trustees in a unanimous vote of the board Tuesday night.

Hartstein was reelected after the board canvassed the results of the April 12 election and reaffirmed the election of Vivian Medak of Lincolnwood and Howard Levin of Niles.

Board member Stephen Loska was unanimously elected vice chairman of the board, and Mrs. Medak was elected secretary.

Hartstein, 56, of Skokie, has served on the board since Oakton was founded in 1969. He was first chairman of the Oakton board in 1969 and also has served as its head during the past year. He is director of personnel and industrial relations for the Brunswick Corp., Skokie.

Loska, Des Plaines, was elected to the board in 1971. He is a senior scientist for Kraftco Corp., Glenview.

Mrs. Medak has served on the board since 1973. She is a tutor for children with learning disabilities in Niles Township.

Official election results showed that Mrs. Medak led the field of nine candidates with 3,239 votes. Levin received 2,853. Other candidates and vote totals were: Fred Swinneron, 1,719; Alvin Marks, 1,211; John Prochaska, 1,204; David Laske, 1,176; Patton Feichter, 869; Celeste Smith, 860; and Lee Prince, 758.

MSD deep-tunnel project easements OK'd by parks

The Mount Prospect Park Board has approved easements for the Metropolitan Sanitary District's deep-tunnel project, despite the opposition of Comr. Rosemary Argus.

The easements were approved in a 3-0 vote, with Mrs. Argus abstaining. She argued against approving the easements, saying the deep tunnel project and associated sewage-treatment plant have not been approved by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

Mrs. Argus is associated with a group of Des Plaines residents who have opposed the plant, saying it would cause odor and health problems.

Board members William Selepe,

Elmer Blasco and Robert T. Jackson voted in favor of the easements.

The Board also approved a contract with architect James Viger for the renovation of the Maple Room of the Mount Prospect Community Center, 600 S. Sec-Gwyn Ave. The contract calls for Viger to complete plans for the renovation, prepare the project for bids and make periodic inspections of the project in exchange for 5 per cent of the contract price.

In other business the board instructed the park president to write letters to state legislators urging passage of a bill that would create a park district distribution fund from state income tax funds.

$8,000 in diamonds stolen from store

A tray of diamond rings valued at $8,000 was stolen Monday night from the Venture Inc. department store, 1300 S. Elmhurst Rd., Mount Prospect.

Police said the 19 or 20 rings on the tray were last seen at 5 p.m. when they were locked in a display case. Their loss was reported at 10:45 p.m.

The case was found unlocked when the theft was discovered, police said. They added that it is unknown whether the rings were stolen by a shop-lifter or by a store employee and both possibilities are being investigated.

Lawyer swindled dad, Raupps allege

by JOANN VAN WYE

A prominent Palatine attorney has been accused of swindling the late Bernard A. Raupp, a member of Buffalo Grove's pioneer family, out of at least $160,000 in the sale of Raupp's 80-acre farm in Buffalo Grove.

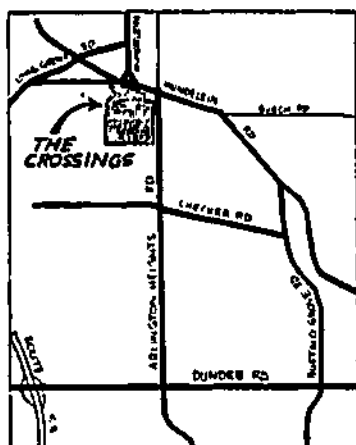

The attorney, Aribert F. Wild, represented Raupp in the sale of the property to a secret land trust of which Wild was the sole beneficiary. Wild then resold the property at a $160,000 profit, according to a suit filed in Lake County Circuit Court by Raupp's two sons.

The suit was filed last month by Leroy M. Raupp, 933 Checker Dr., Buffalo Grove, and Ralph C. Raupp, 1913 Seminole Ln., Mount Prospect, executors of the elder Raupp's estate.

It asks for damages and repayments from Wild totaling $1,060,000. That amount includes the $160,000 Wild made on the farm sale, $300,000 in damages and an additional $400,000 that Raupp lost because the land was sold for less than its market value, the suit says.

WILD, 75, COUL not be reached for comment. His secretary said Wild has been advised by his attorney not to discuss the suit.

The property in question, west of Arlington Heights Road and south of Ill. Rte. 83, is now part of The Crossings development owned by the Richards Group.

Raupp, who is described as "unschooled and unlettered in the English language" in the suit, signed a real estate contract Dec. 30, 1970 selling his 80-acre farm for $440,000 to a secret trust at Chicago Title and Trust Co. The contract called for a $40,000 down payment and five annual payments of $120,000.

Wild, Raupp's attorney in the deal, is accused of concealing from Raupp that he was the sole beneficiary of the trust which purchased the property.

No money was paid to Raupp for the sale of his property through 1971, according to the suit. An inventory of Raupp's estate at the time of his death Aug. 9, 1973 showed $467,419 still unpaid on the property.

ON MARCH 13, 1972, Wild is accused of selling the 80-acre Raupp farm and an additional 53 acres he owned adjacent to the property to developer James Otis Jr. of Northbrook. The property was sold at $10,000 an acre. The suit charges Wild "failed to divulge and concealed" that he had sold the farm for $800,000.

Wild's "deceptions and concealments . . . were intentional and wilful and purposefully calculated and planned to reap financial profit . . . at the expense of his client," the suit says.

Fair market value of the land at the time of the 1972 sale was $1.2 million, according to the suit.

Otis petitioned the Village of Buffalo Grove for annexation and multi-family zoning of the parcel, which was granted in August 1971. The property was then sold and is being developed by the Richards Group.

Wild, whose law office is at 119 E. Palatine Rd., Palatine, has been given until May 21 to file an answer to the suit.

Raupp's will called for equally dividing his estate among his six children, Leroy Raupp, Ralph Raupp, Robert J. Raupp, 7817 Rte. 14, Harvard; Donald B. Raupp, 418 Diane Dr., Palatine; Mary Ann Eder, 1046 Broadmoor, Deerfield; and Betty Lou Raupp, 1175 Parker Ln., Buffalo Grove. They would receive equal portions of any settlement.

THE CROSSINGS development in Buffalo Grove is going up on the former 80-acre Bernard Raupp farm. Aribert F. Wild, attorney for the sale of the farm, is charged in a suit with swindling the later Bernard Raupp out of $160,000 when he purchased the property for $640,000 under the cover of a blind trust and resold it for $800,000.

Village to fight bill to abolish food, drug taxes

by JOHN MAES

Buffalo Grove officials plan to oppose a state bill eliminating the 5 per cent sales tax from food and prescription drugs, saying the village will lose huge amounts of revenue.

Village Pres. Edward Fabish said Tuesday he plans to have a resolution drafted objecting to the bill, which is before a Senate committee.

The legislative proposal would raise present state sales tax from 5 to 6 per cent on other commodities to offset the end of sales tax on food and drugs.

FABISH SAID the bill could be "murderous" to the village financial picture and said he plans to use "every bit of ammunition we have" to fight the proposal. He estimates Buffalo Grove could lose between $70,000 and $90,000 yearly in sales tax revenues.

The village relies heavily on food and drug sales tax income. One cent of every dollar in sales comes back to the village.

He said he wants to obtain a copy of the bill to make a better determination as to how much the village would lose yearly. But he said if the amount is near the estimated $70,000 to $90,000, "we would have to cut back drastically on village operations."

"If it comes to that, we'd have to cut out the frills and stick with what is needed to maintain the village," said Fabish.

THE BILL is designed to aid the moderate income earner, the elderly and the unemployed who would no longer face the 5 per cent grocery tax but Fabish said that would be of little consequence in Buffalo Grove. "Our area is much higher per capita income and most of the shopping done here is by the people of the village."

Larson said the legislation, if enacted, could be "crucial" to Buffalo Grove as well as to a number of other suburbs that rely heavily on food and drug sales as a revenue source.

Currently, the village generates sales tax from the Jewel food store and the Mark Walgreen Pharmacy, both located in the Ranch Mart Shopping Center, Dundee and Buffalo Grove roads. Another source is a National food store in the Buffalo Grove Mall, Dundee and Arlington Heights roads.

An Eagle supermarket is included in the Plaza Verde Shopping Center currently under construction while officials recently approved a Kohl's supermarket for a shopping center to be built at Dundee and Buffalo Grove roads.

New trustees don't see budget shifts

Newly elected Buffalo Grove village officials said Tuesday they do not plan any major revisions in the village's 1975-76 budget, but may trim some minor expenditures.

"I can't see changing too much of it around," said Village Pres. Edward Fabish. "We might be able to eliminate some areas but the crux of the whole budget is: 'Will we get the amount of revenue projected?'"

Fabish and the three trustees sworn in Monday night, along with the three carry over trustees, are expected to vote on the $4.5 million budget next Monday.

IN THEIR LAST official action, outgoing village board members voted to table the budget until the next meeting so the new officials, Fabish and trustees Dorothy Berth, Robert Bogart and John Marienthal, will have a chance to review it.

Mrs. Berth and Marienthal said Tuesday they have questions to ask on some expenditures.

"I want to go through it," Marienthal said. "I do have some questions at the present time that I want fully resolved." He said his questions deal essentially with the "basis" of some budgetary expenses.

Mrs. Berth said the budget "seems like an awful lot of money to me."

Fabish to meet with new trustees

Village Pres. Edward Fabish of Buffalo Grove said he plans to meet Saturday with newly-elected village trustees in a briefing session on local affairs.

Fabish said Tuesday he was calling the session "merely to try and bring the trustees up to date and bring them more in line with the experienced trustees."

He said they will meet at 9 a.m. in the village hall, 50 Raupp Blvd.

He said board members would take no action on any village business but adding she too, wants to raise further questions on some budget expenses.

FABISH, MRS. BERTH and Marienthal said they were pleased the outgoing board decided to table the budget so newly-installed officials can act on it. "It was a fine gesture on their part," said Fabish.

Outgoing Village Pres. Gary Armstrong and trustees James Shirley, Edward Osmon and Randall Rathjen stepped down from the board Monday.

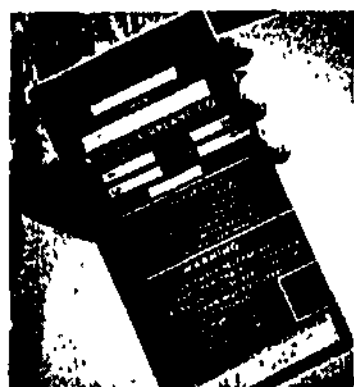

said the session will be to acquaint new trustees, Dorothy Berth, John Marienthal and Robert Bogart, with current village affairs.

Officials will talk about "everything we can discuss openly," mentioning that such items as pending litigation and personnel matters would be avoided because they are topics for executive sessions.

He said village finances and the planned public works facility are subjects that might be reviewed informally.

All four were unseated in the municipal election last week.

Last year, village officials did not approve the 1974-75 budget until mid-July, largely because of last-minute adjustments that had to be made because of a cement truck drivers' strike that caused construction slowdowns. In addition officials learned that tax revenues to Buffalo Grove would be received later than expected.

GRAHAM STEWART was struck on the shoulder by this thin metal plate when it fell from a Boeing 707 jet.

Man hit by falling object from jet

A part from a Boeing 707 jet fell in Rolling Meadows last weekend, striking Graham Stewart on his shoulder as he was dumping garbage outside his home.

Stewart, 65, of 3305 Pheasant Dr., was not injured by the part, a small, flat piece of metal with instructions printed on it for maintenance of the jet landing gear.

Stewart turned the metal part, which was attached to a long, metal strap, over to Rolling Meadows police. "I wasn't going to do anything, but I thought Rolling Meadows might keep a record of that stuff," he said.

The Air Carrier Inspection office of the Federal Aviation Administration is tracing the jet from which the piece fell Saturday afternoon. Officials have also shown the part to the Boeing Airplane Co.'s local office.

STEWART SAID the piece struck him lightly on the shoulder, and may have hit the edge of his roof first. He was bending over, putting some trash in a garbage can when it hit, and he didn't know what it was at first. He saw the piece lying on the driveway and threw it onto the porch before deciding to notify police.

"This is nothing," he said. "I suppose it could have injured someone if it struck them in the face."

An FAA spokesman said the part bears the name of the Boeing Co. and has instructions for servicing the landing gear. It is not an essential, operating part of the plane. It probably fell from a plane approaching O'Hare Airport for a landing, the spokesman said.

The Northwest suburbs have been plagued with falling objects in recent years. A large chunk of a door from a jet narrowly missed a surveyor and his stepdaughter in July 1974, when they were doing some work for the Arlington Heights Park District. That piece, measuring about one-by-1½ feet, landed near Belmont Avenue and Council Trail.

Other suburban residents have been plagued with flying sewage, but the FAA has declined to blame those incidents on jet aircraft, saying there is no way for the sewage to fall from the planes.

Attitude tests try to prove it

Catholics discover IGE 'intangibles'

by DOROTHY OLIVER
It is one thing for an educator to say that his individualized education program instills independence, self-respect and a love for learning in a child — but it is another thing to prove it.

Schools that have revamped their programs and included individualization — particularly those using Individually Guided Education — have been talking for years about its intangible benefits. But they've never had the statistics to back up their words.

The Archdiocese of Chicago, which supervises 48 individualized schools, is trying to put those elusive benefits down in black and white. "Educators in general were not too interested in student attitudes in years past," said Therese Panfil, IGE Coordinator for the archdiocese. "Now, especially in high school, they are saying the kids aren't too interested in school."

MISS PANFIL said the archdiocese has been testing academic aptitude for years and has found IGE schools compare equally with more traditional programs. "But other things are happening in these schools — kids are happier, there is a difference in their attitudes towards learning, towards their teachers, towards each other. We can see it, but we can't prove it's really true."

Three IGE schools in the Northwest suburbs, St. Thomas of Villanova, Palatine, St. Raymonds, Mount Prospect, and St. Stephens, Des Plaines, are involved in the archdiocesan testing of attitudes.

One series of tests deals with attitudes toward language arts, mathematics, teachers and learning in general. Questions range from "My teachers make some students look stupid" to "I have enough chances to work with others in small groups."

The Piers Harris Self Concept test, which is generally not given in schools, also will be given.

Results from both tests will be compared with those from traditional schools in the archdiocese. The final data will be available in November.

"This is something we've been asking for a long time," said Charles Swangren, principal of St. Thomas in Palatine. "IGE is designed to improve attitudes and we need specifics to show people why this particular program is good."

AN IGE program attempts to get away from the "sameness" of traditional education where desks are arranged in neat rows, students listen to the same lectures, use the same workbooks and are expected to progress at the same rate.

With IGE, students work alone or in small groups, teachers work in teams of two or more, and teacher aides assist in the classroom. Instead of grade levels, IGE schools are divided into units — primary, intermediate and junior high — and students of various ages work together in the same room. The traditional grading system, where a student competes with his classmates, has been revised so his grades reflect how much the student has done compared to what he is able to do.

"Kids in IGE really seem to enjoy coming to school more," said Swangren, who also has taught in traditional schools. "We don't seem to have any of the discipline problems they have."

"The junior high is where adolescent problems crop up, drugs, drinking, smoking. I haven't had one incident of that nature in the three years I've been here," he said.

SWANGREN attributes the decline in discipline problems to the more relaxed atmosphere at the school. "We don't hassle the kids about the little things like walking in straight lines or talking in the corridors. We created straight lines in education to keep kids from fighting in the halls or bothering other classes. Our IGE kids don't do the things we created straight lines to prevent," he said.

Swangren said St. Thomas has very

'Search for hit man undid Swimley murder plot'

by STIRLING MORITA
An assistant state's attorney said Tuesday a telephone call to a man with an Italian name in the mistaken belief he had crime syndicate connections led to the downfall of a Schaumburg woman's plot to kill her husband.

Charles Sklarsky, an assistant state's attorney, said in his opening remark of the Marlene Swimley murder-solicitation trial that a police investigation led to Mrs. Swimley's arrest after calls to a former Schaumburg man, known as "Godfather" to friends.

Thomas Mangione, Rochester, N.Y., who was called "Godfather" because of his Italian heritage by a few people when he lived in Schaumburg, testified before Judge Marvin E. Aspen that he received a message to return a call to Kevin Senne and that a person identifying himself as Senne told him he wanted a "hit man."

Sklarsky said the telephone call resulted from consultation among three teen-aged friends — two of whom were allegedly solicited by Mrs. Swimley to find a hit man for her husband, Duane Sr.

THE TWO YOUTHS called a former junior-high school friend in California, and he recommended they call Mangione, thought to have "Mafia" connections because of his nickname, Sklarsky told the two-man, 10-woman jury.

Rock DeSpain, formerly of Schaumburg, was the only other prosecution witness to testify Tuesday. He told the court that Mangione thought the call was a joke, but when DeSpain heard the name Senne, a friend of his stepson, he urged Mangione to pursue the matter to discover who was the intended victim.

After a second telephone call to the Chicago area, DeSpain mistakenly believed he was the target of a murder plot. "I believe anything is possible these days," he said.

DeSpain said he and Mangione went to Schaumburg police, who started an investigation.

SCHAUMBURG POLICE sought help from the state's attorney's office, and Mrs. Swimley was arrested at the Woodfield Shopping Center Jan. 24, 1974, after she allegedly handed over $100 as a down payment to "Jimmy Sunshine," an investigator posing as a hit man.

Louis Carbonaro, Mrs. Swimley's lawyer, told the jury in his opening statement, "They (the prosecution) would want you to believe that this 32-year-old woman went to a bunch of 14-year-olds to find a Mafia hit man. Is that believable?"

"It's all believable if you watch 'The Godfather' — that is."

Carbonaro implied there were some irregularities following Mrs. Swimley's arrest. He said a tape recording of the alleged money transfer showed that she was pressured into naming an amount and that she was giggling throughout the recording.

CARBONARO SAID an investigator reported that Mrs. Swimley had written her husband's address in Germany on a photograph, but that a handwriting expert's opinion would prove that it is not her handwriting on the paper.

He said Mrs. Swimley's home at 322 Meacham Rd. had been locked up and she was unable to get in for a day and that when she returned, it had been ransacked. "These small towns run their own police departments," he said.

Prosecution witnesses are expected to testify through Thursday. The trial resumes at 9:30 a.m. today.

Police arrest 2nd man for thefts from lockers

Buffalo Grove police have arrested a second suspect in a series of apartment building storage locker burglaries.

Jeffery L. Vlahovic, 18 of 775 Grove Dr., was charged with five counts of burglary following his arrest early Tuesday, said police investigator Robert Quid. Vlahovic was taken into custody at Borg-Warner Educational Systems, 600 University Dr., Arlington Heights, where he works as a stockboy, Quid said.

Police said Vlahovic and another Buffalo Grove youth, John P. Stander, burglarized five storage lockers at Villa Verde apartments, Arlington Heights and Dundee roads, March 30 taking at least $1,000 in belongings.

Stander, 17, also of 775 Grove, faces six burglary counts and a charge of possession of marijuana. He was arrested Friday.

When asked Tuesday if police had anyone else under suspicion in the case, Quid said, "I don't think we can tie anyone else to it."

Vlahovic was expected to be released on $2,000 bond Tuesday pending an April 29 hearing in the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court.

Boy, 17, indicted for attempted rape

A 17-year-old Wheeling youth has been indicted by the grand jury for the Dec. 29 attempted rape of a 32-year-old Buffalo Grove woman.

Wheeling police said the youth, Michael R. Wisdom, 823 Old McHenry Rd., was indicted Monday, but no trial date has been set. The alleged attack occurred near the Indian Trails Public Library, 850 Jenkins Ct., Wheeling.

4 boys, marijuana seized by police

Palatine and Buffalo Grove police arrested four juveniles Tuesday and seized $300 worth of marijuana and LSD after undercover agents allegedly purchased the drugs from the youths at a Burger King restaurant.

Sgt. Kenneth Blanchette of Buffalo Grove police, refused to identify the youths, all 15, but said two were from Northbrook and two from Palatine.

They were taken into custody at 4:30 p.m. at the Burger King restaurant, 301 N. Northwest Hwy., Palatine, after an undercover drug sale involving one of the juveniles and two Buffalo Grove policemen, Blanchette said.

Lawyer swindled dad, Raupps allege

by JOANN VAN WYE

A prominent Palatine attorney has been accused of swindling the late Bernard A. Raupp, a member of Buffalo Grove's pioneer family, out of at least $160,000 in the sale of Raupp's 80-acre farm in Buffalo Grove.

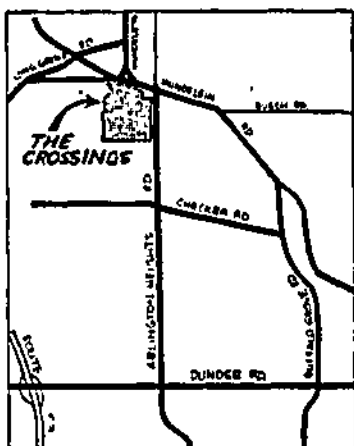

The attorney, Aribert F. Wild, represented Raupp in the sale of the property to a secret land trust of which Wild was the sole beneficiary. Wild then resold the property at a $160,000 profit, according to a suit filed in Lake County Circuit Court by Raupp's two sons.

The suit was filed last month by Leroy M. Raupp, 953 Checker Dr., Buffalo Grove, and Ralph C. Raupp, 1913 Seminole Ln., Mount Prospect, executors of the elder Raupp's estate.

It asks for damages and repayments from Wild totaling $1,060,000. That amount includes the $160,000 Wild made on the farm sale, $300,000 in damages and an additional $400,000 that Raupp lost because the land was sold for less than its market value, the suit says.

WILD, 75, COULD not be reached for comment. His secretary said Wild has been advised by his attorney not to discuss the suit.

The property in question, west of Arlington Heights Road and south of Ill. Rte. 63, is now part of The Crossings development owned by the Richards Group.

Raupp, who is described as "un-schooled and unlettered in the English language" in the suit, signed a real estate contract Dec. 30, 1970 selling his 80-acre farm for $640,000 to a secret trust at Chicago Title and Trust Co. The contract called for a $40,000 downpayment and five annual payments of $120,000.

Wild, Raupp's attorney in the deal, is accused of concealing from Raupp that he was the sole beneficiary of the trust which purchased the property.

No money was paid to Raupp for the sale of his property through 1971, according to the suit. An inventory of Raupp's estate at the time of his death Aug. 9, 1973 showed $467,419 still unpaid on the property.

ON MARCH 13, 1972, Wild is accused of selling the 80-acre Raupp farm and an additional 53 acres he owned adjacent to the property to developer James Otis Jr. of Northbrook. The property was sold at $10,000 an acre. The suit charges Wild "failed to divulge and concealed" that he had sold the farm for $800,000.

Wild's "deceptions and concealments... were intentional and wilful and purposefully calculated and planned to reap financial profit... at the expense of his client," the suit says.

Fair market value of the land at the time of the 1972 sale was $1.2 million, according to the suit.

Otis petitioned the Village of Buffalo Grove for annexation and multi-family zoning of the parcel, which was granted in August 1971. The property was then sold and is being developed by the Richards Group.

Wild, whose law office is at 119 E. Palatine Rd., Palatine, has been given until May 21 to file an answer to the suit.

Raupp's will called for equally dividing his estate among his six children, Leroy Raupp, Ralph Raupp, Robert J. Raupp, 7817 Rte. 14, Harvard; Donald B. Raupp, 418 Diane Dr., Palatine; Mary Ann Eder, 1045 Broadmoor, Deerfield; and Betty Lou Raupp, 1175 Parker Ln., Buffalo Grove. They would receive equal portions of any settlement.

THE CROSSINGS development in Buffalo Grove is going up on the former 80-acre Bernard Raupp farm. Aribert F. Wild, attorney for the sale of the farm, is charged in a suit with swindling the later Bernard Raupp out of $160,000 when he purchased the property for $640,000 under the cover of a blind trust and resold it for $800,000.

Before environmental panel

Car crusher to be studied

The Wheeling Environmental Commission tonight will consider a proposal to construct a controversial automobile crushing plant for the industrial area at Town Street and Wheeling Road.

Land proposed for the facility is being sold by a bank trust, whose beneficiaries are Zoning Board Member Roman Domas and his brother, Lambert, to Diamond Scrap Yards Inc., Waukegan.

The facility is to be a recycling center for scavenger autos and a processing plant for scrap. The company operates a similar plant in Waukegan.

William Rogers, commission chairman, said the commission is scheduled to hear information about the proposed facility and he said a recommendation to the village board could be made tonight.

"It depends on how much information we get," Rogers said. "We may feel we have enough information to make a decision or we may decide we need to know more and continue the hearing."

Rogers added that the commission wants to ensure the crusher will not prove environmentally harmful to residents living west of the site.

Residents in the area have voiced objection to the proposed facility saying it will create a nuisance.

The meeting is set for 7:30 p.m. in the conference room of the village hall, 255 W. Dundee Rd.

Stavros cousin involved

Apartments get zoning extension

by LUISA GINETTI

The Wheeling Village Board has extended the zoning for an apartment project in which Nicholas Phillips, cousin of political boss James Stavros, has been involved.

In a 4-to-1 vote Monday the board permitted an eight-month extension of the R-4 multi-family zoning for a three-acre site at 628 McHenry Rd. The zoning, granted two years ago to Charles Petrungaro and Phillips, was due to expire July 18.

Petrungaro asked for the extension to provide more time to obtain financing for the planned 60-unit apartment development.

PLANS FOR THE two-story structure were first approved in 1973 despite the recommendation by the North Cook County Water and Soil Conservation District that the rezoning from R-1 single-family to R-4 be denied because the site is in a flood plain.

Petrungaro purchased the site from Phillips, a planner for the County Zoning Board who is facing federal charges of extorting $50,000 from Wickes Corp. in exchange for zoning in Wheeling.

Stavros is serving a four-year term at the federal prison in Sandstone, Minn., following his conviction on charges of extortion, conspiracy and income tax evasion that stemmed from shakedowns of Wheeling developers.

Petrungaro said Tuesday he had hoped the board would grant him a two-year zoning extension. "I was a little disappointed with the eight-month extension because I frankly doubt if that will be enough time to obtain financing," Petrungaro said.

TRUSTEE Donald Jackson voted against the extension. Jackson also voted against granting the original zoning change for the property two years ago.

The board that granted the extension Monday is comprised of the same members who voted for the original rezoning. Four new trustees elected last week will take office May 5.

When he presented plans for the project two years ago, Petrungaro said the project would be a senior citizens apartment complex. However, when the zoning change was granted, Petrungaro said he would not restrict the rental of his apartments to senior citizens because he did not have federal funding for the project and to thus restrict it would be discriminatory.

In addition to the rezoning, four variations were granted with the rezoning based on testimony before the zoning board that the site was to be used by senior citizens. The variations allow for reduced floor space in the units as well as reduced parking facilities and lot area.

PETRUNGARO submitted his request for an extension in November, but Village Mgr. George Passolt held the petition until the matter came closer to the expiration date. Passolt said he did this because he believed the matter should not be considered eight months prior to the expiration date.

"When I purchased the property I paid for it predicated on the R-4 zoning and this purchase was not for speculated purpose," Petrungaro told the board in his petition. "If this property would revert back to R-1 zoning I will suffer an extreme financial loss on the property as well as considerable time and expense in preparing the necessary drawings for this project."

Petrungaro said he plans to start construction of the two-story build g as soon as he obtains financing.

GRAHAM STEWART was struck on the shoulder by this thin metal plate when it fell from a Boeing 707 jet.

Man hit by falling object from jet

The inside story

A part from a Boeing 707 jet fell in Rolling Meadows last weekend, striking Graham Stewart on his shoulder as he was dumping garbage outside his home.

Stewart, 65, of 3305 Pheasant Dr., was not injured by the part, a small, flat piece of metal with instructions printed on it for maintenance of the jet landing gear.

Stewart turned the metal part, which was attached to a long, metal strap, over to Rolling Meadows police. "I wasn't going to do anything, but I thought Rolling Meadows might keep a record of that stuff," he said.

The Air Carrier Inspection office of the Federal Aviation Administration is tracing the jet from which the piece fell Saturday afternoon. Officials have also shown the part to the Boeing Airplane Co.'s local office.

STEWART SAID the piece struck him lightly on the shoulder, and may have hit the edge of his roof first. He was bending over, putting some trash in a garbage can when it hit, and he didn't know what it was at first. He saw the piece lying on the driveway and threw it onto the porch before deciding to notify police.

"This is nothing," he said. "I suppose it could have injured someone if it struck them in the face."

An FAA spokesman said the part bears the name of the Boeing Co. and has instructions for servicing the landing gear. It is not an essential, operating part of the plane. It probably fell from a plane approaching O'Hare Airport for a landing, the spokesman said.

The Northwest suburbs have been the target of other falling objects in recent years. A large chunk of a door from a jet narrowly missed a surveyor and his stepdaughter in July 1974, when they were doing some work for the Arlington Heights Park District. That piece, measuring about one-by-1 1/2 feet, landed near Belmont Avenue and Council Trail.

Other suburban residents have been plagued with flying sewage, but the FAA has declined to blame those incidents on jet aircraft, saying there is no way for the sewage to fall from the planes.

$3,500 in jewelry stolen in home burglary here

Burglars broke into two houses in the 100 block of Meadowbrook Lane Monday, taking $3,500 worth of jewelry from one of the homes, Wheeling police said.

The jewelry, which included four diamond rings and two necklaces, was taken from the John G. Boras home, 107 Meadowbrook Ln., after the burglars entered the home by breaking a window in the kitchen door, police said. Some $20 worth of foreign coins also was stolen.

Police said apparently nothing was taken in the other burglary, at the Richard C. Prather residence, 115 Meadowbrook Ln. The patio door apparently was forced open and the burglars entered the kitchen, and a bedroom, where a jewelry box was tipped over, police said. They said an attempt also was made to force open a kitchen window.

Police also reported two other burglaries Tuesday.

The first occurred early Monday at Hawthorne School, 200 Glendale Ave. Police said apparently nothing was broken, although a window was broken and access was gained to the nurse's area and personnel office.

The other burglary, on which no details were available Tuesday, occurred at 325 Thelma Ct.

Institute offers aid to students

Need help choosing a college?

High school sophomores and juniors, uncertain about what college to attend or career to follow, will be able to get help in making up their minds this summer in a weeklong career college planning institute.

The institute, which will offer special programs for parents and students, also will feature visits to 11 Midwestern colleges.

Sponsored by the Southminster Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights, the institute is being coordinated by Michael Mulligan, regional director of the American College Testing Program, who is a member of the church.

"Some 92,000 students wrote ACT last year and 49 per cent needed some assistance with educational or vocational plans," Mulligan said. "So we decided to do something like this as a church project because it's not offered here."

MULLIGAN said that as part of his job he has staged similar institutes in his territory, which covers Wisconsin and Michigan.

"It's a student-motivation program — an opportunity for students to look at their abilities and interests," Mulligan said.

Registration for the institutes, which will cost $190, will close May 30. Two sessions, limited to 42 students each, will be offered June 21-27 and Aug. 9-15.

Mulligan said the charge covers all materials, tests, food and lodging on the tour, bus expenses and professional counseling.

Parents and students will have an opportunity to compare their interests, values and reasons for college choices with one another, Mulligan said.

IN ADDITION to the evaluations, testing, and campus tours, the week will include a mixed-doubles tennis

Canvass shows official vote tallies

The official vote canvass for last week's Wheeling election showed the following results:

For three four-year terms on the village board: Charles M. Kerr, 1,420 votes; John C. Cole, 1,410; Gilbert J. Monoson, 1,159; Roger A. Powers, 811; William A. Rogers, 772; Nelson Brant, 765; Kenneth R. Brady, 741; John W. Koeppe, 648; and Albert W. Lang, 626.

For one two-year term on the board: Otis L. Hedlund, 1,476 votes; Robert E. Clark, 715, and Edward A. Berger, 593.

Less than 50 per cent of the village's total number of registered voters turned out for the election with only 2,784 persons voting. The total number of registered voters in the village is more than 7,000.

All four winning candidates in the election were members of the Wheeling Improvement Party ticket. Incumbent trustees defeated in their bids for reelection were Koeppe, Lang and Berger.

4 boys, marijuana seized by police

Palatine and Buffalo Grove police arrested four juveniles Tuesday and seized $500 worth of marijuana and LSD after undercover agents allegedly purchased the drugs from the youths at a Burger King restaurant.

Sgt. Kenneth Blanchette of Buffalo Grove police, refused to identify the youths, all 15, but said two were from Northbrook and two from Palatine.

They were taken into custody at 4:30 p.m. at the Burger King restaurant, 301 N. Northwest Hwy., Palatine, after an undercover drug sale involving one of the juveniles and two Buffalo Grove policemen, Blanchette said.

Blanchette said local police became involved in the arrest after receiving a tip from an informant.

The youths were released to their parents pending juvenile court action, Blanchette said.

Apartment dweller robs neighbor

An apartment dweller knocked a hole in his wall and climbed through the hole to burglarize a neighbor's apartment, Wheeling police said.

Police said the apartment of Jean M. Linder, 62 S. Wolf Rd., was burglarized after 7:45 a.m. Monday. Police said a $40 digital clock radio and more than $900 worth of jewelry, much of it antique, were stolen.

A hole was found in the closet of the woman's apartment leading to the next apartment, leased by Robert J. Thorel, 26, police said.

Residents tell village

Land tax preferred to closing fire unit

by PAT GERLACH

Many Hoffman Estates residents protesting the possible closing of Fire Station 2 said Tuesday night they would prefer an increase in property tax to keep four fire stations operating in the village.

"I'm willing to pay a higher property tax rate to keep the station, but I'm not happy with the 3 per cent utility tax. I want that gone," said Lawrence E. Pitzker, 332 Newport Rd., to the applause of some 120 residents attending the first of two public hearings this week.

Petitions signed by 780 persons asking the station be kept open were presented last month to the village board by residents of the Highpoint and Highlands subdivisions near the station.

The suggestion to close Hassell Road Station 2 comes from a 1973 consultant study indicating the facility would not be needed once the nearby Moon Lake firehouse was opened in 1974.

Howard Emmerman, 312 Nottingham Dr., Tuesday called for a second consultant study to determine which of the four stations should be closed before a discussion is made.

Emmerman and other residents said they dispute the belief that any area of the village can be reached within four minutes of the Flagstaff, Moon Lake and Mumford Drive stations and questioned if test runs were made during rush hour traffic.

Other residents at the hearing called for a referendum, supporting Pitzker's proposal and said they do not favor the utility tax levied Jan. 1 to help defray a deficit in the Hoffman Estates Fire Protection District's accounts. The fire district was taken over by the village Dec. 31 when a municipal fire department was formed.

VILLAGE PRES. Virginia Hayter told citizens a $30 tax increase would

High school board members reelect Creek as president

Robert Creek was reelected president of the High School Dist. 211 Board of Education by a 6-to-0 vote of the board Tuesday night.

Creek, 1603 Appleby Rd., Inverness, has served as president since his election to the board in 1970. Creek is vice president-administrator for Union Oil Co. Palatine Township.

Board Member Edward Perry explained his vote for Creek, saying although several board members are qualified for the presidency, "None of them have the resources and experience in the many fields that you have."

Board member Anna Countryman, who was elected to a second term April 12, will continue to serve as the board's representative at the opening of all bids for district purchases.

Board member Jean Flisler will con-

Prosecution contends in Swimley trial:

'Hit-man search undid murder plot'

by STIRLING MORITA

An assistant state's attorney said Tuesday a telephone call to a man with an Italian name in the mistaken belief he had crime syndicate connections led to the downfall of a Schaumburg woman's plot to kill her husband.

Charles Sklarsky, an assistant state's attorney, said in his opening remark of the Marlene Swimley murder-solicitation trial that a police investigation led to Mrs. Swimley's arrest after calls to a former Schaumburg man, known as "Godfather" to friends.

Thomas Mangione, Rochester, N.Y., who was called "Godfather" because of his Italian heritage by a few people when he lived in Schaumburg, testified before Judge Marvin E. Aspen that he received a message to return a call to Kevin Senne and that a person identifying himself as Senne told him he wanted a "hit man."

Sklarsky said the telephone call resulted from consultation among three teen-aged friends — two of whom were allegedly solicited by Mrs. Swimley to find a hit man for her husband, Duane Sr.

THE TWO YOUTHS called a former junior-high school friend in California, and he recommended they call Mangione, thought to have "Mafia" connections because of his nickname, Sklarsky told the two-man, 10-woman jury.

Rock DeSpain, formerly of Schaumburg, was the only other prosecution witness to testify Tuesday. He told the court that Mangione thought the call was a joke, but when DeSpain heard the name Senne, a friend of his stepson, he urged Mangione to pursue the matter to discover who was the intended victim.

After a second telephone call to the Chicago area, DeSpain mistakenly believed he was the target of a murder plot. "I believe anything is possible these days," he said.

DeSpain said he and Mangione went to Schaumburg police, who started an investigation.

SCHAUMBURG POLICE sought help from the state's attorney's office, and Mrs. Swimley was arrested at the Woodfield Shopping Center Jan. 24, 1974, after she allegedly handed over $100 as a down payment to "Jimmy Sunshine," an investigator posing as a hit man.

Louis Carbonaro, Mrs. Swimley's lawyer, told the jury in his opening statement, "They (the prosecution) would want you to believe that this 32-year-old woman went to a bunch of 14-year-olds to find a Mafia hit man. Is that believable?"

"It's all believable if you watch 'The Godfather' — that is."

Carbonaro implied there were some irregularities following Mrs. Swimley's arrest. He said a tape recording of the alleged money transfer showed that she was pressured into naming an amount and that she was giggling throughout the recording.

CARBONARO SAID an investigator reported that Mrs. Swimley had written her husband's address in Germany on a photograph, but that a handwriting expert's opinion would prove that it is not her handwriting on the paper.

He said Mrs. Swimley's home at 322 Meacham Rd. had been locked up and she was unable to get in for a day and that when she returned, it had been ransacked. "These small towns run their own police departments," he said.

Prosecution witnesses are expected to testify through Thursday. The trial resumes at 9:30 a.m. today.

THE CROSSINGS development in Buffalo Grove is going up on the former 80-acre Bernard Raupp farm. Aribert F. Wild, attorney for the sale of the farm, is charged in a suit with swindling the late Bernard Raupp out of $150,000 when he purchased the property for $640,000 under the cover of a blind trust and resold it for $800,000.

Raupps charge lawyer bilked dad of thousands

by JOANN VAN WYE

A prominent Palatine attorney has been accused of swindling the late Bernard A. Raupp, a member of Buffalo Grove's pioneer family, out of at least $150,000 in the sale of Raupp's 80-acre farm in Buffalo Grove.

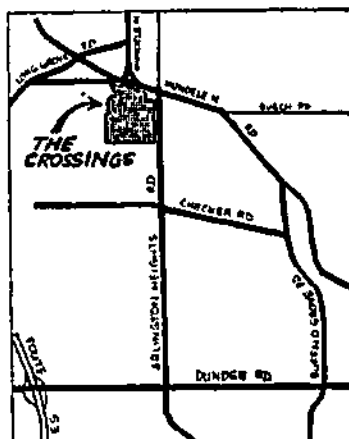

The attorney, Aribert F. Wild, represented Raupp in the sale of the property to a secret land trust of which Wild was the sole beneficiary. Wild then resold the property at a $150,000 profit, according to a suit filed in Lake County Circuit Court by Raupp's two sons.

The suit was filed last month by Leroy M. Raupp, 955 Checker Dr., Buffalo Grove, and Ralph C. Raupp, 1913 Seminole Ln., Mount Prospect, executors of the elder Raupp's estate.

It asks for damages and repayments from Wild totaling $1,060,000. That amount includes the $160,000 Wild made on the farm sale, $500,000 in damages and an additional $400,000 that Raupp lost because the land was sold for less than its market value, the suit says.

WILD, 75, COULD not be reached for comment. His secretary said Wild has been advised by his attorney not to discuss the suit.

The property in question, west of Arlington Heights Road and south of Ill. Rte. 83, is now part of The Crossings development owned by the Richards Group.

Raupp, who is described as "unschooled and unlettered in the English language" in the suit, signed a real estate contract Dec. 30, 1970 selling his 80-acre farm for $640,000 to a secret trust at Chicago Title and Trust Co. The contract called for a $40,000 downpayment and five annual payments of $120,000.

Wild, Raupp's attorney in the deal, is accused of concealing from Raupp that he was the sole beneficiary of the trust which purchased the property.

No money was paid to Raupp for the sale of his property through 1971, according to the suit. An inventory of Raupp's estate at the time of his death Aug. 9, 1973 showed $467,419 still unpaid on the property.

ON MARCH 13, 1972, Wild is accused of selling the 80-acre Raupp farm and an additional 53 acres he owned adjacent to the property to developer James Otis Jr. of Northbrook. The property was sold at $10,000 an acre. The suit charges Wild "failed to divulge and concealed" that he had sold the farm for $800,000.

Wild's "deceptions and concealments . . . were intentional and willful and purposefully calculated and planned to reap financial profit . . . at the expense of his client," the suit says.

Fair market value of the land at the time of the 1972 sale was $1.2 million, according to the suit.

Otis petitioned the Village of Buffalo Grove for annexation and multi-family zoning of the parcel, which was granted in August 1971. The property was then sold and is being developed by the Richards Group.

Wild, whose law office is at 119 E. Palatine Rd., Palatine, has been given until May 21 to file an answer to the suit.

Raupp's will called for equally dividing his estate among his six children, Leroy Raupp, Ralph Raupp, Robert J. Raupp, 7817 Rte. 14, Harvard; Donald B. Raupp, 418 Diane Dr., Palatine; Mary Ann Eder, 1046 Broadmoor, Deerfield; and Betty Lou Raupp, 1175 Parker Ln., Buffalo Grove. They would receive equal portions of any settlement.

GRAHAM STEWART was struck on the shoulder by this thin metal plate when it fell from a Boeing 707 jet.

Man hit by falling object from jet

The inside story

A part from a Boeing 707 jet fell in Rolling Meadows last weekend, striking Graham Stewart on his shoulder as he was dumping garbage outside his home.

Stewart, 65, of 3305 Pheasant Dr., was not injured by the part, a small, flat piece of metal with instructions printed on it for maintenance of the jet landing gear.

Stewart turned the metal part, which was attached to a long, metal strap, over to Rolling Meadows police. "I wasn't going to do anything, but I thought Rolling Meadows might keep a record of that stuff," he said.

The Air Carrier Inspection Office of the Federal Aviation Administration is tracing the jet from which the piece fell Saturday afternoon. Officials have also shown the part to the Boeing Airplane Co.'s local office.

STEWART SAID the piece struck him lightly on the shoulder, and may have hit the edge of his roof first. He was bending over, putting some trash in a garbage can when it hit, and he didn't know what it was at first. He saw the piece lying on the driveway and threw it onto the porch before deciding to notify police.

"This is nothing," he said. "I suppose it could have injured someone if it struck them in the face."

An FAA spokesman said the part bears the name of the Boeing Co. and has instructions for servicing the landing gear. It is not an essential, operating part of the plane. It probably fell from a plane approaching O'Hare Airport for a landing, the spokesman said.

The Northwest suburbs have been the target of other falling objects in recent years. A large chunk of a door from a jet narrowly missed a surveyor and his stepdaughter in July 1974, when they were doing some work for the Arlington Heights Park District. That piece, measuring about one-by-1½ feet, landed near Belmont Avenue and Council Trail.

Other suburban residents have been plagued with flying sewage, but the FAA has declined to blame those incidents on jet aircraft, saying there is no way for the sewage to fall from the planes.

THE SUBJECT OF a public hearing Tuesday was Fire Station 2 in Hoffman Estates. The Hassell Road station may be closed if the village board decides against operating four full-time stations. Residents in the area want the station kept open. Several organizations have asked for the building if it is closed.

Fire station closing protested

be an "acceptable" amount for fire protection "if that would be all you would have to pay for," adding she would be remiss not to remind residents the cost of other services also will rise. "Your referendum would be one sided, you would be pitting one side of our village against another," she said.

According to figures presented by Village Mgr. George Longmeyer, closing Station 2 would save about $25,000 annually in bond payments and maintenance, provided another municipal government would take over the Hassell Road building.

Longmeyer said manpower and equipment at the abandoned station would be transferred to the larger Moon Lake firehouse which is used as administrative headquarters for the fire department though is not equipped to fight fires. A fourth station would require additional expenses in equipment and firefighters, he said.

Residents told village officials they were not satisfied with Tuesday's presentation, suggesting it was deliberately scheduled after the April 15 village election, and grumbled that Mrs. Hayter, Longmeyer and others were not "fully answering our questions."

Though several groups, including the Schaumburg Township Library and Hoffman Estates Park District have expressed interest in the station and asked the village to consider releasing it, specific alternative uses were not discussed during 2½ hours of discussion Tuesday.

PITZER SUGGESTED that if the village board has not yet made a firm decision on station closing, a compromise be considered. "Perhaps you could cut Station 2 manpower and equipment, moving some of each to Moon Lake to provide some sort of coverage in Hillpoint and Highlands," he said.

Mrs. Hayter assured those present they would be advised when the village board would take action and said residents feelings will be given consideration.

A second hearing, identical in presentation to Tuesday's will be held Thursday at 8 p.m. at Hoffman Estates High School, 1100 W. Higgins Rd. It is open to the public.

$115,397 OK'd by Schaumburg for road work

The Schaumburg Village Board allocated $115,397 in motor fuel tax funds Tuesday night for street resurfacing and other maintenance projects during the 1975-76 fiscal year.

Leiminger-Mid-States Paving Co. Inc., Ill. was awarded the street resurfacing contract with a low bid of $71,835. Albin Carlson Co. was awarded the curb, gutter and sidewalk removal and replacement project contract with a low bid of $12,341.50.

The village awarded its salt supplier contract to Cargill Inc., Chicago, which submitted a low bid of $15,375. Arrow Construction Co. was awarded the asphalt-patching material and prime coat material contract for $14,404.50.

The village contracted Material Service Corp., Chicago, for crushed stone for $460 and contracted the Premiere Sales Co. for traffic paint for $983.50.

The board also authorized an additional $50,000 in motor fuel tax funds for additional street resurfacing work on the recommendation of Village Engineer Joseph E. Zgonina.

The village expects to collect about $350,000 in motor fuel tax funds in 1975-76, which is revenue received annually from the state based on gasoline sales tax.

HOFFMAN ESTATES Highlands and High Point subdivision residents strongly oppose the planned closing of Hassell Road Fire Station 2, a proposal outlined by Village Mgr. George Longmeyer and other officials Tuesday in the first of two public hearings on the issue scheduled this week.

Blood pressure tests

Members of the Hoffman Estates Professional Firefighters Assn. will take free blood pressure readings Thursday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Hoffman Plaza shopping center. Written results of the readings will be given to persons tested.

Jenkins to leave federal prison today with parole

Roy L. Jenkins, the last of six former Hoffman Estates officials jailed for involvement in a 1968 zoning scandal, will be released today from federal prison.

Jenkins, 46, is scheduled to be released from the Community Treatment Center in Los Angeles, a transfer facility for prisoners awaiting parole. Jenkins, who served as village president from 1965 to 1969, was sent to the facility from the federal prison in Lompoc, Calif., after a parole board consented to his release in January.

The former village president will have served 16 months of a two-year sentence after he pleaded guilty in

Roy L. Jenkins

1973 to accepting bribes from Kaufman and Broad Homes Inc. for the 1968 zoning of the firm's Barrington Square project.

JENKINS WAS a principal in the bribery scheme in which money was channeled from K&B attorney Bernard Peskin to Jenkins and five other officials. He received the longest sentence of the six.

Peskin, who was found guilty for his role in the scandal, has yet to be sentenced, pending the outcome of appeals.

Other former officials already paroled include Edward Pinger, who served as the village's first president from 1959 to 1965; Herbert C. Gibson, James L. Sloan, Gerald L. Meyer and Howard J. Noble, all of whom were trustees.

The 1973 federal indictment also named K&B, which pleaded no contest to the charge and paid a $50,000 fine.

Jenkins, who moved to California after his term as village president, is expected to return to his West Coast residence upon his release.

K-Mart won't be built; shop center plan afoot

Plans for a K-Mart shopping center on 18 acres near Gannon Drive and Golf Road in Hoffman Estates have been dropped by the developer.

The planned shopping center, which village officials approved in November, will not be built, Plan Commission Chairman Richard Regan confirmed Tuesday. Regan said he received a letter from the land owner, Samuel Alexander, saying his contract obligations with the K-Mart developers have expired.

Spokesmen for E. N. Maisel and Associates, developers of K-Mart and S. S. Kresge outlets, have been unavailable for comment.

Regan said, however, that another development group is planning to present a new proposal for an enclosed shopping mall on the 18-acre site. He said the plans apparently are similar to the K-Mart proposal, but said specifics will be announced when the developers come before village officials.

THE K-MART project was first proposed to village officials last year. Hearings on the project lasted several months as the village plan commission and board of trustees reviewed and revised development plans.

The shopping center was originally to have included a 96,000-square-foot K-Mart, a grocery store and a number of small shops in an open mall area.

Before final approval was granted by the village board, however, the developers presented revised plans aimed at reducing the cost of the project. The revisions included a smaller K-Mart building and reduced landscaping around the project.

The board in November agreed to approve the project, annexing the 18-acre site to the village and rezoning the land to permit the shopping center.

K-Mart representatives said in the fall construction on the project would begin this spring. There was speculation recently, however, that development plans were not proceeding as scheduled and that the project would be abandoned.

Part of Schaumburg Road to be closed

Schaumburg Road west of Spring-insburgh Road will be closed today from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. for installation of the Walnut Lane trunk sewer, said Village Engineer Joseph Zgonina.

Traffic will be rerouted from Schaumburg Road north on Spring-insburgh Road and west on Bode Road to Barrington Road, Zgonina said. Schaumburg Road will be open to local traffic only as far west as Walnut Lane he said.

Installation of the main run of the $550,000 sewer will be completed this week, though restoration may take another three months, the engineer said. Cost of the installation is being paid for by Levitt & Sons and the village.

Election code violations charged

Miseska to demand discovery recount

by NANCY COWGER

Defeated Rolling Meadows mayoral candidate William J. Miseska will demand a partial recount and possibly contest the election results in Circuit Court, his attorney said Tuesday night.

The attorney, William F. Scannell, said he would file a petition with the city clerk's office today requesting a discovery recount.

He said he probably would file suit in Circuit Court charging that violations of the state election code occurred in the April 15 election and asking the court to overturn the victory of incumbent Mayor Roland J. Meyer, who was sworn into office Tuesday night.

OFFICIAL RETURNS reported Tuesday showed Meyer beating Miseska by 69 votes, pulling 1,817 votes to Miseska's 1,748. Unofficial returns last week showed Meyer with a 79-vote lead.

"It is apparently obvious there were violations of the Illinois Election Code," Scannell said. State law directs that election judges return sealed envelopes to the clerk's office the night of the election, and the envelopes must remain sealed until the official canvass by the city elections board, in this case the city council, he said.

"We have just observed the clerk walking out (of administrative offices) with unsealed returns," Scannell said as Clerk Eileen Kornatz headed for the council chambers prior to the meeting Tuesday night.

"THERE WAS widespread voting by affidavit," and Mrs. Kornatz "admitted they did not prepare poll sheets," Scannell said. He said Mrs. Kornatz refused him permission to examine affidavit forms, and said "we have reason to believe people were voting in precincts where they were not entitled to."

Scannell alleged each of the procedures he mentioned is a violation of state law and could be grounds for a court order reversing the election results.

Meyer and Mrs. Kornatz had no comment on Scannell's allegations. City Atty. Donald M. Rose said he would not comment on the charges until Scannell files suit.

MISESKA OR his attorney has five days from the date of the canvass, conducted Tuesday night, to file a discovery recount petition. The city must conduct a recount in no less than three days and no later than the next regular council meeting, May 13, Rose said. A special council meeting could be called, but is not required, he said.

In a discovery recount, a candidate may demand a recount of up to 25 percent of the precincts in an election, although he must pay $10 for each precinct counted, Miseska said earlier Tuesday his supporters already were raising funds for the recount and attorney's fees, although he paid all his own campaign expenses until this week.

Scannell said he expected Miseska would wait until after the discovery recount to file suit, "although in this case the deficiencies would seem to be serious enough to warrant immediate petition to the circuit court." He said he also is considering federal court action.

Zeller abandons plans for 3rd Ward recount

by NANCY COWGER

Charles W. Zeller, unsuccessful 3rd Ward aldermanic candidate in Rolling Meadows, announced Tuesday he has abandoned plans to seek a vote recount in order to protect his supporters from reprisals by Mayor Roland J. Meyer.

Zeller lost by seven votes to Ald. John T. Rock, and said last week he would demand a recount.

"In light of the events that took place shortly after the election, mainly statements by the mayor, I don't really feel I want to put some of the people that supported me in a position where they might be injured," Zeller said. Rock won on Meyer's Citizens Action Party 1975 slate.

Meyer vowed last week to demand resignations from two city commissioners who supported William J. Miseska, unsuccessful mayoral challenger, and city fire employees who worked for Miseska.

While some employees are protected from arbitrary firings by the police and fire commission, which has sole authority in hiring and firing in police and fire departments, Meyer said he would take any action available to him against employees that he cannot fire himself.

NEITHER of the two commissioners, Richard Kornatz of the zoning board and Richard Schar of the plan commission, has submitted a resignation. Schar declined to comment except to say he had not resigned as of Tuesday night. He said he put a Miseska sign on his car and another on his front door. He did not lobby among potential voters, he said.

Kornatz, who confirmed last week he had worked in Miseska's campaign, said Monday he would make Meyer fire him publicly. He refuses to resign, he said.

"As long as he demanded it (a resignation) publicly, we might as well follow through publicly. Let him fire me publicly," Kornatz said.

Both Schar and Kornatz were appointed for terms continuing through this year, Kornatz until May 1977 and Schar until May 1976.

Zeller said he was concerned that some of his supporters, "some of them in sensitive positions," might be subject to the same retribution. Zeller emphasized he was not directing his statement at Rock and said Rock "ran a clean campaign."

"I have no personal fear at all of what the mayor might do to me. However, I have some loyal people whom I would like to protect," Zeller said. None of his supporters is a city hall employee, and none has been threatened directly, Zeller said, but he took the mayor's remarks as an indirect threat.

ZELLER SAID he has been encouraged by his workers to proceed with a recount, and has been advised by an attorney he has a better than 50 percent chance of changing the results of the election if he should do so.

Zeller said he witnessed "people who work in city hall working in the mayor's campaign," although he refused to name them because "they certainly have a right to work politically for anyone they choose. 'It's a free country, the last I heard,'" he said.

Zeller also said he would "continue to keep my finger on the pulse of city politics," and work in campaigns two years from now, although he may not run for office.

Woman of Year nominations close Friday

Friday is the last day to nominate contestants as Rolling Meadows Woman of the Year.

The contest is sponsored by the Rolling Meadows Junior Woman's Club and the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center Assn. as an observance of the city's 20th anniversary. Nominating letters may be mailed or delivered to city hall, 3600 Kirchhoff Rd.

Nominees must be residents of the city and at least 21 years old. They will be judged on their activities in volunteer work or "just helping other people as well as their families," said Phyllis Peszek, chairman of the coordinating committee. She suggested listing PTA, church, school or other activities of the nominee, as well as "any other good qualities she has."

The winner will be a guest of the city at the 20th Anniversary Grand Ball May 24 and will receive a commemorative plaque in addition to other prizes.

Women's softball tryouts next week

The Rolling Meadows Park District women's softball team tryouts will begin at 6:30 p.m. Monday and Tuesday at Cardinal Drive Field, Campbell Street and Cardinal Drive. The league will play Wednesday nights from May 28-Aug. 22.

THE CROSSINGS development in Buffalo Grove is going up on the former 80-acre Bernard Raupp farm. Aribert F. Wild, attorney for the sale of the farm, is charged in a suit with swindling the later Bernard Raupp out of $160,000 when he purchased the property for $640,000 under the cover of a blind trust and resold it for $800,000.

Raupps charge lawyer bilked dad of thousands

by JOANN VAN WYE

A prominent Palatine attorney has been accused of swindling the late Bernard A. Raupp, a member of Buffalo Grove's pioneer family, out of at least $160,000 in the sale of Raupp's 80-acre farm in Buffalo Grove.

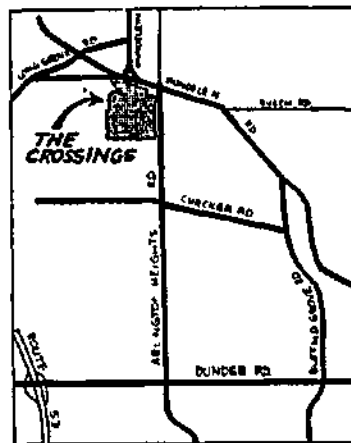

The attorney, Aribert F. Wild, represented Raupp in the sale of the property to a secret land trust of which Wild was the sole beneficiary. Wild then resold the property at a $160,000 profit, according to a suit filed in Lake County Circuit Court by Raupp's two sons.

The suit was filed last month by Leroy M. Raupp, 955 Checker Dr., Buffalo Grove, and Ralph C. Raupp, 1913 Seminole Ln., Mount Prospect, executors of the elder Raupp's estate.

It asks for damages and repayments from Wild totaling $1,060,000. That amount includes the $160,000 Wild made on the farm sale, $500,000 in damages and an additional $400,000 that Raupp lost because the land was sold for less than its market value, the suit says.

WILD, 75, COULD not be reached for comment. His secretary said Wild has been advised by his attorney not to discuss the suit.

The property in question, west of Arlington Heights Road and south of Ill. Rte. 83, is now part of The Crossings development owned by the Richards Group.

Raupp, who is described as "unschooled and unlettered in the English language" in the suit, signed a real estate contract Dec. 30, 1970 selling his 80-acre farm for $640,000 to a secret trust at Chicago Title and Trust Co. The contract called for a $40,000 downpayment and five annual payments of $120,000.

Wild, Raupp's attorney in the deal, is accused of concealing from Raupp that he was the sole beneficiary of the trust which purchased the property.

No money was paid to Raupp for the sale of his property through 1971, according to the suit. An inventory of Raupp's estate at the time of his death Aug. 9, 1973 showed $467,419 still unpaid on the property.

ON MARCH 13, 1972, Wild is accused of selling the 80-acre Raupp farm and an additional 53 acres he owned adjacent to the property to developer James Otis Jr. of Northbrook. The property was sold at $10,000 an acre. The suit charges Wild "failed to divulge and concealed" that he had sold the farm for $800,000.

Wild's "deceptions and concealments . . . were intentional and wilful and purposefully calculated and planned to reap financial profit . . . at the expense of his client," the suit says.

Fair market value of the land at the time of the 1972 sale was $1.2 million, according to the suit.

Otis petitioned the Village of Buffalo Grove for annexation and multi-family zoning of the parcel, which was granted in August 1971. The property was then sold and is being developed by the Richards Group.

Wild, whose law office is at 119 E. Palatine Rd., Palatine, has been given until May 21 to file an answer to the suit.

Raupp's will called for equally dividing his estate among his six children, Leroy Raupp, Ralph Raupp, Robert J. Raupp, 7817 Rte. 14, Harvard; Donald B. Raupp, 418 Diane Dr., Palatine; Mary Ann Eder, 1046 Broadmoor, Deerfield; and Betty Lou Raupp, 1175 Parker Ln., Buffalo Grove. They would receive equal portions of any settlement.

GRAHAM STEWART was struck on the shoulder by this thin metal plate when it fell from a Boeing 707 jet.

Man hit by falling object from jet

The inside story

A part from a Boeing 707 jet fell in Rolling Meadows last weekend, striking Graham Stewart at his shoulder as he was dumping garbage outside his home.

Stewart, 65, of 3305 Pheasant Dr., was not injured by the part, a small, flat piece of metal with instructions printed on it for maintenance of the jet landing gear.

Stewart turned the metal part, which was attached to a long, metal strap, over to Rolling Meadows police. "I wasn't going to do anything, but I thought Rolling Meadows might keep a record of that stuff," he said.

The Air Carrier Inspection office of the Federal Aviation Administration is tracing the jet from which the piece fell Saturday afternoon. Officials have also shown the part to the Boeing Airplane Co.'s local office.

STEWART SAID the piece struck him lightly on the shoulder, and may have hit the edge of his roof first. He was bending over, putting some trash in a garbage can when it hit, and he didn't know what it was at first. He saw the piece lying on the driveway and threw it onto the porch before deciding to notify police.

"This is nothing," he said. "I suppose it could have injured someone if it struck them in the face."

An FAA spokesman said the part bears the name of the Boeing Co. and has instructions for servicing the landing gear. It is not an essential, operating part of the plane. It probably fell from a plane approaching O'Hare Airport for a landing, the spokesman said.

The Northwest suburbs have been the target of other falling objects in recent years. A large chunk of a door from a jet narrowly missed a surveyor and his stepdaughter in July 1974, when they were doing some work for the Arlington Heights Park District. That piece, measuring about one-by-1 1/4 feet, landed near Belmont Avenue and Council Trail.

Other suburban residents have been plagued with flying sewage, but the FAA has declined to blame those incidents on jet aircraft, saying there is no way for the sewage to fall from the planes.

'Search for hit man undid Swimley murder plot'

by STIRLING MONTA

An assistant state's attorney said Tuesday a telephone call to a man with an Italian name in the mistaken belief he had crime syndicate connections led to the downfall of a Schaumburg woman's plot to kill her husband.

Charles Sklarsky, an assistant state's attorney, said in his opening remark of the Marlene Swimley murder-solicitation trial that a police investigation led to Mrs. Swimley's arrest after calls to a former Schaumburg man, known as "Godfather" to friends.

Thomas Mangione, Rochester, N.Y., who was called "Godfather" because of his Italian heritage by a few people when he lived in Schaumburg, testified before Judge Marvin E. Aspen that he received a message to return a call to Kevin Senne and that a person identifying himself as Senne told him he wanted a "hit man."

Sklarsky said the telephone call resulted from consultation among three teen-aged friends — two of whom were allegedly solicited by Mrs. Swimley to find a hit man for her husband, Duane Sr.

THE TWO YOUTHS called a former junior-high school friend in California, and he recommended they call Mangione, thought to have "Mafia" connections because of his nickname, Sklarsky told the two-man, 10-woman jury.

Rory DeSpain, formerly of Schaumburg, was the only other prosecution witness to testify Tuesday. He told the court that Mangione thought the call was a joke, but when DeSpain heard the name Senne, a friend of his stepson, he urged Mangione to pursue the matter to discover who was the intended victim.

After a second telephone call to the Chicago area, DeSpain mistakenly believed he was the target of a murder plot. "I believe anything is possible these days," he said.

DeSpain said he and Mangione went to Schaumburg police, who started an investigation.

SCHAUMBURG POLICE sought help from the state's attorney's office, and Mrs. Swimley was arrested at the Woodfield Shopping Center Jan. 24, 1974, after she allegedly handed over $100 as a down payment to "Jimmy Sunshine," an investigator posing as a hit man.

Louis Carbonaro, Mrs. Swimley's lawyer, told the jury in his opening statement, "They (the prosecution) would want you to believe that this 32-year-old woman went to a bunch of 14-year-olds to find a Mafia hit man. Is that believable?"

"It's all believable if you watch 'The Godfather' — that is."

Carbonaro implied there were some irregularities following Mrs. Swimley's arrest. He said a tape recording of the alleged money transfer showed that she was pressured into naming an amount and that she was giggling throughout the recording.

CARBONARO SAID an investigator reported that Mrs. Swimley had written her husband's address in German on a photograph, but that a handwriting expert's opinion would prove that it is not her handwriting on the paper.

He said Mrs. Swimley's home at 322 Meacham Rd. had been locked up and she was unable to get in for a day and that when she returned, it had been ransacked. "These small towns run their own police departments," he said.

Prosecution witnesses are expected to testify through Thursday. The trial resumes at 9:30 a.m. today.

But residents must pay half

City to aid flood-damaged yards

Rolling Meadows residents plagued by drainage problems in their yards can get relief from the city, if they are willing to foot half the bill.

For the third year, the city is allocating funds in its annual budget to help pay for correcting drainage problems on private property. Two years ago, the council provided $25,000 for such work as installation of drain tile and connections to the city storm sewer system to relieve conditions in private yards.

The allocation last year was down to $10,000. About 60 families received the benefit of those funds in the two years.

In the budget presented to the council for adoption Tuesday night, another $10,000 was allocated. The owners of four homes in the city have requested the city split with them the cost of drainage improvements, using money from that fund.

THE MONEY HAD not been allocated as of late March, when The Herald publicized flooding problems in the yards of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Beczek, 2403 South St., and their neighbor, Arlene Mortenson, 2403 South St. The Beczeks said they could float a small boat in their yard.

The budget then contained only $3,000 for drainage improvements, and city Mgr. James Watson said he anticipated spending that money for such items as replacing manholes and cleaning and repairing catch basins, all on public land.

Mayor Roland J. Meyer pledged to add to the account to provide for the private property work. The total budget allocation now is $15,000, with $5,000 intended for public property work and $10,000 for private property improvements, said Watson.

Watson said the private property problems probably result, at least in part, from new developments north of Rolling Meadows that disturb natural drainage and reduce the amount of vacant land to absorb water.

SIMILAR SITUATIONS probably will continue to arise, as new develop-

An example would be the Fred Holthe property at 3403 Owl Dr., another of the four sites on Watson's list. The Holthe home faces east, at the end of a block, while homes on each side of it face north and south, with back yards meeting at about the centerline of the Holthe lot. Surface water "empties into our back yard," Mrs. Holthe said.

Mr. and Mrs. Holthe attended a city council committee meeting Monday, and were assured their problem would be corrected in "the very near future." Mrs. Holthe described the committee members as "very responsive" to her complaint.

What to do with old Palatine High?

by KATHERINE BOYCE

The High School Dist. 211 administration will study possible uses for Palatine High School for another year before the board of education decides the fate of its oldest school building.

"The history and Cutting Hall and so many memories and momentoes certainly make it hard to say it should no longer be a high school," Board Pres. Robert Creek said during the board's meeting Tuesday.

An administrative committee is considering alternatives for the old school including selling or renting the building to another community agency, making it into an alternate-day school and enrollment-overload school or a vocational or continuing education center.

ABOUT 12 members of the North Central Palatine Neighborhood Assn., who live near the high school, at 150 E. Wood St., appeared at Tuesday's meeting to ask the board what it plans to do with the building. "We all pretty much knew this was coming up," said Curtis Tice, co-chairman. "If it can't be a high school we would very much like to see it stay a public building."

Several of the homeowners asked that citizens be involved in deciding the use of the building.

Creek told the homeowners the committee will be studying the use of the old school for at least another year before the board makes its decision and the homeowners would be informed of the committee's progress.

Board member Jean Fieser agreed that citizens should have a voice in studying uses for the school. "Somehow the citizen input should be absorbed. Members of the community should have an opportunity to express themselves since their children attend this school."

THE BOARD reviewed enrollment projections for Palatine Township which show that the old building will not be needed as a school in the foreseeable future. The Fremd High School building and the district's sixth high school, scheduled to open in northern Palatine in 1977, "have sufficient capacity to house all the students in Palatine Township through 1983," Creek said.

The board discussed naming the new school Palatine High school but delayed that decision until its next board meeting May 8. Creek said he is "very close to saying the new building is Palatine High School."

When the new school opens just north of the Winston Park subdivision of Palatine the students attending the old school will be moved to the new building. The old building will then be remodeled and reopened as a high school or it will be sold or used by the district for another purpose.

PALATINE'S CAMPUS, about 12 acres, is worth about $1 million, Creek said, and it is difficult to say how much the building is worth because no one now knows if it can be converted for another purpose. "It's really problematical as to how useful it is for anything else," he said. The board estimates the district would have to spend between $6 and $8 million to gut the building and remodel it as a school.

Enrollment projections for Palatine Township show that both Fremd and Palatine High School will be overcrowded in the next two years. The capacity of Fremd is 2,800 students and enrollment is expected to be 2,740 next year and 2,830 by the fall of 1976. Palatine has a capacity of 1,800 students and now houses 1,960. Next year the enrollment is expected to be 2,000 and will reach 2,030 by fall 1976.

The administration has considered remodeling some offices at Fremd for extra classroom space and go from an eight- to a nine-period schedule at Palatine next year to provide more classroom use.

Creek reelected high school board president

Robert Creek was reelected president of the High School Dist. 211 Board of Education by a 6-to-0 vote of the board Tuesday night.

Creek, 1603 Appleby Rd., Inverness, has served as president since his election to the board in 1970. Creek is vice president-administration for Union Oil Co., Palatine Township.

Board Member Edward Perry explained his vote for Creek, saying although several board members are qualified for the presidency, "None of them have the resources and expertise in the many fields that you have."

Board member Anna Countryman, who was elected to a second term April 12, will continue to serve as the board's representative at the opening of all bids for district purchases.

Board member Jean Fieser will continue to serve as the board's representative on the Northwest Educational Cooperative governing board. Board member Robert Seger will continue as the representative to Ed-Red, a legislative lobbying body for area school boards.

Lawyer swindled dad, Raupps allege

by JOANN VAN WYE

A prominent Palatine attorney has been accused of swindling the late Bernard A. Raupp, a member of Buffalo Grove's pioneer family, out of at least $160,000 in the sale of Raupp's 80-acre farm in Buffalo Grove.

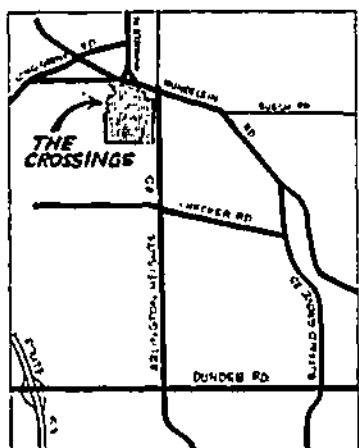

The attorney, Aribert F. Wild, represented Raupp in the sale of the property to a secret land trust of which Wild was the sole beneficiary. Wild then resold the property at a $160,000 profit, according to a suit filed in Lake County Circuit Court by Raupp's two sons.

The suit was filed last month by Leroy M. Raupp, 935 Checker Dr., Buffalo Grove, and Ralph C. Raupp, 1913 Seminole Ln., Mount Prospect, executors of the elder Raupp's estate.

It asks for damages and repayments from Wild totaling $1,060,000. That amount includes the $160,000 Wild made on the farm sale, $500,000 in damages and an additional $400,000 that Raupp lost because the land was sold for less than its market value, the suit says.

WILD, 75, COULD not be reached for comment. His secretary said Wild has been advised by his attorney not to discuss the suit.

The property in question, west of Arlington Heights Road and south of Ill. Rte. 83, is now part of The Crossings development owned by the Richards Group.

Raupp, who is described as "unschooled and unlettered in the English language" in the suit, signed a real estate contract Dec. 30, 1970 selling his 80-acre farm for $640,000 to a secret trust at Chicago Title and Trust Co. The contract called for a $40,000 downpayment and five annual payments of $120,000.

Wild, Raupp's attorney in the deal, is accused of concealing from Raupp that he was the sole beneficiary of the trust which purchased the property.

No money was paid to Raupp for the sale of his property through 1971, according to the suit. An inventory of Raupp's estate at the time of his death Aug. 9, 1973 showed $467,419 still unpaid on the property.

ON MARCH 13, 1972, Wild is accused of selling the 80-acre Raupp farm and an additional 53 acres he owned adjacent to the property to developer James Otis Jr. of Northbrook. The property was sold at $10,000 an acre. The suit charges Wild "failed to divulge and concealed" that he had sold the farm for $800,000.

Wild's "deceptions and concealments . . . were intentional and willful and purposefully calculated and planned to reap financial profit . . . at the expense of his client," the suit says.

Fair market value of the land at the time of the 1972 sale was $1.2 million, according to the suit.

Otis petitioned the Village of Buffalo Grove for annexation and multi-family zoning of the parcel, which was granted in August 1971. The property was then sold and is being developed by the Richards Group.

Wild, whose law office is at 119 E. Palatine Rd., Palatine, has been given until May 21 to file an answer to the suit.

Raupp's will called for equally dividing his estate among his six children, Leroy Raupp, Ralph Raupp, Robert J. Raupp, 7817 Rte. 14, Harvard; Donald B. Raupp, 418 Diane Dr., Palatine; Mary Ann Eder, 1046 Broadmoor, Deerfield; and Betty Lou Raupp, 1175 Parker Ln., Buffalo Grove. They would receive equal portions of any settlement.

THE CROSSINGS development in Buffalo Grove is going up on the former 80-acre Bernard Raupp farm. Aribert F. Wild, attorney for the sale of the farm, is charged in a suit with swindling the later Bernard Raupp out of $160,000 when he purchased the property for $640,000 under the cover of a blind trust and resold it for $800,000.

New uses for Palatine High still being sought

by KATHERINE BOYCE

The High School Dist. 211 administration will study possible uses for Palatine High School for another year before the board of education decides the fate of its oldest school building.

"The history and Cutting Hall and so many memories and moments certainly make it hard to say it should no longer be a high school," Board Pres. Robert Creek said during the board's meeting Tuesday.

An administrative committee is considering alternatives for the old school including selling or renting the building to another community agency, making it into an alternate-day school and enrollment-overload school or a vocational or continuing education center.

ABOUT 12 members of the North Central Palatine Neighborhood Assn., who live near the high school, at 150 E. Wood St., appeared at Tuesday's meeting to ask the board what it plans to do with the building. "We all pretty much knew this was coming up," said Curtis Tice, co-chairman. "If it can't be a high school we would very much like to see it stay a public building."

Several of the homeowners asked that citizens be involved in deciding the use of the building.

Creek told the homeowners the committee will be studying the use of the old school for at least another year before the board makes its decision and the homeowners would be informed of the committee's progress.

Board member Jean Fister agreed that citizens should have a voice in studying uses for the school. "Somehow the citizen input should be absorbed. Members of the community should have an opportunity to express themselves since their children attend this school."

THE BOARD reviewed enrollment projections for Palatine Township which show that the old building will not be needed as a school in the foreseeable future. The Fremd High School building and the district's sixth high school, scheduled to open in northern Palatine in 1977, "have sufficient capacity to house all the students in Palatine Township through 1983," Creek said.

The board discussed naming the new school Palatine High school but delayed that decision until its next board meeting May 8. Creek said he is "very close to saying the new building is Palatine High School."

When the new school opens just north of the Winston Park subdivision of Palatine the students attending the old school will be moved to the new building. The old building will then be remodeled and reopened as a high school or it will be sold or used by the district for another purpose.

PALATINE'S CAMPUS, about 12 acres, is worth about $1 million, Creek said, and it is difficult to say how much the building is worth because no one now knows if it can be converted for another purpose. "It's really problematical as to how useful it is for anything else," he said. The board estimates the district would have to spend between $6 and $8 million to gut the building and remodel it as a school.

Enrollment projections for Palatine Township show that both Fremd and Palatine High School will be overcrowded in the next two years. The capacity of Fremd is 2,800 students and enrollment is expected to be 2,740 next year and 2,830 by the fall of 1976. Palatine has a capacity of 1,800 students and now houses 1,960. Next year the enrollment is expected to be 2,800 and will reach 2,950 by fall 1976.

The administration has considered remodeling some offices at Fremd for extra classroom space and go from an eight- to a nine-period schedule at Palatine next year to provide more classroom use.

Robert Creek

Creek reelected high school board president

Robert Creek was reelected president of the High School Dist. 211 Board of Education by a 6-to-0 vote of the board Tuesday night.

Creek, 1603 Appleby Rd., Inverness, has served as president since his election to the board in 1970. Creek is vice president-administration for Union Oil Co., Palatine Township.

Board Member Edward Perry explained his vote for Creek, saying although several board members are qualified for the presidency, "None of them have the resources and expertise in the many fields that you have."

Board member Anna Countryman, who was elected to a second term April 12, will continue to serve as the board's representative at the opening of all bids for district purchases.

Board member Jean Fister will continue to serve as the board's representative on the Northwest Educational Cooperative governing board. Board member Robert Seger will continue as the representative to Ed-Red, a legislative lobbying body for area school boards.

Developer's density plan gets village, resident flak

The developer of the proposed Prairie Brook Apartments in Palatine Township has proposed a 25 per cent reduction in the density of the project, but the proposal apparently does not completely satisfy neighboring residents or Palatine village officials.

Michael Kroizere, developer of the 93-acre project on Baldwin Road south of Rand Road, has offered to reduce the number of apartment units from 2,000 to 1,500 in an effort to compromise with the Palatine Village Board, which has filed an objection to the project, and to appease Spinnaker Cove residents whose homes are south of the development.

KROIZERE'S REVISED plans call for buildings to be a maximum of four stories, rather than the six-story height specified in original plans.

The density would be reduced from 23 units per acre to 18, with 10 to 12 units an acre along the southern boundary near Spinnaker Cove. A 100-foot landscaped buffer would separate the houses from the apartments, he said.

Trustee Bryan P. Coughlin Jr. said the development is the "first real threat to the village's master plan," and that "there should be people with more expertise in planning and zoning to advise the board on whether this revised plan is really any better than the original."

Coughlin recommended in separate motions, during a village board meeting Monday night, that the village contract an attorney who specializes in zoning cases to advise the board and to contract a land planner "thoroughly familiar with the village's master plan."

Coughlin said that Wilton L. Battles, the land planner who revised the village's master plan several years ago, should be contacted because the village manager and planner do not have "the sufficient background of what went into the plan."

BOTH OF COUGHLIN's motions were defeated, 5 to 1, with board members insisting that Steve Lenet, the village planning and zoning administrator, has been representing the village in hearings on the project and is qualified to advise the board.

Lenet and the Prairie Brook development land planner will meet during the next week.

John Jirgenson, president of the Spinnaker Cove Homeowners Assn., said area residents "seem" pleased with the reduction of the building heights but do not believe that 18 units per acre is enough of a density cut.

"The village's master plan calls for 13 units per acre in that area. We are happy about the density being even lower near our homes, but we can't say that this compromise plan is reasonable until we see it on paper. We may not be satisfied with it," Jirgenson said.

Spinnaker Cove homeowners have been negotiating with Kroizere during the past month to get the density of the project and the height of the buildings near their homes reduced. The residents say they are concerned the project will bring increased traffic and crime into their area.

GRAHAM STEWART was struck on the shoulder by this thin metal plate when it fell from a Boeing 707 jet.

Man hit by falling object from jet

The inside story

A part from a Boeing 707 jet fell in Rolling Meadows last weekend, striking Graham Stewart on his shoulder as he was dumping garbage outside his home.

Stewart, 65, of 3305 Pheasant Dr., was not injured by the part, a small, flat piece of metal with instructions printed on it for maintenance of the jet landing gear.

Stewart turned the metal part, which was attached to a long, metal strap, over to Rolling Meadows police. "I wasn't going to do anything, but I thought Rolling Meadows might keep a record of that stuff," he said.

The Air Carrier Inspection office of the Federal Aviation Administration is tracing the jet from which the piece fell Saturday afternoon. Officials have also shown the part to the Boeing Airplane Co.'s local office.

STEWART SAID the piece struck him lightly on the shoulder, and may have hit the edge of his roof first. He was bending over, putting some trash in a garbage can when it hit, and he didn't know what it was at first. He saw the piece lying on the driveway and threw it onto the porch before deciding to notify police.

"This is nothing," he said. "I suppose it could have injured someone if it struck them in the face."

An FAA spokesman said the part bears the name of the Boeing Co. and has instructions for servicing the landing gear. It is not an essential, operating part of the plane. It probably fell from a plane approaching O'Hare Airport for a landing, the spokesman said.

The Northwest suburbs have been the target of other falling objects in recent years. A large chunk of a door from a jet narrowly missed a surveyor and his stepdaughter in July 1974, when they were doing some work for the Arlington Heights Park District. That piece, measuring about one-by-1½ feet, landed near Belmont Avenue and Council Trail.

Other suburban residents have been plagued by flying sewage, but the FAA has declined to blame those incidents on jet aircraft, saying there is no way for the sewage to fall from the planes.

'Search for hit man undid Swimley murder plot'

by STIRLING MORITA
An assistant state's attorney said Tuesday a telephone call to a man with an Italian name in the mistaken belief he had crime syndicate connections led to the downfall of a Schaumburg woman's plot to kill her husband.

Charles Sklarsky, an assistant state's attorney, said in his opening remark of the Marlene Swimley murder-solicitation trial that a police investigation led to Mrs. Swimley's arrest after calls to a former Schaumburg man, known as "Godfather" to friends.

Thomas Mangione, Rochester, N.Y., who was called "Godfather" because of his Italian heritage by a few people when he lived in Schaumburg, testified before Judge Marvin E. Aspen that he received a message to return a call to Kevin Senne and that a person identifying himself as Senne told him he wanted a "hit man."

Sklarsky said the telephone call resulted from consultation among three teen-aged friends — two of whom were allegedly solicited by Mrs. Swimley to find a hit man for her husband, Duane Sr.

THE TWO YOUTHS called a former junior-high school friend in California, and he recommended they call Mangione, thought to have "Mafia" connections because of his nickname, Sklarsky told the two-man, 10-woman jury.

Rock DeSpain, formerly of Schaumburg, was the only other prosecution witness to testify Tuesday. He told the court that Mangione thought the call was a joke, but when DeSpain heard the name Senne, a friend of his stepson, he urged Mangione to pursue the matter to discover who was the intended victim.

After a second telephone call to the Chicago area, DeSpain mistakenly believed he was the target of a murder plot. "I believe anything is possible these days," he said.

DeSpain said he and Mangione went to Schaumburg police, who started an investigation.

SCHAUMBURG POLICE sought help from the state's attorney's office, and Mrs. Swimley was arrested at the Woodfield Shopping Center Jan. 24, 1974, after she allegedly handed over $100 as a down payment to "Jimmy Sunshine," an investigator posing as a hit man.

Louis Carbonaro, Mrs. Swimley's lawyer, told the jury in his opening statement, "They (the prosecution) would want you to believe that this 32-year-old woman went to a bunch of 14-year-olds to find a Mafia hit man. Is that believable?"

"It's all believable if you watch 'The Godfather' — that is."

Carbonaro implied there were some irregularities following Mrs. Swimley's arrest. He said a tape recording of the alleged money transfer showed that she was pressured into naming an amount and that she was giggling throughout the recording.

CARBONARO SAID an investigator reported that Mrs. Swimley had written her husband's address in Germany on a photograph, but that a handwriting expert's opinion would prove that it is not her handwriting on the paper.

He said Mrs. Swimley's home at 322 Meacham Rd. had been locked up and she was unable to get in for a day and that when she returned, it had been ransacked. "These small towns run their own police departments," he said.

Prosecution witnesses are expected to testify through Thursday. The trial resumes at 9:30 a.m. today.

Election tells trustees 'not to be cocky:' Jones

Palatine Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones has interpreted the reelection of three trustees to the village board as a message from residents "not to get cocky and arrogant and take the vote for granted."

Jones' statements preceded his swearing in of the three trustees to four-year terms during a special meeting Monday night. The three re-elected officials are Fred H. Zajonc, Philip E. Stern and Bryan P. Coughlin Jr.

Jones said the election of Zajonc, who ran as an independent candidate, and of Stern and Coughlin, who ran as members of a Republican Action slate, meant that "the people of Palatine are giving a landslide to no one. The voter wants independent thinking even in its partisan candidates," he said Jones served as campaign chairman for the Republican candidates.

Jones urged the village board to "set aside petty differences and historical partisan bickering" and to "unite for Palatine."

"Elections can put us together or tear us apart. Let us have the 1975 election put us together . . . We are all in the boat together. Now is the time for us to row together in the same direction," Jones said.

THE AFTERMATH of the 1973 village election was characterized by bickering between Republican board members, who swept into power, and the two Village Independent Party holdovers — Zajonc and Clayton W. Brown, who later resigned.

Jones urged the board to consider ideas included in the platforms of the three incumbents and of three defeated candidates.

Jones cited several of Zajonc's suggestions which include expanding the village's volunteer police and fire department staffs and reconsidering whether it is a sound idea to purchase the Ferndale Heights Utility Co.

Stern's suggestion of "trustee walks" to find out what residents are concerned about is a good idea, Jones said, as well as Stern's attempt to get more citizens involved in community concerns.

He also advised the board to study Coughlin's suggestion about implementing responsibility accounting and being an "activist board."

JONES SAID the three losing village board candidates (Republican John V. Serio and Independents Patricia Miramonti and Thomas LaDore) "are truly concerned about their community. Their candidacies did not go unnoticed. Perhaps to strive for a little more common sense and independence is what we were told April 15."

Each of the reelected trustees spoke briefly after the swearing-in ceremony, thanking residents for voting as they did and pledging to do a good job for the people.

The official canvass of the April 15 municipal election presented at the meeting, shows that 3,217 ballots were cast in the trustee race and 3,157 on the question of making the village clerk's position an elected office.

The canvass shows: Zajonc, 1,934 votes; Coughlin, 1,833; Stern, 1,478; Serio, 1,371; Mrs. Miramonti, 1,196; and LaDore, 1,134.

The referendum on the clerk's position was defeated 1,733-to-1,424.

Ex-Hoffman Estates president leaving prison

Roy L. Jenkins, the last of six former Hoffman Estates officials jailed for involvement in a 1968 zoning scandal, will be released today from federal prison.

Jenkins, 46, is scheduled to be released from the Community Treatment Center in Los Angeles, a transfer facility for prisoners awaiting parole. Jenkins, who served as village president from 1965 to 1969, was sent to the facility from the federal prison in Lompoc, Calif., after a parole board consented to his release in January.

The former village president will have served 16 months of a two-year sentence after he pleaded guilty in 1973 to accepting bribes from Kaufman and Broad Homes Inc. for the 1968 zoning of the firm's Barrington Square project.

JENKINS WAS a principal in the bribery scheme in which money was channeled from K&B attorney Bernard Peskin to Jenkins and five other officials. He received the longest sentence of the six.

Peskin, who was found guilty for his role in the scandal, has yet to be sentenced, pending the outcome of appeals.

Other former officials already paroled include Edward Pinger, who served as the village's first president from 1959 to 1965; Herbert C. Gibson, James L. Sloan, Gerald L. Meyer and Howard J. Noble, all of whom were trustees.

The 1973 federal indictment also named K&B, which pleaded no contest to the charge and paid a $50,000 fine.

Jenkins, who moved to California after his term as village president, is expected to return to his West Coast residence upon his release.

Village board wraps Motorcycle shop objection to be filed

The Palatine Village Board voted unanimously this week to file an objection with the County Board to the proposed construction of a motorcycle shop on the east side of Ill. Rte. 53 north of Rand Road in Palatine Township. Trustees and plan commission members said the one-acre project does not conform with the village's master plan which calls for houses in that area.

The County Zoning Board is considering a request to change the single-family zoning of the property to commercial, and has granted the village a 21-day extension from an April 4 hearing on the project to file the objection. The zoning board has not set a date for a second hearing to make a decision on the request.

Ask $16,000 hiring grant

The village will apply for a $16,000 federal grant that will allow the village to hire unemployed residents to work on village beautification projects for a nine-month period. The allocation is part of the federal Emergency Jobs and Unemployment Assistance Act of 1974 and the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act of 1973. The funds are being distributed through the county and the employees are expected to be hired this summer.

More grants available

Village Mgr. Anton Harwig has informed the village board that Palatine is eligible for a two-year, $30,000 grant from the U. S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development. The funds could be used by the village to hire a consultant to update the village's master plan, identify blighted residential areas, identify nonconforming uses and to determine the eventual boundaries of the village.

4 boys, marijuana seized by police

Palatine and Buffalo Grove police arrested four juveniles Tuesday and seized $500 worth of marijuana and LSD after undercover agents allegedly purchased the drugs from the youths at a Burger King restaurant.

Sgt. Kenneth Blanchette of Buffalo Grove police, refused to identify the youths, all 15, but said two were from Northbrook and two from Palatine.

They were taken into custody at 4:30 p.m. at the Burger King restaurant, 301 N. Northwest Hwy., Palatine, after an undercover drug sale involving one of the juveniles and two Buffalo Grove policemen, Blanchette said.

Can library funds be used elsewhere?

Village seeks legal opinion on bonds

by LYNN ASINOF

The Mount Prospect Village Board has called for a legal opinion to determine if funds obtained from bonds issued to finance the new $3.2 million public library can be used for other purposes or be repaid to bond holders.

The action was approved Tuesday night after Mayor Robert D. Teichert lent his support to a motion by Trustee Richard N. Hendricks.

Teichert salvaged the motion, which was about to die for lack of a second, saying the information should be available to the new board members who will take office next month.

HENDRICKS, a long-time foe of the library project, said the recent village election, which brought five independents to the village board, is an indication that residents do not favor a new library.

The independents campaigned heavily on that issue, charging that the board should have called a referendum on the matter instead of issuing bonds through home-rule powers.

"I am not against books or wisdom. Some of my best friends are smart," Hendricks said, saying his opposition is based on the lack of a referendum.

Teichert asked that the matter be put to an independent legal firm rather than the village attorney, John J. Zimmermann. He said he did not want to see the village attorney embroiled in the controversial issue.

THE MAYOR said that by providing needed information to the new board members, the board could prevent delay in letting contracts for the project which might adversely affect construction costs.

The library board Tuesday won village permission to advertise for bids on the new library, Central Road and Main Street. The bids are scheduled to be opened May 15 and come before the village board shortly afterwards.

Trustee-elect Edward B. Rhea Jr. asked that the matter be put to two firms which are specialists in the bond field. He suggested Paul B. Speer and Associates, Chicago, which handled the bond issue for the village, as well as Chapman and Cutler, a Chicago law firm.

TEICHERT CALLED on all board members and newly-elected trustees to provide him with their questions on the matter. He said the village attorney will use this information in calling for a legal opinion.

Rhea said it is his opinion that the funds could possibly be used for another capital purchase but could not be used for village operating expenses. Hendricks had suggested the money be used to pay employee salaries.

A second motion by Hendricks died for lack of a second when he called on Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley to gather data on money already spent on the library project.

He further called for Eppley's recommendations on how the bond funds might be used if they can be diverted. Teichert, however, said such a matter would be "under the province of the new board."

$600 in equipment stolen from bank

The tools are owned by Lee Kelppe, 511 Yale Ave., Arlington Heights, a workman on the bank, which is under construction.

Police contract talks to reopen with new board

The Mount Prospect police union and village officials will reopen contract negotiations once the new village board takes office.

The village board Tuesday night agreed to reopen contract talks as requested by the Combined Counties Police Assn. in a low-key presentation. Leonard Jaglarski, CCPA executive vice president, called for negotiations to resume as soon as possible. In the meantime, the current police contract has been extended.

Negotiations between the village and police ended abruptly last month when the CCPA accused the village of failing to bargain in good faith. Jack Gniot, president of the local union, said the village refused any increase in salaries or fringe benefits, and said this was unacceptable to the union membership.

Union officials indicated they had toned down their requests, partially because a new village board will take office next month. Four of the five trustees elected this month are new to the board, and all five campaigned as independents opposing present board policies.

The union spokesmen also said they are not out to anger the board, saying "you can get nowhere by making them mad."

The police will be meeting with at least one of the new trustees today. Trustee-elect Michael H. Minton said he arranged a meeting with the CCPA in response to a letter sent to candidates and trustees outlining the union stand on the 1975-76 budget.

"I just want to educate myself on the issues," Minton said, noting he will not and cannot negotiate with the union.

Minton said he and other candidates also were contacted by the fire department wage committee, which requested a meeting with the newly-elected trustees.

The village has taken the position that it cannot afford to give any employee raises because of present economic conditions. The board approved the $8,605,390 budget Tuesday, while calling on the new board to look for additional revenue that might be used for employee raises at a later date.

Jaglarski said he hoped "that the new board will take a responsible position" on the union request. "All we are looking for is a fair and equitable wage increase," he said.

The union originally requested a 15 per cent wage increase.

Jaglarski maintained that the village ceased negotiations when it failed to make any offers on union demands.

He indicated to the board that the union will seek financial settlements retroactive to May 1.

Gniot said the union will wait until the new board responds in negotiation sessions before taking any further action. "We're going to wait for them to respond. We can call a meeting on very short notice," he said.

MSD tunnel project easements OKd

The Mount Prospect Park Board has approved easements for the Metropolitan Sanitary District's deep-tunnel project, despite the opposition of Comr. Rosemary Argus.

The easements were approved in a 3-0 vote, with Mrs. Argus abstaining. She argued against approving the easements, saying the deep tunnel project and associated sewage-treatment plant have not been approved by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

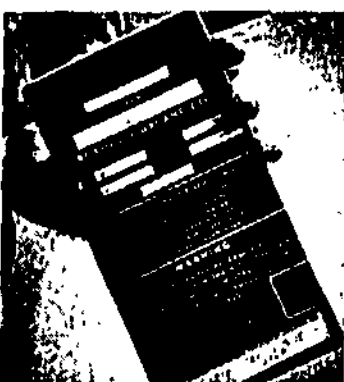

Mrs. Argus is associated with a group of Des Plaines residents who have opposed the plant, saying it would cause odor and health problems.

Board members William Selepe, Elmer Blasco and Robert T. Jackson voted in favor of the easements.

The Board also approved a contract with architect James Viger for the renovation of the Maple Room of the Mount Prospect Community Center, 600 S. Sec-Gwin Ave. The contract calls for Viger to complete plans for the renovation, prepare the project for bids and make periodic inspections of the project in exchange for 7 per cent of the contract price.

In other business the board instructed the park president to write letters to state legislators urging passage of a bill that would create a park district distribution fund from state income tax funds.

GRAHAM STEWART was struck on the shoulder by this thin metal plate when it fell from a Boeing 707 jet.

Man hit by falling object from jet

The inside story

A part from a Boeing 707 jet fell in Rolling Meadows last weekend, striking Graham Stewart on his shoulder as he was dumping garbage outside his home.

Stewart, 65, of 3305 Phensant Dr., was not injured by the part, a small, flat piece of metal with instructions printed on it for maintenance of the jet landing gear.

Stewart turned the metal part, which was attached to a long, metal strap, over to Rolling Meadows police. "I wasn't going to do anything, but I thought Rolling Meadows might keep a record of that stuff," he said.

The Air Carrier Inspection office of the Federal Aviation Administration is tracing the jet from which the piece fell Saturday afternoon. Officials have also shown the part to the Boeing Airplane Co.'s local office.

STEWART SAID the piece struck him lightly on the shoulder, and may have hit the edge of his roof first. He was bending over, putting some trash in a garbage can when it hit, and he didn't know what it was at first. He saw the piece lying on the driveway and threw it onto the porch before deciding to notify police.

"This is nothing," he said. "I suppose it could have injured someone if it struck them in the face."

An FAA spokesman said the part bears the name of the Boeing Co. and has instructions for servicing the landing gear. It is not an essential, operating part of the plane. It probably fell from a plane approaching O'Hare Airport for a landing, the spokesman said.

The Northwest suburbs have been the target of other falling objects in recent years. A large chunk of a door from a jet narrowly missed a survivor and his stepdaughter in July 1974, when they were doing some work for the Arlington Heights Park District. That piece, measuring about one-by-1½ feet, landed near Belmont Avenue and Council Trail.

Other suburban residents have been plagued with flying sewage, but the FAA has declined to blame those incidents on jet aircraft, saying there is no way for the sewage to fall from the planes.

swindling the later Bernard Raupp out of $160,000 when he purchased the property for $640,000 under the cover of a blind trust and resold it for $800,000.

Raupps charge lawyer bilked dad of thousands

by JOANN VAN WYE

A prominent Palatine attorney has been accused of swindling the late Bernard A. Raupp, a member of Buffalo Grove's pioneer family, out of at least $160,000 in the sale of Raupp's 80-acre farm in Buffalo Grove.

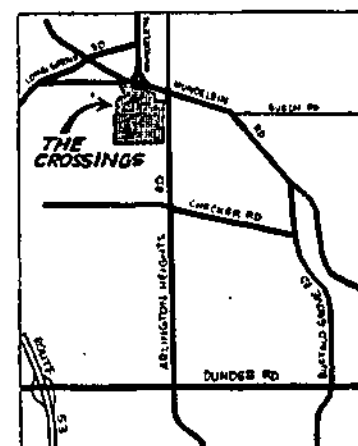

The attorney, Aribert F. Wild, represented Raupp in the sale of the property to a secret land trust of which Wild was the sole beneficiary. Wild then resold the property at a $160,000 profit, according to a suit filed in Lake County Circuit Court by Raupp's two sons.

The suit was filed last month by Leroy M. Raupp, 953 Checker Dr., Buffalo Grove, and Ralph C. Raupp, 1913 Seminole Ln., Mount Prospect, executors of the elder Raupp's estate.

It asks for damages and repayments from Wild totaling $1,060,000. That amount includes the $160,000 Wild made on the farm sale, $500,000 in damages and an additional $400,000 that Raupp lost because the land was sold for less than its market value, the suit says.

WILD, 75, COULD not be reached for comment. His secretary said Wild has been advised by his attorney not to discuss the suit.

The property in question, west of Arlington Heights Road and south of Ill. Rte. 83, is now part of The Crossings development owned by the Richards Group.

Raupp, who is described as "un-schooled and unlettered in the English language" in the suit, signed a real estate contract Dec. 30, 1970 selling his 80-acre farm for $640,000 to a secret trust at Chicago Title and Trust Co. The contract called for a $40,000 downpayment and five annual payments of $120,000.

Wild, Raupp's attorney in the deal, is accused of concealing from Raupp that he was the sole beneficiary of the trust which purchased the property.

No money was paid to Raupp for the sale of his property through 1971, according to the suit. An inventory of Raupp's estate at the time of his death Aug. 9, 1973 showed $467,419 still unpaid on the property.

ON MARCH 13, 1972, Wild is accused of selling the 80-acre Raupp farm and an additional 53 acres he owned adjacent to the property to developer James Otis Jr. of Northbrook. The property was sold at $10,000 an acre. The suit charges Wild "failed to divulge and concealed" that he had sold the farm for $800,000.

Wild's "deceptions and concealments . . . were intentional and willful and purposefully calculated and planned to reap financial profit . . . at the expense of his client," the suit says.

Fair market value of the land at the time of the 1972 sale was $1.2 million, according to the suit.

Otis petitioned the Village of Buffalo Grove for annexation and multi-family zoning of the parcel, which was granted in August 1971. The property was then sold and is being developed by the Richards Group.

Wild, whose law office is at 119 E. Palatine Rd., Palatine, has been given until May 21 to file an answer to the suit.

Raupp's will called for equally dividing his estate among his six children, Leroy Raupp, Ralph Raupp, Robert J. Raupp, 7817 Rte. 14, Harvard; Donald B. Raupp, 418 Diane Dr., Palatine; Mary Ann Eder, 1046 Broadmoor, Deerfield; and Betty Lou Raupp, 1175 Parker Ln., Buffalo Grove. They would receive equal portions of any settlement.

Prosecution contends in Swimley trial:

'Hit-man call undid murder plot'

by STIRLING MORITA

An assistant state's attorney said Tuesday a telephone call to a man with an Italian name in the mistaken belief he had crime syndicate connections led to the downfall of a Schaumburg woman's plot to kill her husband.

Charles Sklarsky, an assistant state's attorney, said in his opening remark of the Marlene Swimley murder-solicitation trial that a police investigation led to Mrs. Swimley's arrest after calls to a former Schaumburg man, known as "Godfather" to friends.

Thomas Mangione, Rochester, N.Y., who was called "Godfather" because of his Italian heritage by a few people when he lived in Schaumburg, testified before Judge Marvin E. Aspon that he received a message to return a call to Kevin Senne and that a person identifying himself as Senne told him he wanted a "hit man."

Sklarsky said the telephone call resulted from consultation among three teen-aged friends — two of whom were allegedly solicited by Mrs. Swimley to find a hit man for her husband, Duane Sr.

THE TWO YOUTHS called a former junior-high school friend in California, and he recommended they call Mangione, thought to have "Mafia" connections because of his nickname, Sklarsky told the two-man, 10-woman jury.

Rock DeSpain, formerly of Schaumburg, was the only other prosecution witness to testify Tuesday. He told the court that Mangione thought the call was a joke, but when DeSpain heard the name Senne, a friend of his stepson, he urged Mangione to pursue the matter to discover who was the intended victim.

After a second telephone call to the Chicago area, DeSpain mistakenly believed he was the target of a murder plot. "I believe anything is possible these days," he said.

DeSpain said he and Mangione went to Schaumburg police, who started an investigation.

SCHAUMBURG POLICE sought help from the state's attorney's office, and Mrs. Swimley was arrested at the Woodfield Shopping Center Jan. 24, 1974, after she allegedly handed over $100 as a down payment to "Jimmy Sunshine," an investigator posing as a hit man.

Louis Carbonaro, Mrs. Swimley's lawyer, told the jury in his opening statement, "They (the prosecution) would want you to believe that this 32-year-old woman went to a bunch of 14-year-olds to find a Mafia hit man. Is that believable?"

"It's all believable if you watch 'The Godfather' — that is."

Carbonaro implied there were some irregularities following Mrs. Swimley's arrest. He said a tape recording of the alleged money transfer showed that she was pressured into naming an amount and that she was giggling throughout the recording.

CARBONARO SAID an investigator reported that Mrs. Swimley had written her husband's address in Germany on a photograph, but that a handwriting expert's opinion would prove that it is not her handwriting on the paper.

He said Mrs. Swimley's home at 322 Meacham Rd. had been locked up and she was unable to get in for a day and that when she returned, it had been ransacked. "These small towns run their own police departments," he said.

Prosecution witnesses are expected to testify through Thursday. The trial resumes at 9:30 a.m. today.

2 panels to work on housing plan

Two Mount Prospect commissions will meet tonight to begin putting together a plan for low-and moderate-income housing in the village.

The planning commission and the community services and mental health commission have done most of the legwork in gathering data. They plan to decide how many units are needed and where they should be located.

The plan was ordered by the village board after federal housing legislation changed, outdating village plans for subsidized senior citizens housing. By developing a plan, the village will have grounds to object to proposed housing projects that do not comply with that plan.

$8,000 in diamonds stolen from store

A tray of diamond rings valued at $8,000 was stolen Monday night from the Venture Inc. department store, 1500 S. Elmhurst Rd., Mount Prospect.

Police said the 19 or 20 rings on the tray were last seen at 5 p.m. when they were locked in a display case. Their loss was reported at 10:45 p.m.

The case was found unlocked when the theft was discovered, police said. They added that it is unknown whether the rings were stolen by a shop-lifter or by a store employee and both possibilities are being investigated.

Parking law 'restrictive'

Guidelines for new businesses rapped

SCREAM for ice cream! A sign on the vacant store at 9 E. Campbell St. optimistically predicts the opening of an ice cream store downtown.

by KURT BAER
Trying to start a small business in the Village of Arlington Heights, is not always easy, even when the business is an ice cream parlor.

Take, as one example, the Baskin-Robbins company, the firm that markets 31 Flavors ice cream. It has been planning for several months to open a store in the vacant storefront at 5 E. Campbell St., the heart of downtown Arlington Heights.

Company representatives recently were informed that they would have to provide three private parking spaces for their downtown business or contribute $4,800 to the municipal parking fund in lieu of the spaces.

THAT EXTRA SPACES are required because the ice cream store plan includes six small tables where customers, presumably would devour their banana splits and slurp their ice cream sodas.

The tables transform a simple ice cream store into a "sit-down restaurant," which must have one parking space for every 50 square feet of public seating area, according to a village ordinance.

It is a requirement that irritates Chamber of Commerce officials and already has killed at least one downtown renovation plan to convert the old pool hall at 1 N. Vail Ave. into a restaurant and pub.

"We do have a parking ordinance here that is restrictive," said Earl Johnson, executive director of the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce.

"We would like to see it easier for businesses to get into business. I don't like to see empty stores downtown. They're not producing revenue for the village, or producing jobs for people," he says.

NOT ALL OF the missing businesses downtown can be blamed on the village's parking requirement. But in the case of the Campbell Street ice cream store, the ordinance appears "kind of hard to justify," says Michael Silverman, president of the Chamber of Commerce and a member of the village plan commission.

Silverman says he has drawn a map of the central business district on which he has colored in all the existing parking lots.

"My personal opinion is that downtown is one big parking lot with a few ancillary buildings," he says.

Thought it may appear unfair to hold up an ice cream store for parking contributions because of six tables, other restaurants downtown have contributed the required money, Silverman says and that raises a question of fairness in exempting a new business.

While village officials wrestle with the application of their own ordinance, no less than 12 storefronts stand vacant in Arlington Heights' central business district.

FOUR OF THESE empty buildings are in a two-block stretch of Campbell Street where Baskin-Robbins proposes to open its store.

Baskin-Robbins representative in all this is David Witt, and Witt did not want to comment on parking requirements Tuesday because his store plans are scheduled for review by the Arlington Heights Plan Commission at 8 p.m. today.

The plan commission could recommend that the parking requirement be

Phone burglar alarms criticized

An Arlington Heights police official Tuesday night said he opposed installation of a special telephone for burglar alarms that would automatically connect to the police department.

Capt. Maurice English told a meeting of the village board's legal committee that homeowners buying the alarms are "being sold a bill of goods. They're not getting what they're paying for."

"People are sold the alarm with the idea that when it rings in the station, they'll get automatic service. I think they are buying false security," he said.

The police department has asked for a prohibition on the alarms because of numerous problems, including false alarms, dialing devices that will not shut off and complete tie up of police emergency lines.

English said installing the phone would solve the problem of tying up emergency lines. Cost to the village for installation of the special phone would be $20 to $25 with a monthly charge of $7.35.

English recommended an ordinance that would require all automatic alarms to go through a private security service or directly to the police alarm board. He said both methods allow police to filter calls and weed out false alarms.

Man hit by falling object from jet

The inside story

GRAHAM STEWART was struck on the shoulder by this thin metal plate when it fell from a Boeing 707 jet.

A part from a Boeing 707 jet fell in Rolling Meadows last weekend, striking Graham Stewart on his shoulder as he was dumping garbage outside his home.

Stewart, 65, of 3305 Pheasant Dr., was not injured by the part, a small, flat piece of metal with instructions printed on it for maintenance of the jet landing gear.

Stewart turned the metal part, which was attached to a long, metal strap, over to Rolling Meadows police. "I wasn't going to do anything, but I thought Rolling Meadows might keep a record of that stuff," he said.

The Air Carrier Inspection office of the Federal Aviation Administration is tracing the jet from which the piece fell Saturday afternoon. Officials have also shown the part to the Boeing Airplane Co.'s local office.

STEWART SAID the piece struck him lightly on the shoulder, and may have hit the edge of his roof first. He was bending over, pulling some trash in a garbage can when it hit, and he didn't know what it was at first. He saw the piece lying on the driveway and threw it onto the porch before deciding to notify police.

"This is nothing," he said. "I suppose it could have injured someone if it struck them in the face."

An FAA spokesman said the part bears the name of the Boeing Co. and has instructions for servicing the landing gear. It is not an essential, operating part of the plane. It probably fell from a plane approaching O'Hare Airport for a landing, the spokesman said.

The Northwest suburbs have been the target of other falling objects in recent years. A large chunk of a door from a jet narrowly missed a surveyor and his stepdaughter in July 1974, when they were doing some work for the Arlington Heights Park District. That piece, measuring about one-by-1 1/2 feet, landed near Belmont Avenue and Council Trail.

Other suburban residents have been plagued with flying sewage, but the FAA has declined to blame those incidents on jet aircraft, saying there is no way for the sewage to fall from the planes.

waved. At the very least, it could refer Baskin-Robbins to another administrative board, the zoning board of appeals, and it could recommend that the parking ordinance be waived.

Or, Witt could agree to eliminate the six tables and 16 chairs he has planned in his ice cream store, and thereby eliminate the need for extra parking or cash contributions.

Cats must get yearly rabies shots

Cats older than four months will be required to get a yearly rabies shot under an ordinance approved this week by the Arlington Heights Village Board. Cat owners must have a certificate signed by the county rabies inspector or licensed veterinarian administering the shot.

Sidewalk riding OK'd

Bicycle riders may ride on any village sidewalk outside the central business district. The village board approved an ordinance which prohibits bike riding on sidewalks only in the area bounded by Sigwalt Street, Arlington Heights Road, St. James Street and Highland Avenue.

Builder gets extension

The prospective developer of a 32-acre enclosed mall shopping center at the southeast corner of Arlington Heights and Palatine roads was granted a nine-month extension to begin construction.

The ordinance for the shopping center, approved last May, gave Jack Jacobs & Co. one year to begin construction. An attorney for the company said economic conditions delayed the original construction schedule.

IN THE DOWNTOWN area, where it is a virtual impossibility to come up with more parking, the ordinance permits the businessman to buy his way out for $1,600 per parking space.

The money contributed goes into a village fund that someday may be used to improve downtown parking for all businesses through the construction of a parking garage.

A year ago, two partners proposed to undertake remodeling the old pool hall into a restaurant. They were soon confronted with the ordinance requirement for 40 parking spaces. At $1,600 each, that added up to a contribution of $64,000.

Though the sum was eventually scaled down by the village board to $25,000, payable over 10 years, it was formidable enough to cause the partners to abandon their plan.

They now operate a restaurant in a remodeled old bank building in Barrington.

Day-care center OK'd

The village board extended a special-use permit for the "Little Acorns" day-care center in the 12 Oaks Apartment for another year.

Stadium facts sought

The village board asked the administration to "intently gather facts from other communities faced with the same problems and opportunities" of having a sports stadium. Trustees said they wanted the information to prepare for any discussions about the proposed Chicago Bears' stadium at the Arlington Park Race Track.

'Search for hit man undid Swimley murder plot'

by STIRLING MORITA

An assistant state's attorney said Tuesday a telephone call to a man with an Italian name in the mistaken belief he had crime syndicate connections led to the downfall of a Schaumburg woman's plot to kill her husband.

Charles Sklarsky, an assistant state's attorney, said in his opening remark of the Marlene Swimley murder-solicitation trial that a police investigation led to Mrs. Swimley's arrest after calls to a former Schaumburg man, known as "Godfather" to friends.

Thomas Mangione, Rochester, N.Y., who was called "Godfather" because of his Italian heritage by a few people when he lived in Schaumburg, testified before Judge Marvin E. Aspen that he received a message to return a call to Kevin Senne and that a person identifying himself as Senne told him he wanted a "hit man."

Sklarsky said the telephone call resulted from consultation among three teen-aged friends — two of whom were allegedly solicited by Mrs. Swimley to find a hit man for her husband Duane Sr.

THE TWO YOUTHS called a former junior-high school friend in California, and he recommended they call Mangione, thought to have "Mafia" connections because of his nickname, Sklarsky told the two-man, 10-woman jury.

Rock DeSpain, formerly of Schaumburg, was the only other prosecution witness to testify Tuesday. He told the court that Mangione thought the call was a joke, but when DeSpain heard the name Senne, a friend of his stepson, he urged Mangione to pursue the matter to discover who was the intended victim.

After a second telephone call to the Chicago area, DeSpain mistakenly believed he was the target of a murder plot. "I believe anything is possible these days," he said.

DeSpain said he and Mangione went to Schaumburg police, who started an investigation.

SCHAUMBURG POLICE sought help from the state's attorney's office, and Mrs. Swimley was arrested at the Woodfield Shopping Center Jan. 24, 1974, after she allegedly handed over $100 as a down payment to "Jimmy Sunshine," an investigator posing as a hit man.

Louis Carbonaro, Mrs. Swimley's lawyer, told the jury in his opening statement, "They (the prosecution) would want you to believe that this 32-year-old woman went to a bunch of 14-year-olds to find a Mafia hit man. Is that believable?"

"It's all believable if you watch 'The Godfather' — that is."

Carbonaro implied there were some irregularities following Mrs. Swimley's arrest. He said a tape recording of the alleged money transfer showed that she was pressured into naming an amount and that she was giggling throughout the recording.

CARBONARO SAID an investigator reported that Mrs. Swimley had written her husband's address in Germany on a photograph, but that a handwriting expert's opinion would prove that it is not her handwriting on the paper.

Prosecution witnesses are expected to testify through Thursday. The trial resumes at 9:30 a.m. today.
